It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

NATIVE toponomy or the study of Irish Place-Names has hitherto received but scant attention at the hands of scholars. In the not distant future, however, the science is certain to attain a very considerable importance for, of the many branches of archæology, there is not one more useful to the scientific historian. It tells him—if he has learned to read its message—not only the physical appearance and character of the country in ages past, not only the story of flora and fauna in times whereof there is no written record, but many particulars moreover concerning the successive races who occupied the land—of their movements and their occupations, their culture and their social system, their institutions and their manner of thought. As the Saxon names of England borrow a hard and practical and matter-of-fact character from the racial mind of which they are the product so our Irish place-names, breathing a soft aroma of fancy, indicate themselves the offspring of a more imaginative people. At the same time it is proper here to note that there has been much exaggeration regarding the poetry latent in our Irish names. The imaginative in place-names is far less, proportionately, than the same element in the literature—less even than what one should prima facie, somehow or other, expect. It is the dreamy country schoolmaster and the disciple of Vallancey who have read into local nomenclature so much unwarranted poetry, or rather, subtlety—complexity of idea. As a matter of fact place-names in general, and Irish place-names in particular, are the simplest of simple things. In their concept there is no subtlety; in their genesis no conscious striving at effect. It is the "Red Bog," "Great Hill" or "Tree-Surrounded Homestead," with occasional dashes of fancy due to some resemblance—perhaps apparent, perhaps apprehensible only by the Celtic mind. As a rule the place-name is merely descriptive. A tribe or family fixes its abode beside a hill or stream; thenceforth the hill or stream, though in contiguity perhaps with other and more imposing hills and streams, becomes to the members of that primitive community—"the Hill" or "the Stream," or even, "the Great Hill" or "the Great Stream." Magnitude or the opposite are merely relative; a ridge, thirty feet high, becomes "Árd-Mhór" (Great Eminence), to the dwellers on the plain adjacent. It matters not, that within vision, away in the distance, are other much greater eminences; with these our primitive community is nowise concerned. Similarly, originate our "Great Forts," and "Great Strands," our "Great Ridges" and "Great Homesteads."

Any comprehensive or scientific study of our place-names presupposes some knowledge of the various races which compose the population—some knowledge likewise of the various languages, religions and general culture of these races, as well as of the history, at least in outline, of the country. Authentic Irish history probably carries us no further back than the first century of our era (a). By the aid of Anthropology, Archæology and Philology we are able to see somewhat dimly beyond this—into the mists of the prehistoric dawn. It seems to be fairly well established now that there was a dual Celtic colonisation of Early Ireland as well as of Great Britain—a Gaodhalic colonisation and a Brythonic. Previous however to the advent of the Celtic vanguard our island we find in occupation of a race which, for want of a more definite name, we may (following scientists of various schools) call Pre-Aryans. These latter, probably now represented on the Continent by the Basques, appear to have been in the neolithic or polished-stone stage of development on their first contact with the Celts (b). They were entirely, or almost entirely, overcome in Ireland by the conquering Gaodhal in the first Christian centuries (c), but they were by no means exterminated. The Gaodhals, whom we may equate with the half-legendary and half-real Milesians of the Irish annalists, brought the whole island under their sway (d). On the other hand the settlements of the Brythons (the last-comers) appear to have been very restricted in area—confined in fact to the extreme south-east angle of the island. Inter-relationship, if any, of the aboriginal neolithic people with the later colonies is by no means easy to determine. The former we find styled Ivernians (e). Hence come the classic names of Ireland—Juvernia, Ivernia, Irene, Hibernia, &c., as well as the Irish Eriu, Erann, Erie, Erin, &c. It is established that the Gaodhals and Brythons were allied races, speaking allied tongues, and that the one was in the bronze and the other in the iron age on their arrival in Britain (f). As the conquests of the Brythons in Ireland were so restricted we may regard them as having no appreciable effect on the general local nomenclature of the island. They may have however, and probably they actually have, in a slight and indirect degree, affected the local names of Decies.

From the prominence given to the Ivernians by Ptolemy, and from the manner in which the race in question has impressed its name upon the land, it is justifiable to conclude that it was the predominant people of prehistoric Ireland. It is placed by the Greek geographer on the middle south coast of Ireland, in the region corresponding with the present County of Waterford. For all practical purposes we may regard the Ivernians as the Firbolgs of Irish myth and legend and of MacFirbis's Genealogies. It is moreover highly probable that a strong Ivernian element still subsists in the blood of Decies. Authorities (g) are of opinion that the Ivernians, Firbolgs or neolithic aborigines spoke a non-Aryan language. As in some small degree corroborative it may be noted that it is still an open question whether the river, and a few other geographical, names of Decies be Celtic at all. Be the solution of the question what it may the majority of river names of the region have so far defied analysis. It is just possible—and perhaps something more—that these names, together with some mountain names (Broe, Dyrick &c.) and the names of some more important territorial divisions (Decies, Iffa, Femhin &c.) are pre-Celtic and pre-Aryan. In this connection a list—perhaps not quite complete—of such river-names will be of interest :—Suir, Tar, Dwag, Thonog, Nire, Countaish, Buading, Lingan, Clodagh, Ire, Mahon, Tay, Nemh, Araglinn &c. To the foregoing list we may add as perhaps not quite clear:—Bualack, Funcheon, Colligan, Bricky, Licky, Bride, Anner &c.

For sake of completeness it will be necessary here to briefly recapitulate the stereotyped account of the Milesian conquest of Decies by the three sons of Fiacha Suidhe. There are varying versions of the tale, but all agree in essentials (h). Of the three sons of Fiacha aforesaid the most noted was Fergus, named from his martial prowess "of the Dreaded Spear." He slew Caellach, son of the monarch Cormac, thrust out the King's eye and killed the royal steward. For this lèse-majesté Fergus, with his brethren and followers, were driven forth from their tribal lands of Meath, routed in many battles by the royal troops and forced to fight their way to the extreme south. Here, through favour of their connection by marriage, the King of Cashel, they obtained the territory now roughly comprised in the County of Waterford. Some centuries later the Desii, as the tribesmen of Fergus were called, succeeded in extending their boundaries on the north by conquest of Northern Decies (approximately equivalent to the present Tipperary portion of Lismore Diocese) from the men of Ossory. Such in brief is the story of the expulsion and final settlement of the Desii, a story which MacNeill (i) rejects as pure invention. If the account given were history then the Desii as of undoubted

(h) Professor Kuno Meyer, Ph.D., has edited two versions. The first from Laud, 610, is entitled "De Causis torche na nDéssi," and the second or later from Rawlinson, B. 502 and 512, has the heading "Taireered na nDéssi."

Milesian stock should be a free and not a tributary people. As a matter of fact however we know, on the authority of the Book of Rights, that the Desii both of Waterford and of Meath were tributary. It seems expedient therefore to admit that the Desii were of original Iberian and not of Milesian or Celtic stock, and that in an age of history and genealogy fabrication, scil:—the 10th century, the story of the expulsion was invented, or distorted into its present form, and a brand-new full Milesian pedigree manufactured for an Iberian tribe. As however the matter is not of prime importance, or indeed of importance at all, for our present purpose it will not be necessary to pursue it further in this place.

The heads of Decies' history subsequent to the 3rd century may be enumerated in a single paragraph. They are—the conquest of Northern Decies already alluded to—the introduction of Christianity from Britain and the Continent—the subsequent general conversion of the tribesmen by SS. Declan and Patrick in the 5th century—the founding of Lismore in the 7th century—the advent of the Danes two centuries later—the building of Waterford by the Northmen—the advent of the English and the grant of Decies to Norman Knights and freebooters. With the settlement of the Anglo-Normans feudal law and forms take the place of the Brehan code, a Norman church discipline is introduced, and the peculiar Irish system of succession known as Tanistry as well as the immemorial rights of tribesmen are ignored. Forceful seizure of Irish lands necessitates a retention by force—hence reprisals, castle building and burning, and petty warfare interminable. Four centuries from the English invasion come the religious changes of Tudor times to make confusion worse confounded, discord more discordant, and to render more difficult than ever mutual understanding of the native and the stranger. Finally, to complete the cup of a nation's agony, are added James and confiscation, Cromwell and confiscation, the Boyne and confiscation, penal laws, confiscation and degradation. Hope, which rose with the volunteers, was stamped out in 1798 and 1800; it smouldered for half a century, was fanned to life by O'Connell and Young Ireland, and all but died out again at the famine. Black '47 was more destructive of the spirit that went to make a nation than anything beside which had occurred since the landing of Strongbow. In the Place-Names of the Decies will be found reflections of every enumerated epoch and event—reflections so unmistakeable that from the bare names alone one might fill in the whole history in outline.

Many—perhaps the majority—of townland and parish names possess an antiquity far greater than the present shape of the name would suggest. With a form as of yesterday the name has not unfrequently behind it the hoary antiquity of several centuries. From their occurrence in early deeds and charters we know that many townland and nearly all parish names go back to the Invasion, and undoubtedly a large proportion of these to a period considerably more remote. Sub-denominations—i.e. names of townland sub-divisions, roads, wells, fields &c.—are generally less ancient, but even of these a certain proportion is of great age. In hundreds of instances what are now merely townland sub-divisions were formerly independent townlands, and similarly there are townland names which formerly designated not merely the present townland but a district or manor embracing several plowlands.

As he who runs may read the vast majority of our place-names are undoubtedly Celtic. Some, as we have just seen, are probably pre-Celtic, and there is a considerable sprinkling of Teutonic and apparently Teutonic names—English and Scandinavian. A few Norman-French names appear, as Gracedieu, Bewley (Beau Lieu) &c., but they are of little importance. Considering the protracted domination of the Northmen, and considering the strong Danish element in the population of Waterford City and Gaultier, the number of Scandinavian names is surprisingly small ; Ballygunner, Ballytruckle, Helwick and Faithlegg almost exhaust the list, and some of these are only in part, and some doubtfully, Danish. English names are mostly translations of original Irish names ; when not translations they are generally unnatural—the outcome of affectation. Probably most of the translated names date from the latter half of the 17th century, when (temp. Chas. II.) an Act was passed commanding the use of English instead of Irish names in certain cases (j). The number of English names that are not translations of Irish originals is very limited indeed. Foreign names, other than those which are religious or designate ownership, have been curiously lacking in adhesiveness; at any rate they have rarely survived, and the explanation is probably to be found in their inappropriateness. There is a class of names which, though really Irish, simulate an English origin and appearance—as Glenhouse (Gleann-a-Cowish—“Glen of the Stepping Stones”), Sion (Sheean—“Fairy-Hill”), Bell Lake (Baile-an-Locha—“The Lake Homestead”), Baylough (Beal-a-Locha—“Lake Mouth”). Sometimes, too, the name has, through an incorrect apprehension of its component parts, been incorrectly Englished, like “Crow Hill” (Cnoc na bPraocán), which should be “Hurt Hill” if the bPraocán had not been mistaken for bPraéacán.

It is the dubious honour of the nineteenth century to have invented—or at any rate appropriated and developed—the idea of the place-name which is a lie or meaningless. Up to a hundred years ago every place-name conveyed some definite idea of the physical character, history or ownership of the place it represented. A new style of place-naming—the nonsensical—has developed with the process of Anglicisation within the past century. Can anything be more fatuous than the modern Selbournes, Holmacres, Malls and Blenheims—reminding one of Emerson’s complaint of America, that “it is whitewashed all over by unmeaning names the cast-off clothes of the country from which the emigrants came.” Can anything surpass in absurdity our Lakefields, where there are no lakes, our Hollywoods without holly or woods, our Prospects and Belview from which nothing can be seen!

(j) “His Majestie taking notice of the barbarous and uncouth names by which most of the towns and places in this Kingdom of Ireland are called, which hath occasioned much damage to diverse of his good subjects, and are very troublesome in the use thereof, and much retards of reformation of that kingdom, for the remedy thereof is pleased that it be enacted, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the Lord Lieutenant and Council shall and may advise of, settle and direct in the passing of all letters patent in that kingdom for the future how new and proper names more suitable to the English tongue may be inserted, with an alias for all towns, lands, and places in that kingdom that shall be granted by letters patent, which new names shall henceforth be the only names to be used, any law, statute, custom, or usage to the contrary.”—17 & 18 Chas. II.

Anglicisation of Irish names is a highly interesting process, following certain fixed phonetic laws. Sometimes indeed it appears to depart from law, but this is often because, for the nonce, it has come under the operation of another law. In this present connection Anglicisation is taken to signify something else than the mere translation of the name, scil:—the reduction of the Irish sound of the name to the nearest common English vocalisation. In the process the Irish gutterals and aspirates are softened or elided, quantities are changed, and the more delicate Irish vowel sounds, as well as difficult consonantal combinations, are entirely eliminated as offensive to Saxon ears. It is the Irish sound rather than the form of the name as spelled which is regularly made the subject of the process. Occasionally however, as in names embodying the word Rath, Currach (pr. Cnoc in Waterford) &c., the converse of the foregoing rule obtains, and it is the name as written, rather than as sounded, that is operated upon. In consequence of the elision &c. of gutterals, delicate vowel sounds, and difficult combinations the spelling of the name is usually much shorter in English than in Irish. Sometimes, too—where letters or combinations thereof are sounded alike in English and Irish—the name can hardly be said to change at all in spelling or in pronunciation, v.g. in Ballinaboola, Carrigsaggart (Baile na Duáile, Carrairg Sagart) &c.

In connection with Anglicisation of Irish names there are a few special phenomena worthy of notice here. The first is incorporation of the Irish article in the Anglicised name. Of this we have instances in the case of Nire, a river name, and Neddans, name of a parish in Barony of Iffa and Offa. In both these cases, and in dozens such, the Initial n is simply a remnant of the article which formerly stood before the name—An Féarán, An Uíbhriúne &c.; compare Naul, Nore, Nobber &c. Differing considerably from the change just noticed are internal alterations frequently wrought by simple metathesis. Certain Irish consonants possess a mutual affinity which renders interchange not only possible but sometimes easy. The most common interchanges are of p to n and vice versa. We have an instance of an p to n change in Lisronagh, the correct and original form of which is Lisroragh. Similarly th is sometimes changed to f, v.g. in Affane, Kilcalf, Ballylaffan (Át Meadhán, Cill Cata, Baile an Lócaín) &c. On the effects of aspiration and eclipsis in place-names there is no need to dwell, for these in place-names do not differ from the effects of aspiration and eclipsis generally. For benefit, however, of the reader who is ignorant of Irish grammar and phonetics, a word may have quite a different sound in composition from that which it has when standing alone. poll, a hole, for instance, is pronounced powl, but in the genitive singular with an article prefixed it becomes puill (Fyel), while in the genitive plural, with a chief noun and an article prefixed, it is transformed into bowl as in Bótagh na bpoll. Again fiad, a deer, is pronounced Féah, but prefix another noun and it becomes éah, as in Cluain Fiad. Very frequently the place-name is not, as we should expect, in the nominative but in an oblique case—the dative or, as we style it in this connection, the locative. This is a fact extremely puzzling to beginners. A little consideration will however make clear the mental process by which the oblique came to be substituted for the nom. case, scil.:—the customary association of the place with motion to or from. We shall meet hundreds of cases throughout the present work of datives used as nominatives, e.g., in the various Leacans (nom. leaca) &c.

There are many words—almost all unfortunately of frequent occurrence—entering into composition of place-names, which it is sometimes extremely difficult to distinguish. No word, for instance, occurs more frequently than Baile, which has been generally rendered “homestead” throughout the present work. To this are closely allied in sound, though not in meaning, the following :—Béal, a mouth, Béalac, a gap or pass, Buaile, a milking place, Bile, an old tree, and even Buille, a stroke or cast, and Balla a wall. To increase the difficulty all these, except one, are of the same gender as Baile, and two or three of them are pretty generally Anglicised bally. Compare Ballylooby (Béal), Ballybrien (Buaile), Ballymarket (Béalac), and Ballyboy (Balla) &c. In like manner Sabann “of a blacksmith,” is liable to confusion with Sabainn “of a cattle pen,” and both with Sabairge “of a calf.” Compare Cúinne a Sabann (Gowan blacksmith), Baile an Sabainn (Gowan, cattle pen) and Síd Sabairge (Gowna, calf). More difficult still is distinction between cill, a church, and coill, a wood; they are both feminine and are indiscriminately Anglicised Kyle and Kill. In Kilnacarriga it is coill, whereas we have cill in Kilcop and Kiltagan. Closely related in sound to both cill and coill is another term also, of common use in local names—Caot, a narrow strip of land. Cat and cúil, though of different genders, are perhaps the most puzzling of all. To increase the difficulty they differ but little in meaning and both generally occur only in the beginning of names. Síð, a fairy mound, and Surðe, a sitting place, though sometimes confounded, are easily distinguishable thanks to the attenuation of the initial letter of the former; neither ought be confounded as they both have been, with Siog, a streak. Compare Shean, See-Mochuda, and Cheekpoint infra. The foregoing are but a few—the most common certainly—of the words liable to confusion in Irish place-name composition. If good native Irish speakers cannot always easily distinguish them it behoves the student of the subject to walk warily, to enquire carefully, to eschew dogmatism and never, if possible, to trust to a single authority. The student’s endeavour should be to hear the name pronounced by more than one speaker of Irish, natives of the locality, who have heard the name from infancy. For neglect of local authority hardly anything will make amends. Analogy is of course helpful, so are the forms in ancient deeds and charters, so is the authority of an Irish manuscript, but local pronunciation is the most valuable of all and the student of toponomy who is not prepared to face the labour of local investigation were well advised to leave the subject alone. Nothing seems plainer at first glance than the derivation of Ballyduff, the name of a village in the Barony of Upperthird. There is a second Ballyduff in Coshmore and Coshbride, and this the reader has already had explained “Black Homestead.” He concludes at once the other Ballyduff must have a similar significance ; yet here he is mistaken. Get the native Irish speaker to pronounce it and observe the result—Báile Uí Óibh—O'Duff's Homestead. Similarly Ballyboy (Par. Tallaghorton) immediately suggests—"Yellow Homestead", but there is no reference whatever to colour and the native speaker's rendering will at once demonstrate that it is—"O'Boy's Homestead". It is possible, of course, for the local pronunciation to be corrupt, but such corruption is extremely rare and where it does occur there are generally means of detecting it. There is no branch of Irish studies in which error has been so rife as in this of place-name interpretation. Things are improving, but till recently one could not take up a book, magazine or essay which touched at all on place-names in which he did not find error abounding. Irish toponomy was the one field in which every literary dabbler conceived himself at liberty to run amuck—experimenting and theorising without responsibility. It mattered not to him that he made himself the laughing-stock of Irish scholars for the latter were so few and their voice so small there was none so poor as to owe them fear.

Regarded etymologically our place-names may be conveniently divided into six general classes or groups :—(a) and (b) those derived from natural and artificial features respectively, (c) names derived from ownership, (d) names referring to occupations or employments, and (e) and (f) historical and legendary names respectively. Physical-feature names are far the most numerous of all. These embody such terms as Sliabh, a mountain (Slievenamon); Cnoc (k), a hill (Knockaderry); Ónam (l), a ridge (Drumcannon); Cluain, a meadow (Clonmel); Dún, a bottom (Bonmahon); Másc, a plain (Macracy); Oileán, an island (Oileanavric); Inis, a river-holm (Inchanleama); Com, a mountain hollow (Coom); Céann, a headland (Kinsalebeg); Fáil, a cliff (Foylune); Cárnais, a rock (Carrick-on-Suir); Toban, a well (Toberaheeny). They include a multitude of bog-terms (Móin, Cúrraós, Eanaós, Tonn, Cladós, Riasg, feit &c.) (m); animal names in variety—Dó, Capall, Caora, Muc, Sabhar, Mármha, fiad, Comín, Þreacán, Coilead, Fuileod, Seangán (asses, spiders, mice, frogs, snails and slugs furnish no names) (n); plant names in hundreds—Leamhnán, Oírlas, Scead, Ómíreog, Saitéad, Fuinnreog, Caorlann, Beit, Copós, Giólcás, Cuileann, &c. (o), and a small proportion of mineral names—Íarann, Ór, Stínn, Gáineamh &c. (p). Names for origin of which artificial objects are responsible are only slightly less numerous than those derived from physical features. Dáile, generally rendered “homestead” throughout the present work, forms portion of no fewer than 6,400 townland names in Ireland, and cill, a church, comes a good second, for it is the first syllable of 2,890 names. Some 1,380 place-names in Ireland commence with Lios, a residence, and Dún cannot be much less frequently employed. Cáthair is comparatively rare in the Decies, and Cáireal hardly occurs at all. Roads of various kinds furnish a fairly large number of names. We have a number of terms—Dótar, Ró, Slige, Rian, Tócar, Át, Cábar and Dealacl (q). Boher, incorporating the word Dó, a cow, suggests a cattle track; Ró is a more formal highway. Crossing a plain the way would be called a Slige. Rian implies something akin to the “track” of the present day Australian bush parlance. Tócar is a raised way across a bog or swamp; Át is the road-crossing of a bridgeless stream, Cábar a footway on stepping-stones, and Dealacl the approach to a mountain gap. Dán, a field, and Þáirc, with a like signification, help to make up a large number of names indeed (r), but Gort and Gapparðe, a garden, are somewhat rarer (s).

Of names derived from ownership there is likewise immense number, but not so much variety. These names embody very generally the word Baile (Bally), signifying a homestead; to this the proprietor's name is generally attached, and the whole often appears in very Anglicised form with the ending town, as Grants-town, Powerstown &c. Occasionally Peárlann takes the place of Baile (Farrengarret); but more frequently it is topom, cnoc, bán, cairpleán, gárrán, or some other of the many words signifying land, or suggesting human occupation. Under the head of names derived from ownership we may include boundaries and land divisions. Teopla (boundary), fál (hedge), Cláirte (earthen fence) and Dall (wall) (t) are of less frequent occurrence. The chief ancient Irish sub-divisions of land under the coigeadh or province were the Tricha-ced, Bailebataich, Seisreach, Ballyboe, Quarter, Gniov and Staing. Of all these, except the two first named, we find traces in the local names of Decies. The Seisreach, Ballybo or Quarter, as well as the Carucate (from the debased Latin caruca, a plough), may for our purpose be regarded as roughly corresponding to the modern plowland or townland. The gnior ($\frac{1}{2}$ of a plowland) and the slaing (a perch) are smaller denominations. A seisreach, which we may regard as the unit of square measurement, was estimated to be roughly the area which six horses could plough a year (u). The Quarter is estimated at about 160 acres, with added bog, mountain and wood, which were not computed in Irish land measurement. It must be remembered that area was ascertained by rough estimation and not by the chain. The Seisreach (and proportionately, of course, the various higher denominations) varied in area probably in much the same proportion that its modern equivalent, the townland, does to-day. At present the average townland area for all Ireland is 325 acres—for Waterford it is 273, for Tipperary 322, and for Cork 328. I think it may be laid down as a general rule that the present townland divisions represent ancient ploughlands or seisreachs; undoubtedly, however, many divisions not previously regarded as such were called up to the townland dignity by the first Ordnance Survey, and again, with equal absence of doubt, many old townland names were then suppressed and the areas they stood for amalgamated with another or others under a single townland name. Personal names and titles, incorporated to indicate ownership, are Celtic, Danish, Anglo-Norman, Elizabethan, Cromwellian and Williamite. Thus Dungarvan tells of occupation by a Celtic warrior-chief; Templeivrick, Islandkeane, Liselan, Dunmoan give each a similar account of themselves. Dunabrottin indicates a Welsh, and Ballynangoul perhaps a Danish colonization. Norman ownership and denomination are proclaimed by Kilmacthomas, Power's Country, Roberts-town, Ballygarret, Castle Grace &c. Finally hundreds of names commemorate grants to Desmond planters of Elizabeth's day, as well as to Cromwellian soldiers and adventurers of the following century, while hundreds additional tell of conveyance to the men of many nations who came in the wake of William or since his day.

Names arising from trade, craft or employment, though more interesting perhaps, are less numerous than those from any of the three already enumerated sources. Smith-craft yields perhaps the highest proportion; the forge and furnace (Cearbóca), the "mighty man" himself who presides thereat (Gábhá), the sledge (Órra), the charcoal (Gual)—have all been commemorated (v). So also weavers and tailors have found honourable mention, carpenters moreover and stone-masons, millers, the makers of mill-stones, pedlars, knights and hangmen, but there is no place called from a sailor or a soldier, a butcher, painter, lawyer or doctor. As is natural to expect names derived from agriculture are specially plentiful. Neither the farmer himself nor the spailpin is mentioned, but the various kinds of farm work are specifically introduced—reaping, turf-cutting, milking, burning the beantail, steeping and scutching the flax &c. Nor are agricultural implements or products forgotten; they make quite a long list as they appear in the names of Decies—the plough (Seirneac, Coltar, Soc and Gablog), the spade (Rain), flail (Súirce), sickle (Corrán), scythe (Speal), grubbing-adze (Gráfan), shears (Oeinfir), also tethering-post, churn and churn dash, milk and butter, honey and grain (Cruitneac, Coimce, Eorpa, Seagáil, pír and pónaire). With names derived from occupations we may also class those commemorative of customs and amusements—fairs (Aonac), harvest gatherings (Meiteal), hurling (Camán, Tomáin &c.), patterns (Páctún), dances (Rinnce), funerals (Deárla na gCorr, &c.), hunting (Piab, Cú, Gádháir &c.), fishing (Cora, lár &c.) and trapping wild fowl (Decoy).

In names containing historical allusion the latter is often extremely obscure—so obscure as to be all but useless to the historian. Names of this general class are ecclesiastical, military and civil. The greater number of ecclesiastical names are designations of ancient churches—embodying as a rule the founder's name as Kilmacleague, Kilgrant, Kilcockan, but specifying nothing as to his identity, character or even age. Bishops, abbots and priests, friars, vicars and priors, monks and nuns, the cross, the chalice, sacred vestments, the bell, the penitential station, and the Mass furnish hosts of names (w). Holy wells are responsible directly and indirectly for many names as Toberquan, Toberheena, Toberessay &c., and glebes, under the form Dannra, appear some ten or twenty times. References to wars, battles and defeats are not by any means as many as we should expect from the past history of Ireland: terms from military architecture however abound. Most of the military names—other than those which have their origin in military architecture—are derived from the battle of Affane, 1564 (see under Affane Parish). Our place-names but rarely commemorate events of civil history—those to which there is allusion are mostly actions at law for recovery of land or decision of title, and, more rarely, plague, leprosy, and murder (x).

With the historical names are closely connected those derived from legends and superstitions. This latter class indeed furnish a by no means insignificant proportion of the place-names of the Decies. The mythic cow of St. Patrick, the magic Glas Gabhnach or Azure-hued Stripper, Caille Bheara, Fionn and his companions appear again and again, while pookas, fairies, demons, bibes and giants are legion. To wells many half-natural, half-supernatural virtues are attributed—the cure of toothache for instance (Tobberafiacal), relief of dyspepsia (Toberanaishe), removal of warts (Tobernavaithe), &c., &c.

The territory of Decies may, for our present purpose, be regarded as—at any rate, approximately—co-extensive with the present Diocese of Waterford and Lismore. Of Irish dioceses in general indeed it may be said they represent, better than any other existing divisions, the outlines and extent of old Celtic states. The diocese, for instance, with which the present work is concerned—although it embraces portion of three counties and the whole of none, and although portion of it be completely disjointed and cut off from the main area—represents, perhaps exactly, and certainly very closely, the ancient Decies as it extended at date of the Synod of Rathbreasail. Native Irish territorial boundaries, it is useful to remember, were somewhat elastic, expanding or contracting according to success or failure of tribal hostings, and to the chieftain's energy. To-day the whole scheduled region is divided into eight complete baronies, with one almost complete and small portions of three others, scil :—

The ancient tribes or families of Decies were O'Phelan and O'Bric, who shared between them the Lordship; O'Breslin, O'Flannagan, O'Foley, O'Keane, O'Meara, O'Donnchada (O'Dunphy and O'Donoghue) and O'Neill (Uí Eoghain Finn) (y). Of these the names O'Breslin and O'Bric have become extinct within their ancient principality.

Practically every one of the many thousand Irish place-names analysed in the following pages has been procured from a competent local speaker of Irish. In some cases—notably in parts of Tipperary—collection of the Irish forms was very difficult work indeed, but work which had to be done if the record was to be rendered complete. Hundreds of local sheanachies were examined and cross-examined as to the traditional forms, and great was their surprise, and sometimes their amusement, that anybody should trouble himself about things apparently so un-practical. In the course of his investigations the writer has been taken for a land valuer, for an official of the Ordnance Survey, for a Landed Estates Court agent in search of evidence to invalidate title and, at least once, for a landlord's emissary seeking testimony against a tenant who had applied to have a fair rent fixed. The Field Books of the Ordnance Survey of Ireland have been examined for light on names unintelligible to the writer; he found that the names in one hundred and thirteen small note books concerned with Waterford County had evidently been collected by O'Donovan himself personally. The Tipperary names are much less satisfactory. It looks as if the great topographer had the Tipperary names supplied to him phonetically by the officer—presumably, unacquainted with Irish—who collected them, and O'Donovan does not appear to have himself taken part in the actual collection—as in Waterford. Throughout the present work the writer has, wherever they serve to illustrate, added early forms of the name from ancient Maps, Inquisitions and Parliamentary Acts &c.

The first recorded mapped survey of any part of Ireland was made in 1586, when the forfeited lands of Desmond, in which were included portion of Decies (north and south), were marked out for plantation (2). The next Irish mapped survey was that of Strafford, but as this did not extend to Decies it need not detain us here. To this succeeded, in less than a quarter of a century, the famous Down Survey, which will be referred to repeatedly in the course of the present work, and the signification of which it may be expedient to briefly explain. On completion of the Cromwellian campaign it became necessary to applot their lands to multitudes of adventurers and soldiers. Hereupon Dr. (after Sir) William Petty, Physician to the Forces in Ireland and a man of immense business capacity, entered into a contract with the Irish Government to survey the whole country at the rate of £7 3s. 4d. per 1,000 acres. The great work was carried through in thirteen months—a marvellous feat considering the circumstances of the time. Of course the precision of modern surveying is not to be expected from Petty's work. The results, however, were sufficiently accurate for the purpose in view, and on Petty's Survey (otherwise the Down Survey) rests to-day the legal title to half the land of Ireland. In the Record Office, Dublin, are preserved the original maps of the survey; rather, perhaps, they were preserved there, for many of them were destroyed by fire in 1711. Owing to their paramount importance the burned maps were partly replaced by a series of copies made by General Vallancey, and now known as the Vallancey Maps. The series has, by the way, a rather curious history: copies of the original Down Survey Maps were being conveyed from Ireland to England when the vessel carrying them was captured by a French privateer. The latter took the prize to France, where the maps found their way to the French capital and the King's Library. Through permission of the French Government Vallancey was enabled to make the series of copies now in the Irish Record Office. The Down Survey Maps are of two kinds—Barony and Parish Maps. Of the former there remain for Waterford four and a fragment, for the Tipperary part of Decies only one, and for the Cork portion one (partly burned). Twenty-seven Parish Maps survive, scil:—Twenty-four for Waterford, two (Grangemockler and part of Newtownlennon) for Tipperary, and one (partly burned) for Cork.

Allusion to surveys suggests a passing reference to the origin and significance of the modern divisions intermediate between province and townland—scil:—County, Barony, Diocese, and Parish. Count and County are titles borrowed from the Court of Charlemagne (aa). The county is a purely English denomination based mainly on the grouping of native lordships and ranging in date of erection from the time of John to the reign of James I. When a hitherto native region became a shire or county an official called a sheriff was appointed thereto whose duty it became to execute the King's writ within its bounds. The purpose then which underlay the introduction of the county division was convenience of legal procedure. Waterford belongs to the very first batch of Irish counties created and Tipperary, in its present form, to the last. Tipperary, it is true was at a very early period (1328) created a county palatine (bb), but the jurisdiction then granted was exclusive of church lands which were extensive and were created a separate shrievalty and county under the title of Co. of the Cross of Tipperary. Baronies like counties are Anglo-Norman in name and origin, based primarily too like counties upon native lordships. The territory of a petty king who submitted was created a barony. Hardiman (cc) moreover states that, when a magnate like De Lacy received an extensive grant, he portioned it out amongst his barons to hold under him by feudal service and the estates so formed became a barony. With barony are roughly equivalent the Saxon hundred and cantred. Diocesan and parochial divisions, the individual origin of which it is extremely difficult to trace, are of course ecclesiastical, though the parish has now become one of the best known civil divisions. No doubt the origin of the ecclesiastical as of the civil divisions is to be sought and found in the geography of ancient tribal times. As the cantred corresponds in a general way with the barony and the seisreach with the townland so may the baile-biatach or biadhtach's town be regarded—but in a considerably less perfect degree—as corresponding with the parish, while the Celtic tribal territory, as we have already seen, is equivalent to the modern diocese.

The present work breaks new ground, for it is the first ever written in detailed and systematic interpretation of the place-names (Barony, Parish, Townland and Infra-Townland) of a county or ancient Irish kingdom. With its analysis of many thousand names it would be a marvel—rather, indeed, a miracle—if the work were free from error. No doubt some interpretations given therein will be found unsustainable in the light of further investigation. No doubt too a certain proportion of names stand incorrectly recorded—a consequence of the native speaker's inaccuracy, of corruption which the names have undergone, or of the writer's defective ear—none too ready to detect the finer distinctions of Irish phonetics... At the same time the writer claims that no reasonable pains have been spared to make the book both complete and accurate. Collection of the names has occupied his spare time for many years; it has involved many an excursion by rail, cycle and on foot—necessitated hundreds of enquiries by letter and required the examination and cross-examination of dozens of sheanachies in every parish of Decies. Legends, ranns and scraps of history innumerable have been garnered with the names—sometimes as it were encrusting the latter, sometimes evoked by association. Incorporation of these has not been attempted here lest it should swell to unreasonable length a work which perhaps may be thought already ultraprolix. Throughout the work questions of Irish spelling, consideration of grammar, philology and phonetics have been held as of secondary importance only. To the writer it has seemed that the first and immediately important point was to get the names; many of the latter, if not collected now, could never be recovered, whereas the spelling and grammar can afford to wait. The Townland names are arranged alphabetically under their alphabetically arranged legal Parishes, as the latter, in turn, are arranged under similarly catalogued Baronies. Legal Parishes, by the way, are the ancient ecclesiastical divisions of pre-Reformation times. In some cases these latter are curiously broken up, like Ardmore and Kilgobinet to each of which belong three or four isolated fragments. Under townlands—the names of which appear in small capitals—are given (generally without respect to alphabetical or geographical order) the sub-denominations (S.DD.), i.e., designations of sub-divisions, by-roads, wells, cliff or mountain features, occasional fields &c. No account has been made of very frequently recurring field names such as "Long Field," "Lios Field," "Field by the Road" &c., first, because such names lack permanence, and secondly, because record of them would serve no purpose proportionate in utility with the space it would require. It is not claimed for the names here presented that they constitute an exhaustive list. In fact the writer is well aware that there are hundreds of important and valuable names still at large and he will be very pleased indeed to receive from readers further authenticated names for insertion in a second edition in the rather unlikely contingency that another edition will ever be called for.

In bringing to a close this rather daring undertaking I beg to make very grateful acknowledgment of the assistance rendered me by Father Maurus O'Phelan of the Cistercian Order, who read most of the work as it went through the press, corrected innumerable errors of writer and printers, and made many invaluable suggestions. My thanks are due likewise to Rev. Dr. Henebry for elucidation of some doubtful points, to Rev. Prof. Sheehan, D.Ph., for lists of Ring place-names, and to Major Hayes and Captain Rotherham of the Royal Engineers for permission very graciously given to examine the Ordnance Survey Field Books deposited in Mountjoy Barracks, Phoenix Park. Finally I owe a debt of gratitude—of which I tender this acknowledgment in part payment—to the sheanachies of Decies, those ancient men of beautiful minds, whom I met and talked with on the roadside or in the fields, by the turf fire on winter evenings, or along the cliffs and up the Comeragh slopes on Suudays in summer. Many a difficulty their fine intelligence solved, many a quest their kindly and childlike interest helped. Was it the sunset of life adding mystic lore or the last fitful gleams of ancient Celtic culture—that sun about to set for ever?

With all its faults I believe that the present book must prove helpful to many a groper in the Celtic twilight. It marks a beginning: let others follow: each succeeding effort will be an advance. Hurler on the fence, if you would exercise your critical office with greatest effect, come down from your eminence and handle a camán yourself.

BARONY OF CONDONS AND CLANGIBBON.

HE boundary of the Desii must have been but loosely defined on the confines of Ui Liathain where there was no river, or mountain chain, to furnish a natural line of demarcation. Rather perhaps it was a more or less elastic quantity. There is some evidence—by no means conclusive, or even strong—that the Decies once extended further westwards than the present county boundary—perhaps as far as Kilworth. The Taxation of 1302 places the church of Kylword (Kilworth ?) in the Diocese of Lismore. On the other hand, the adjoining territory of Ui Liathain appears to have pushed itself, at one period, as far east as the Blackwater. (a) It is remarkable that the Diocesan and County boundaries here do not coincide. Five townlands of Cork county are within the Diocese of Lismore, while a corresponding number of County Waterford townlands belong to Cloyne. Since the Diocesan were originally derived from the Clan boundaries and are based on them, it will be more consistent with our scope to adopt the former as more likely to represent the latter than are the modern county limits. Accordingly a small portion of the Barony of Condons and Clangibbon (Co. Cork), containing the five townlands alluded to, is here conditionally treated as belonging to the Decies.

BARONY OF COSHMORE AND COSHBRIDE.

HISTORICALLY the present barony may be regarded as belonging more to Cork than to Waterford. As portion of the great Desmond territory it shared in the vicissitudes of the latter for quite 400 years. Previous to the invasion it is not easy to trace its civil history. Since, however, we are immediately concerned with the latter only as far as it bears on, or illustrates, the place names of the barony, it will suffice to note that the denominations derived otherwise than from physical features or proprietorship are practically all ecclesiastical. The school and church of Lismore have left their impress all around on the names of the country extending from the Bride to the boundary of Tipperary, and from the Cork border to Cappoquin. In the light of its later history the region under notice will not be expected to have preserved a continuity of local tradition. It seems to have been largely cleared of its original Celtic stock on the conclusion of the Desmond wars and, a quarter of a century later, the then proprietor, the first Earl of Cork, was able to boast (b) that he had no "Irishe tenant" on his lands. The barony is equally rich in scenic beauty and historic memories. The memories centre round Lismore of the saints, and beauty haunts the Blackwater "From Youghal Harbour to Cappoquin." Coshmore and Coshbride signify respectively the countries adjacent to (Coir) the Great River (Mórr) and the Bride (Bhriagáid, gen. Bhriaghae). As Irish is still a living speech throughout the barony, collection of the names and interpretation of them presented comparatively little difficulty. There are in all six parishes, of which one—Lismore and Mocollop—surpasses in size, three or four times over, the remaining five combined. The "Blackwater Fishery Case," so frequently referred to in this section, is a privately printed volume of pedigrees, title deeds, charters, &c., compiled for use of Counsel in the great law case which, with varying success, was carried on for years by the Duke of Devonshire and others, regarding fishery rights in the Great River. It contains, in convenient compass, most of the documentary matter bearing on the post-invasion history of the present barony.

Kilcockan Parish.

THIS Parish lies along the left bank of the Blackwater—southward from the junction with the latter river of the gently-flowing Bride. Of limited area, Kilcockan embraces a considerable proportion of mountain and is noted for its fine scenery. The historic associations of the parish are insignificant, and its place names of only moderate interest. Exclusive of the ancient church which gives the parish its name, and a description of which will be found in Journal of the Waterford Archaeological Society (Vol. IV., p. 213), there are two early church sites and a couple of holy wells. The number of holy wells in the Blackwater region is, by the way, remarkable; is it a consequence of the proximity of Lismore?

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYBRACK, Baile Bheag—“Speckled Homestead.” Area, 179 acres.

BALLYPHILIP, Baile Philib—“Philip’s Homestead.” Sir R. Boyle (1607) leases “one plowland of Ballyphilip to Christmas Herward—same lands recently in the possession of Arle McDono, gent.” Area, 224 acres.

(d) Póill na bPéir—“Hole of the Serpents”; in the river, close to last with which it appears to have some sort of moral connection.

(e) Bárra na Stuaice—“Summit of the Pinnacle.”

(f) Cobáil Naoimh Geibín—“St. Geibin’s Well.”

BALLYROE, Baile Ruad—“Red Homestead”; adjoins Ballybrack, with which its name contrasts it. Area, 67 acres.

BAWNLAUR, Bán Láir—“Middle Field.” Area, 102 acres.

CARNGLAS, Cárn Glas—“Green Hill”; a remarkable height overlooking the Blackwater. Cárn, from its original signification of heap, pile or cairn, has come, as in numerous instances in Co. Waterford, to be applied to a cairn-like hill.

S.D. Tobernagower, Tobair na nGaothair—“Goats’ Well.”

CROSSERY, Croisair—“Cross Roads.” Area, 216 acres.

GLENCOACH, Gleann Goach.—“Goach’s Glen.” Goach is evidently a personal name (Gough ?). Area, 181 acres.

KILLENAGH, Cillineac—“Little Church Site.” The site in question is close to north-east boundary of the townland—on the brow of the glen through which the main road runs. A “bullan” has been recently unearthed at the spot. Cill, from the Latin cella, was originally the little cell or oratory of the early missionary or anchorite. In later times, when the church had disappeared perhaps and only the cemetery remained, the word came to signify simply—the graveyard. Area, in three divisions, 892 acres.

S.DD. (a) Carndroleen (O.M.), Cárn Óigeoilín (from Óigeoil, “trifling things”)—“Wren’s Hill.” See Carnglas above.

(b) Áit na Sac, lit.—“Ford of the Bags.” As the word Sac occurs a few times in such combinations, it may be presumed to have some special force.

(c) Cárn na gCaorach—“Hill of the Sheep.”

(d) Ráirc Mhaoghnáir—“Magnus’ Field.” Magnus was, local tradition avers, a warrior and leader slain in battle here; the name suggests Danish associations.

(e) Bóthairín Fuirne—“Little Road of (the) Prong.”

KILCOCKAN, Cill Cocán—“Cocan’s Church.” Feast of the Virgin, Coc (by endearment Cocán), was celebrated on June 6th at Kilcock, Co. Kildare. (c) Area, 249 acres.

KILMANICHOLAS, Cill 'ic Niocláir—“MacNicholas’ Church.” The site of the early church and graveyard is now partly occupied by New Strancally farmyard. Area, 161 acres.

- (c) Cnocán na Craige—“Hillock of the Rock.”
- (d) Gleann and Tobair a Mhaoir—“The Steward’s Glen” and “The Steward’s Well” respectively.

KNOCKANORE, Cnoc an Fómhair (Óir ?)—“Harvest Hill.” The qualifying word is locally understood to be óir, as is evident from the old mann:—“Cnoc an óir—gáin óir gáin aithseasú.” The occurrence of óir (Fómhair) in place names has been a puzzle to etymologists, some of whom have made it “gold,” others “the golden furze blossom.” I think that, in nearly all cases, it may be safely translated and written as above. The epithet was doubtless first applied to hitherto untilled land brought under the dominion of the plough and producing its maiden crop. Area, 157 acres.

S.D. (a) An Maoilín—“The Hill Top”; this, now covered with wood, is on the west side of the townland.

(b) Site of old church (18th century) in a field on north side of the road leading (east) towards Ballyphilip.

LISGLAS, Lior Sláir—“Green Lios.” Area, 64 acres.

MONANG, Móin Fínn—apparently “Fionn’s Bog.” Why Fionn’s name should be so frequently associated with a bog is not clear. Compare Monaing—Dungarvan par., &c. Area, 83 acres.

NEWPORT, Port Ába Nua—“New River Bank.” Portion of the townland is ancient slobland reclaimed from the Blackwater and protected by an earthen bank. Newport was formerly one of the five plowlands of Strancally. (d) Area, in two divisions, 467 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobereenbanaha (O.M.), Tobairín Óeannuigte—“Little Holy Well.” This was also called Tobair Óepeteir—“Berehert’s Well,” a name recovered and verified with much difficulty. “Rounds” were made here on Sunday mornings.

(d) “Blackwater Fishery Case,” passim.

(b) Carras Óan—“White Rock,” on the river bank. This name looms large in old deeds and charts; it figured prominently in the evidence in the famous fishery case above alluded to.

(c) Poll na Dhoirrange—“Reed (or Sedge) Hole,” in the river, opposite last.

(d) Cnocán na Rónaire—“Hillock of the Beans (Vetches?).”

(e) Scart Uí ÓMangan—“O’Mangan’s Thicket”; a subdivision of seventy acres formerly well known by this now forgotten name.

(f) Ráirc na Sgoile, Seana Óaile and Rath Eiblin—“School Field,” “Old Village,” and “Ellen’s Rath” respectively. These are three field names.

SCART, Scart na Scúrcógs—“Thicket of the Bee Hives.” Cúrcógs is also applied to a pile of sods prepared for burning. Area, 185 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Rinnalack (O.M.), Rinn na Leac—“Headland of the Flagstones”; a cliff by the river side.

(b) Gleann Cremin—“Cremin’s Glen.”

(c) Poll a Cháraill—“Horse’s Hole,” in river; probably from a horse drowned here.

SLEEVEEN, Sléibín—“Little Mountain”; all uncultivated. Area, 82 acres.

STRANCALLY (popularly Old Strancally, to distinguish it from next), Spón na Caillige—“The Hag’s Nose”; from the appearance of the cliff on which ruins of the ancient castle stand. Compare Manx, Stroin, a headland. (e) Possibly the hag was the Caileach Dearg famed in local, and indeed, in general Irish legend. The castle of Strancally was erected by the Desmonds in the 16th century, probably on the site of a more ancient stronghold. In 1562 the Corporation of Youghal wrote to Elizabeth commanding the Earl of Desmond for his activity in rooting out a den of robbers who maintained a castle at Strancally, four miles up the river. James MacShane MacGerrot of Strancally was attainted in connection with the Desmond rebellion. Area, 256 acres.

“Shroncally, alias Stroncally” (Inq. Jas. I.).

(e) Moore, “Manx Names,” 2nd Ed., p. 94.

S.D. poll a Caileán—“Castle Hole”; a pool in the Blackwater beneath the Castle.

STRANCALLY DEMESNE, Cill 'ic Nioclair (?). See Kilmanicholas, above. Area, 196 acres.

S.D. . Croicín — “Little Croft,” on which the modern residence known as Strancally Castle stands.

Kilwatermoy Parish.

FROM the place-name students' point of view the present parish, though of the same general physical character as the last, is much more interesting. A few of its names are of some historic significance. The half legendary “Rian Dó Þáorais” (see under Lismore par.), which perhaps we may here equate with the “Dealac Eocaille” of the Annals, is traceable within its northern boundary. (f) According to local belief Kilwatermoy itself was the terminus of the Rian, for it was there the enraged cow overtook the abductor of her calf. Up to comparatively recent times natives of Kilwatermoy were looked askance at for the disgrace which the legend of St. Patrick's Cow attributed to their parish. In fact, a certain family, generally known by a nickname, was popularly regarded as the direct representatives of the 5th century thief.

Along the northern frontier of the parish, bordering on the Bride, a number of modern names, of the usual more or less meaningless character, have within the past generation half submerged the ancient nomenclature. Ceann Muice (“Pig's Head”) has become Headborough. Daire na mBóraí (“Churls' Homestead”) has resolved itself into Snugborough, and Cnoc na Sgeád (“Hill of the Bushes”) into Moore Hill! The ecclesiastical remains in the parish will be found briefly described in the Journal of the Waterford Archaeological Society (Vol. IV., p. 213).

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYCLEMENT, Daire Clement—“Clement's Homestead.” Area, 89 acres.

(f) See Journal, Royal Society of Antiquaries, July, 1905.

BALLYHAMLET: variously pronounced in Irish—generally, Dáile Chármháirt, evidently the equivalent of “Hamlet’s Homestead.” Area, 247 acres.

- S.D. (a) Cnoc Gearróid—“Garrett’s Hill.”
 (b) Páipe a Meaghdair—“Field of Stupefaction,” in which persons get lost owing to something “airy” about it.
 (c) “Ring’s Field,” in which a man named Ring was hanged for the murder of a tithe-proctor, nicknamed “Hi-Call,” member of the family regarded as descendants from the robber of St. Patrick’s Cow.

BALLYMOAT, Dáile an Móta—“Homestead of (by) the Mote.” The mote, from which the village or homestead was named, still exists in a ruinous condition. Area, in two divisions, 350 acres.

“Ballymotie alias Ballymoskey” (Inq. Jas. I.). “Ballynmowty” (Roll Survey of Munster). (g)

S.D. Cláir a Óin—“Trench of the Fort”; from its proximity to the mote aforesaid.

BALLYNAFINSHOGE, Dáile na Ófhuinneog—“Homestead of the Ash Trees.” Area, 209 acres.

“Ballynefinshoge” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.DD. (a) Móin na Fiadáile—“Bog of the Weeds.”

(b) Uaascaill Aimpre—“Serving Man”; a pillar stone humorously so-called.

BALLYNEETY, Dáile an Faoitig—“White’s Homestead.” Area, 209 acres.

“Ballyneetie alias Kyllineety” (Inq. Jac. I.).

CHURCH QUARTER, Ceathairnach an Teampaill. Idem. Area, 128 acres.

(g) Commonly known as the “Desmond Roll.” This is a roll of parchment, dated 26th year of Elizabeth and preserved in the Public Record Office, Dublin [Bay 2, Shelf 3, Sub-No. 71]. It recites in some 106 folios (about 24" x 18") the vast possessions of the attainted (Great) Earl of Desmond. The Desmond estate extended into the present County of Waterford: hence we find amongst the confiscated lands, the Manor, Town and Lands of Lysfynew (including Tallow), the Manor of Kylmannahan (including “Castellum de Donoghoe”), the Manor of Shehan, the Manor of Knockmoan, the Town and Lands of Stradbally (including Ballykerock, &c.), the Castle of Comeragh, &c. This valuable document will be occasionally quoted in the following pages as the Desmond Roll. A modern note on the covering membrane indicates that the Roll was tendered as evidence in the famous Blackwater Fishery Case.

CLOSE, An Clóir—“The Enclosure.” Clóir appears to be a loan word from English. (h) Area, 115 acres.

CORRANNASKEHA, Beinn na Sgeite (locative)—“Peaked Hill of the (Whitethorn) Bush.” The use of “corrán” here as synonymous with “beinn (beann)” furnishes a clue to the force of the former in place names—i.e., the point, peak, or horn-shaped portion of the sickle. The townland is entirely wooded. Area (in two divisions), 165 acres.

DUNMOON, Dún Mógaín—“Moghan’s Fort.” Area (in three divisions), 818 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cloca Úreaca—“Speckled Stones.”

(c) Cupraicín Táible—“Little Wet Place of The Wage”; perhaps it was given in remuneration for work done.

(d) Páirc a Dallán—“Field of the Pillar Stone.” The dallán is on Sullivan’s farm, and measures approximately 8’ x 18’ x 6’.

FOUNTAIN, Cill Fionntain—“Fintan’s Church.” The six-inch Ordnance Map is not correct in fixing the site of this church by south side of the present Protestant church. That is, generally speaking, the place to expect site of a pre-Reformation church. The present church, however, had no predecessor on the same, or adjoining, site. We shall find the early church site closer to the river—on the north side of the orchard underneath the Camphire—Tallow Road. This name is Anglicised, Kilkentony, in other parts of Ireland, e.g.—Howth, and Ballycroy in Erris. Area, 303 acres.

S.D. Clair a Laoig—“Trench of the Calf”; a trench, now nearly obliterated, in a field by the roadside. This is popularly associated with the legend of St. Patrick’s Cow, and may indicate line of the Dealac Eocaille, or “Youghal Road,” alluded to in the Four Masters. (i)

GLENAWILLIN, Gleann a Muillinn—“Glen of the Mill.” Area, 73 acres.

(h) See Moore, “Manx Names,” ut supra, p. 98.

(i) A.F.M. A.D. 872, and again A.D. 1123. See also Journal R.S.A.I., Vol. XXXV., p. 122.

HEADBOROUGH, Ceann Mhuice—“Pig’s Head.” Reason of the name is not obvious ; it is probably connected with some lost legend. The townland is elevated, forming portion of the ridge which runs parallel with the river Bride on its south side. Area, 536 acres.

“Camucky” (Inq. Dungarvan, 28th Eliz.).

S.DD. (a) Owenasack Bridge (O.M.), Aba na Sac—“River of the Sacks” (see Killeenagh, Kilcockan par.).

(f) “The Rack (Wreck)”; a field at one time derelict pending settlement of a dispute as to ownership.

(g) Sáipto na Cuipre—“Bark Yard.”

(h) Ráirc na Spinn—“Field of the Projecting Rocks.”

(i) Gort Grapard—“Garden of (the) Grubbing”; in allusion to a (happily) obsolete method of cultivating land for potatoes or green crops : the field was skinned with a graparrán, an instrument like a cooper’s adze, then the dried sod was burned, and the ashes spread out as manure.

(j) Leaca Dóigte—“Burned Glen Slope.”

(k) Cnoc an Fiaig—“Hunting Hill.”

(l) An Cúrracain—“The Little Wet Place.”

(m) Móin Sáirb—“Rough Bog.”

(b) Cárn a Ráthairc—“Rocky Hill (or Heap) of the View.”

(c) Tobair Croiche Maoríne—“Holy Cross Well,” at which “rounds” are still made on September 11th.

KNOCKAUN, Cnocán—“Little Hill”; on summit of the hill stands a fine dallan. Area (in two divisions), 663 acres.

KNOCKNARAH, Cnoc na Ráca—“Hill of the Rath.” The “Lios” or “Rath” which gives the latter part of the name is situated on the summit of the hill from which comes the first portion. Area, 185 acres.

“Knocknyraghie” (Inq. Jac. I.).

LYRENACARRIGA, Láthair na Carrage—“River Fork of the Rock.” Area, 275 acres.

S.DD. (a) Þáirc na mBarráic—“Field of the Barracks.”

(b) Réir an Míctinn—“Mountain Plain of the Meeting”; from a Repeal gathering addressed here by the Liberator.

MOORHILL, Baile mic Seomig—“MacShunoc’s Homestead.” The personal name still occasionally occurs in the Decies and Desmond. Moorhill and Sapperton are really sub-divisions of the old Irish-named townland. Moorhill is derived from the name of former proprietors. On Moorhill is a fine dallán of altered slate coated with quartz—7' x 4' x 21'. Area, 255 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cnoc na Sceite—“Hill of the Whitethorn”; a denomination locally as familiar as the townland name.

(b) An Soilleáin—“The Cellar”; applied to a Quay.

(c) Bóthairín an Iarainn—“Little Road of the Iron.”

SLIEVEBURTH, Stuað Óuirtp—“Burt’s Mountain”; from name of a former owner. Area, 72 acres.

SNUGBOROUGH, Baile na mBooðac—“Churls’ Homestead”; called colloquially by English speakers—Ballymuddy. There is a well possessing some (a limited) reputation for sanctity. Area, 144 acres.

“Ballynamodaghe” (Desmond Roll, Folio 96).

S.D. Cárr Sgoíte—“Stone Heap of the Flowers.”

TIRCULLEN, Tír Cúllenn—“Holly Land.” One Cornelius Gaggy farmed Tircullen under the Earl of Cork in the first quarter of the 17th century. See Gaggy's letter to his landlord inviting the latter, when passing that way, to partake of a “dish of broth” at his tenant's “poor house.” (j) Area, 185 acres.

Leitrim Parish (part of).

INCLUSION here of this parish is not, perhaps, strictly formal. In the hypothesis that the present diocesan boundaries correctly represent the ancient tribal limits the parish now introduced lies entirely outside the territory with which this work professes to deal. As, however, five or six townlands of the extern diocese and parish are included in the present County of Waterford, the divisions in question are provisionally noticed. Liat-Druim (Leitrim) signifies “Grey-Ridge”; the Taxation of Pope Nicholas, however, spells the name—Lectrum. The western boundary of the parish and diocese has a much clearer physical definition than the corresponding county boundary. The diocesan boundary is marked by a deep glen running northward from the river to the point where county and diocesan boundaries coincide.

TOWNLANDS.

CAHERGAL, Cáraíl Séal—“White Stone Fort.” It is called white either because it was whitewashed or composed of white stones (shining quartz). The fort, some remains of which survive, stood on the summit of the ridge. Area, 210 acres, largely mountain.

COUNTY GATE, Séata an Contae, from an ancient toll-gate on the county boundary. Area, 154 acres.

INCHINLEAMA, Inre an Léime—“River Holm of the Leap (Waterfall).” Léim, which is here made masc., is fem. in the modern spoken language. Area (in two divisions), 449 acres.

S.DD. (a) Seomptín—“Little Wooded-and-Stream-Watered Glen.”

(b) Leaca Muircheadair—“Murrough's Glen Slope.”

(j) “Life and Letters of the Great Earl of Cork”—Townshend, p. 76.

KNOCKAUNROE, Cnocán Ruadh—“Little Red Hill.” Area, 189 acres.

RASPBERRY HILL, An Ceathairbhao Láir—“The Middle Quarter,” because wedged in between Inchinleamia East and West. Area, 169 acres.

Lismore and Mocollop Parish.

THIS is historically and as regards extent and picturesqueness, the most important parish in the Decies territory. It is of immense size—thirteen or fourteen miles in length by twelve miles in width. At what particular period the two parishes became merged into one it is now impossible to decide. The amalgamation was probably early; at any rate the original dividing line is now, and has been for a long time, unknown. Included in the parish is a wide area of mountain, of which a considerable proportion has been brought into cultivation within the last three-quarters of a century. In the Diary and Correspondence of the Great Earl of Cork is more than one allusion to hunting of the wild deer along these hills three hundred years ago. Knockmaeldown, the loftiest elevation, is 2,609 feet above sea level; another peak—Knocknarea—is 2,149 feet. Something more than fifty years since a series of evictions, carried out under circumstances of peculiar hardship, deprived hundreds of poor people of their homes on the lower slopes. Forced back on the inhospitable heath and mountain, the evicted and their descendants have since wrung a living from the grudging soil. Julia Crotty, herself a native of Lismore, must have had this clearance before her mind when describing the eviction campaign in her novel—“Neighbours.”

As might be expected from the character of the region, mountain names are well represented. They are, however, hardly as numerous as might ordinarily be expected; the explanation is the comparatively recent occupation of the higher lands. Many names of historical and ecclesiastical interest occur in the plain and along the river banks, and a few, even in the mountain district.

The River Blackwater flows east and west through the parish for some fourteen or fifteen miles. Another river, the Bride, forms its southern frontier ; a third, the Glenshilane, marks the parish limits on the east, while the Araglinn runs some six or seven miles along the boundary with Tipperary. The remainder of the north boundary line is marked by the ridge of the Knockmaeldown (anciently Slieve Gua) range. Through the parish flows yet another stream, the Owenashad, which discharges into the Blackwater at Lismore Bridge.

A general outline of its history will serve to make clear the singular place of this parish in such a work as the present. St. Carthage, or Mochuda, expelled from Rahan, founded his monastery here in the 7th century—on the site probably of a still earlier establishment. The monastery soon grew to be a great school, to which students and religious came from all parts of Ireland, and some from beyond the seas. Its bishops, abbots, anchorites and teachers are referred to over and over again in the Irish annals. It was frequently visited by the Northmen intent on plunder. On the other hand, it received many and generous gifts of lands and churches from neighbouring princes. Before the 12th century it had extended its spiritual sway over the Northern Decies, and practically over the present County of Waterford. The Castle of Lismore, originally episcopal, passed, on the dissolution or shortly after, to Sir Walter Raleigh, and from him—through ways that are not above suspicion—to the Great Earl of Cork, by whose descendants it is still held. Some portions of the ancient ecclesiastical residence survive, incorporated in the later stronghold. The castle saw many a scene of war and revelry. It was several times besieged by the Confederates during the four years succeeding 1641, and was taken finally by Lord Castlehaven. It is stated that James II. spent a night or more in the Castle sometime in 1689. The coward, advancing towards one of the windows overlooking the Blackwater, started back affrighted at the fearful depth below.

Some reference is due to a remarkable earthwork which extends for miles through the parish, and furnishes many place names along its course. This is the legend-laden Rian Bó Ógáraig, or "Track of St. Patrick's Cow." The Rian may be identified as the ancient ecclesiastical roadway from Cashel to Lismore, and thence to Ardmore. Fifty years ago the "track" was physically traceable as a double-banked trench over many miles of primæval heath and peat. Owing to the advance of cultivation the track now survives only in patches, but tradition preserves an accurate account of almost every yard of the obliterated course. (k) Smith ("History of Waterford") alludes to a second earthwork, which he calls the "Clee Duv" (Clárde Dub) and describes as running east and west, parallel with the Blackwater, along the lower slope of the hills. No trace or memory of this fence survives. It may have marked the boundary between the arable and the mountain, or commonage, lands. For some account of the ecclesiastical remains of Lismore Parish see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., pp. 216, &c.

TOWNLANDS.

AGLISH, EÁGHLAÍR—"Church"; there is an ancient graveyard, but no remains of the church. The place was called EÁGHLAÍR na SÁGÁRT to distinguish it from E. na n'DÉIREAD, on the east side of the Blackwater. See Waterford Archaeological Journal, as above, for description of graveyard, &c. Area, 307 acres.

"Thagglish" (Inq. Eliz.).

AHAUN, ÁTÁN—"Little Ford." Area, 99 acres.

AHAUNBOY, ÁTÁN ÓUIRDE—"Little Yellow Ford." Area (in two divisions), 378 acres.

"Mahane Bwy" (Desmond Roll).

BALLINALEUCRA, ÓAILE NA LUICEÁNNA—"Homestead of the Lukes"; so called from a family, nicknamed from an ancestor,—"The Lukes"—who first settled here. The Ordnance authorities had a lengthened correspondence with the landlord's agent about this name; notwithstanding this, the official Anglicisation seems incorrect and misleading. Area, 111 acres.

BALLINARAHÁ, ÓAILE NA RÁTA—"Homestead of the Rath"; a very long and very narrow division. Area, 187 acres.

S.DD. (a) CÁIRNAIS NA SCIAT—"Rock of the Shields."

(b) AN SCÁIRBEAD—"The Rugged (Hard) Place"; a field now arable.

(k) See the present writer's essay on the subject—Journal, Royal Society of Antiquarians of Ireland, July, 1905.

BALLINASPICK, otherwise (modern affectation) BISHOPSTOWN, Dáile an Easpóis—“The Bishop’s Homestead” (i.e., See-Land of Lismore). Area (in two divisions), 839 acres.

“Ballynaspick” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Tobair na Glóire—“Well of (the) Glory”; compare similarly named well on Waterpark (Bar. Condons and Clangibbon). The well, in the present instance, is likewise accounted holy, and, judging from presence of rags, &c., of the usual votive character, is still frequented. The well is in a wood, where its overflowing waters have excavated a great pit. The basin proper of the well cannot be less than twenty feet in diameter by about ten feet in depth.

(b) Dótarín an Ultais—“Little Road of the (lit. Ulsterman) Wise Man.” Ultais has come in Waterford to signify a professor of witchcraft or magic. A few colonies of dispossessed Ulstermen settled in the Decies in the 17th century, where, it is to be presumed—from the peculiar local meaning attached to their name—they depended, gipsy fashion, largely on their wits for a living.

(c) Þairc Eocaille—“Yew Wood Field.”

(d) “Bride River,” Brigio; name of a Celtic-Irish Goddess, from root bri, strength. Compare Brigantes, the name of an ancient British nation, &c.

BALLINLEVANE, Dáile an Leamhán—“Homestead of the Elm.” Area, 438 acres.

(b) Tobair na Leabha—“Well of the Rags.”

(c) Cárrais a Comhra—“Rock of the Mark.”

BALLINVELLA, Dáile an Óile—“Big Tree Homestead.” Area, 223 acres.

“Ballinvolly” (Inq. Jas. I.) ; “Villat de Ballinvelighe” (Desmond Roll).

BALLYANCHOR, Dáile an Áncaire—“The Anchorite’s Homestead.” One of the members of the ecclesiastical establishment of Lismore was the anchor, or anchorite (l), and the present townland was part of the endowment of his office. Lord Broghill reports (1642) to his father that the Irish had taken Ballyanchor Castle, that they had shot Mr. Croker, its owner, in cold blood, and had made the rest of the garrison hang one another! Area, 118 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Tpearna—“The Place Lying Crosswise.”

(b) Cúlós Sáivín—“Siveen’s Little Corner Plot” (or “Little Corner of the Savin”).

BALLYDUFF, Baile Dubh—“Black Homestead”; from colour of the peat. Contrast Ballyduff, Kilmeadan par. On Ballyduff Lower is a ruined castle of later (simply residential) type, allusion to the erection of which by the Great Earl of Cork is made in his diary under date May 1st, 1627.—“I agreed with Andrew Tucker my carpenter to bwylde me a new castle at the broadwater side upon my Lands of Ballyduff belonging to the Shane, 43 foot long within the walles, 25 foot broad and 35 foot high as by the plot thereof and o’ indentures appeareth for which and the absolute fyneshing thereof I am to pay him in money Clii ii. x * stg. to fynde him all materiales to give him halfe a ton of barr yron and to lend him if he desire them the worcking of six draught oxen to be warranted and retorneed by him when the bwylding is fyneshed which he is bound to fynish by Xmas Day next.” (m) Area (in three divisions), 753 acres.

S.D. “Clancy’s Ford,” in river; there was also another (unimportant) ford slightly to west of the present bridge.

S.DD. (a) Sídeán—“Fairy Mount”; the name is now confined to a neighbouring townland; formerly it embraced also portion of Ballyduff.

(b) Dún a Gleanna—“Lower Part of the Glen”; old name of present village of Ballyduff.

(c) Gleann a Chó—“Glen of the Sheep Fold.”

BALLYEA, Baile Uí Aoibh—“O’Hea’s Homestead.” Area (in two divisions), 266 acres.

S.DD. (a) The Round Hill (O.M.)—An Dún, also called Lios Mór—“The Fort” and “Great Lios,” respectively. This is a structure of the mote class, with traces of double circumvallations. The mound, at present crowned with a growth of timber, is mainly of natural formation—an alluvial gravel deposit—and overlooks the former most important ford of the Blackwater. By its eastern slope wound the Rian, traditionally connected with St. Patrick's Cow, and along its southern side ran the Tobar na Naomh (see below, under Affane par.).

(b) Port Cloice—"Landing Place of the Rock." (Cloic, perhaps a pillar stone set up to indicate the "Ford").

BALLYHEAFY, Baile Uí Eára—"O'Heafy's Homestead." Area, 478 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Tobar Naomha—"Holy Well," by river side; its sanctity is not, however, very well authenticated.

(b) Baile Muicileacanach (mBuicileacanach)—"Buckleys' (?) Homestead"; a sub-division.

BALLYGALLANE, Baile Uí Giolláin—"O'Gillan's Homestead." Area (in two divisions), 243 acres.

BALLYGALLEY, Baile Ó gCeallaigh—"O'Kelly's Homestead." Area (in three divisions), 413 acres.

"Ballygwoly, alias Ballydooly" (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Tobar Geal—"White (Clear) Well."

BALLYINN, Baile Fínn—"Finn's Homestead." Area (in two divisions), 464 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Ferry Inch (O.M.)—Inre an Callairó; idem.

(b) Cottage Island (O.M.), popularly (till recently)—"Betty's Banks"; from an old lady who once kept a school here.

(c) "Powdering Tub," a hole in river close to last.

(d) Queen's Gap (O.M.), the legal gate in the salmon weir for descent of the fish.

(e) Inre na Ceapócan—"Forge Inch," close by bridge. Here dwelt, some seventy years ago, a blacksmith known as Shawn Gow, for whom John O'Lee, a local poet, wrote while in Waterford Jail, a popular Irish song, for which see Gaelic Journal, Vol. II., p. 11.

(f) Cillín; early church site; much contracted, but still enclosed.

(g) Aba na Séao—“River of Pearls.” The pearl is found in a bivalve occasionally taken by fishermen in the Blackwater. The present river is believed to be the natural habitat of this mussel or oyster which is said to be precipitated hence into the Blackwater. The pearl fishery of the Blackwater was of some note in the early 17th century. (n)

BALLYMARTIN, Baile Mhártin—“Martin’s Homestead.” On the townland is a cave through which a stream flows underground for a quarter of a mile. Area (in two divisions), 417 acres.

BALLYMOODRANAGH, Baile na mBodhránaigh—“Bodrans’ Homestead.” A family bearing this personal name resided in Lismore not many years since. Area, 146 acres.

BALLYNATIEGE, Baile na nTáigé—“Homestead of the Tieges.” The Tieges were a family of O’Sullivans, so nicknamed. Great numbers of migratory labourers came annually from West Cork for the potato digging in Waterford. These strangers, who were known throughout the Decies as Bearachs, i.e., natives of Beare, were distinguished by their ignorance of English. Some of them settled down in Co. Waterford where many of their descendants remain.

BALLYNELLIGAN, Baile Uí Niallagáin—“O’Nelligan’s Homestead.” The tide flows up to this place. Area, 67 acres.

BALLYNEROON, Baile na nEiríún—“Naroon’s (Irwin’s) Homestead.” “John Naroon (farmer) of Glanabwy (Glenaboy) had been a servant of the Earl of Cork.” (o). Area (in two divisions), 292 acres.

LISFINNY, Lior Fингин—"Fineen’s Lios." On the site of the ancient lios stand the ruins of a fine castle of the Desmonds. The portion of the stronghold surviving is the square tower, some 84 feet in height, with walls of immense thickness. This castle, at the time in possession of Mr. Jasper Douglas Pyne, M.P., was the scene of a well known half-ludicrous, half-serious incident of the Land Agitation of twenty years ago. Area, 115 acres.

"Lysfeenyn" (Inq. Jas. I.).

LISMORE, Lior Mór—"Great Lios." Lismore is styled Dear Eara Ruaidh—"Mouth of the Red Waterfall"—in a poetical address to the Duke of Devonshire by Padraig MacPhiarais. For Annals of Lismore see "The Reliquary," Vol. IV., No. 15; see also various papers on Lismore history by Mr. W. H. G. Flood in Waterford Archaeological Journal. Thanks to the zeal of Raleigh and Boyle the exact sight of hardly one of Lismore’s many ecclesiastical buildings is now discoverable. As late as the 39th year of Elizabeth an Inquisition held at the Blackfryers, Waterford, finds:—"That a

Two women wearied at the end of a day's field labour sate down to rest in shelter of a dry turf clamp. They carried smoking materials and in enjoyment of a pipe they fell asleep. A spark from one of the lighted pipes ignited the turf with the result that both women were burned to death before they could be rescued. Area, 309 acres.

Stonehouse" appears on the deed of mortgage (6th. Jas. I.) from Garrett John Fitzgerald to Robert St. John. This "Stonehouse" appears to be the churchlike building now standing in ruin a few yards from eastern boundary of the townland. The curious angle cell is still called Tig-Clóicé or "Stonehouse." See account of the ruin in Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 217. Area, 175 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cláir na nÓir—"Trench of the Sledge-hammers." The hammers were probably used in reduction of the iron ore for smelting in the "Furnaces" close by. In a farmhouse in the parish the writer has seen a large metal pot, a century—or more—old, which was made here and which continued in actual use till quite recently.

(b) Gleann na nGao—"The Glen of the Ozier Withes." The glen so named really extends from the Araglen to Ballyduff.

PARKNOE, Páirc Nua—"New Field." Area, 105 acres.

POULFADA, Poll Faua—"Long Hole." Area, 229 acres.

S.D. Gleann Uí Caomh—"O'Keefe's Glen."

RALPH, Baile an Rí—"Earthen Fort Homestead." Area, 79 acres.

RATH, An Ráit—"The Earthen Fort." Affectation is beginning to transform this name into Ralph! On the townland is a remarkable cillín, in use within living memory for the burial of murdered persons and of bodies found in the weir, &c. No one has so far suggested this church as the Sean Ráitin, near Lismore, which owned Cataldus as Bishop ! Area, 233 acres.

S.DD. (a) Ráirc na nDanes—“Field of the Danes.” Fields so styled generally contained souterrains or similar remains.

(b) Seana Snafarðe—“Old Skinned (or Burned) Fields.”

(b) Bótar a Clámpair—“Road of the Dispute.” There is some doubt as to whether this is on the present or on an adjoining townland.

SALTERBRIDGE, Sál Tíubharo. Meaning uncertain. Sál = a heel, and Tíubharo = a well. O'D. conjectures that the name is not Irish. Folks' Etymology connects a saint with a well here, beside which he left his mark in the form of his heel-print in a flag-stone. Area, 402 acres.

“Saltabridge” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Tobairín a tSagairt—“The Priest's Little Well.” Beside the well, at the gate-lodge of Salterbridge House, is the site of a thatched church of the penal days. Probably the priest lived close by the well—whence its name.

(c) Slaire Sárth—“Rough Stream.”

SCRAHANS, Scréatan—“Land of Briars and Rocks.” Area (in two divisions), 314 acres.

SEEMOCHUDA, Surðe Mochuda—“Mochuda's Seat.” Mochuda is another name for the Great Founder of Lismore. Area, 248 acres.

S.DD. (a) Mullac na Surðe—“Summit of the Sitting Place”; a low natural mound crowned by a small dry-stone enclosure, within which the writer some years since discovered an ogham inscribed pillar stone. Four similar stones had been previously destroyed by mischievous boys, who rolled them down the incline into the Araglen river which flows at its base. Surðe is fem. in Waterford.

“Maioin tSáthairtach nuaír t'éis Phœbus
 “Asgur mire im' aonair ag riubal na Surðe
 “Coir Ábann Aiguslinn mar a nitro méit-ðris.
 “'S an bhratán gleseal le fágairt fa linn.”

(b) Cillín, an early church site close to the mullac.

SHANAVOOLA, Seana Óuale—“Old Cattle Yard.” Area, 170 acres.

SHANBALLY, Seana Óaile—“Old Homestead.” Area, 178 acres.

SHEAN (in two divisions), Seathán (Beag and Mór)—“Fairy Mound.” On the townland is a small square castle ruin in fair preservation. The Castle of Shane was conveyed by Sir Walter Raleigh to Colthurst (31 Eliz.). Sheanbeg is a wedge-shaped piece of country (163 acres) projecting into the County of Cork and joined to Waterford by a slender neck not more than a perch in width. Area, 644 acres.

The two following sub-denominations are most probably on Sheanbeg :—Dótar Glar, “Green Road,” and Leaca Tighe na nAothairc, “Glen Slope of the House with Pointed Gables.”

SION; no Irish name discoverable—perhaps Séanbhán. Area, 88 acres.

TOOR, Tuair—“Cattle Night-Field.” Area, 209 acres.

TOORADOO, Na Tuairte Dubha—“The Black Cattle-Night-Fields.” Area, 124 acres.

TOORANARAHEEN; O’Donovan writes it Tuairte na Raitín—“Cattle Night-Fields of the Little Earthen Forts.” The writer, however, hesitates to accept the derivation, as he has uniformly heard the name pronounced not as above, but—Tuair an Fhearráin. Area, 955 acres.

TOORIN, Tuairín—“Little Cattle-Night-Field.” Area (in two divisions), 540 acres.

“Towrine” (A.S.E.).

TUARNAGOPPOGE, Cuairt na gCoprós—“Cattle-Night-Field of the Docks (Rumex Obtusifolius).” Area, 86 acres.

TOBBER, Tóbar Mocheoile—“St. Carthage’s Well.” The well itself, of considerable depth, is situated on a hill top. Beside the well is a cíthín, close to which stood, fifty years ago, a rude stone altar.

TALLOWBRIDGE LANDS, Port na Sláiré—“Landing Place of (by) the Stream.” This is still the popular Irish name for the small suburb of Tallow situated on the north side of the bridge across the Bride. A streamlet from the range of hills here fell into the river. Area, 106 acres.

TUBBERNAHULLA, Tóbar na hOil—“Well of the Penitential Station” (literally “of Oil”); from a famous Holy Well, the “pattern” at which is still kept on September 29th. Formerly the occasion brought an immense concourse of people from three or more counties. In explanation of the name, as above, it may be necessary to add that holy oil and penance are often equated or, at any rate, associated in popular devotional phraseology. (v) Area, 452 acres.

TUBRID, An Cúisbhraeo—“The Well”; from an old well overshadowed by a whitethorn tree. The townland is entirely uninhabited. Area, 80 acres.

Tallow Parish.

THIS Parish is restricted in area and indeed in interest—at any rate from our present point of view. It derives its name from the townland and town of Tallow, famous in the 17th century as the centre of a considerable iron industry—mining, smelting and exporting. A tolerable history of the industry might be compiled from the references thereto in the Earl of Cork's Diary. The iron ore of Tallow is described by Boate as hematite, bog-iron, and clay limestone. (w) The Earl of Cork records having sent a set of Tallow-made knives to Lady Carew as a present. In seven years the fore-mentioned enterprising nobleman exported from Tallow 21,000 tons of bar iron at £18 per ton. Cannon and shot from local iron were cast at Cappoquin in 1623. (x) Proximity of the district to Lismore accounts perhaps for the unusually large number of early church sites as indicated in its place names. For an account of the remains &c., of the ancient parish church see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., pp. 214, &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYHANDER, Baile Sanderi—“Sander's Homestead.”

Area, 149 acres.

“Ballyhander” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Cúrras na Scraobh—“Swampy Place of the Trees (Branches).”

BALLINAHA, Beal an Áta—“Ford Mouth”; the Áta is represented by the present bridge on the eastern boundary; from the bridge a ravine—the “Beal”—runs up and down the hillside in a south-west and south-east direction respectively.
Area, 118 acres.

CARRIGROE, Carrig Ruad—“Red Rock.” Area, 61 acres.

GLENABOY, Gleann Átha Buiríe—“Glen of the Yellow (River).”

Area, 224 acres.

(b) Dealac na Luime—“Roadway of Baldness (i.e., exposed, desolate country).”

GLENNAGLOUGH, Gleann na gCloc—“Glen of the (Great) Stones”; now beginning to be Anglicised—Glenstone! Area, 247 acres.

(b) Cnocán na gCúigear—“Little Hill of the Five Persons.”

I got from Irish-speaking natives the following fragment of a legend (apparently of great antiquity) to account for this name:—A man and his wife (the latter pregnant of triplets), on a long journey arrived near this place, when the woman, faint from fatigue, asked the man for a piece of his footsole. With a knife he cut off a piece and gave it to her. She demanded a second piece and got it; but when she requested a third the husband in a rage killed her. Shortly afterwards he was killed himself—how or by whom my informants could not tell—and the five are interred here in the same grave. Perhaps some other Irish-speaking residents can supply the missing parts of the story.

HUNT HILL, Cnocán an Fiaoraí—“Hill of the Hunting.” Area, 89 acres.

KILBEG, Cill Óeag—“Little Church.” From the absence of any trace or tradition of a church site on the present townland it is safe to conclude that this place is merely a cut-off portion of Kilmore. How comes it then that though named “small” it is actually larger than the division styled “great”? Probably Kilmore has, since the period of separation, still further decreased by another lopping off, or, what is less likely, Kilbeg may have increased by absorption of, or from, a sister townland. The present is an extraordinarily long and narrow division. Area, 651 acres.

KILCALF, Cill Cata—“Caha’s (or Caffa’s) Church.” The site of the early church is well defined—by the roadside, on the small townland of Loughnatouse. The latter is therefore a later cut-off portion of Kilcalf. Area (in three divisions), 975 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Sláth na mBócht—“Mountain of the Poor”; because inhabited by poor people some of whom lived by alms.

(b) Loca Liata—“Grey Ponds.”

(c) Cúrrac Íarbh—“Rough Swampy Place.”

KILMORE, Cill Thor—“Great Church.” See Kilbeg, above.

The church site is near the centre of a large field to north of Tallow-Youghal Road. A few large trees near the spot in question indicate it. Area, 359 acres.

S.DD. (a) Árdo na Ruainí—“Reddins’ Height.” This was popularly at one time regarded as an independent townland.

(b) Dóchar Durc—“Yellow Road”; the old road—Youghal-wards.

KILLWINNY, Cill Finghin—“My Finghin’s Church.” The ancient church site is close to a farmhouse near the eastern boundary of the townland. This is the third church site of the name in the county. Anglicisation of the name differs in the present instance (see Kilminghin, par. Dungarvan, and par. Stradbally). Area, 148 acres.

“Killyvynnes” (Inq. Jas. I.).

KNOCKROUR, Cnoc Ramhar—“Thick (Stumpy) Hill.” Area, 163 acres.

LIMEKILN CLOSE. No Irish name. It forms boundary of the county on the west. Area, 111 acres.

S.DD. (a) “The Pike”; site of Turnpike Gate on south-west angle of the townland.

(b) Muileán an Iarann—“The Iron Mill”; site of one of the Earl of Cork’s factories.

LOUGHSOLLIS, Loc a tSolair—“Pond of the Brightness”; in allusion to the clearness of its water. Area, 232 acres.

LOUGHNATOUSE, Leacan a tSúra—“Glen Slope of the Blanket”; in allusion perhaps to the glenside’s covering of moss. Area, 128 acres (see Kilcalf, above).

MOANFUNE, Món Fionn—“White Bog.” Area, 105 acres.

S.D. “Duck’s Mill.” Area, 105 acres.

PARKDOTIA, Páirc Dóigte—“Burnt Field.” Area, 297 acres.

PARKGARRIFF, Páirc Sárt—"Rough Field." Area, 51 acres.

TALLOW, Tulaç an Iarainn—"Mound Summit of the Iron"; from the once extensive iron works established here by the Great Earl of Cork. Area (including Townparks East and West), 647 acres.

"Tolloghe," otherwise "Tulleroghe" (Inq. 1584).

S.D. (a) "Forge Lane," old road leading to site of ancient smelting works. Slag, clinkers, &c., are so abundant that the fences are partly built of them.

(b) Óaile Hulk; meaning uncertain; a well known locality abutting the Western Road.

(c) "Ramp"; origin unknown; another name for "Forge Lane." Ramp is a term used in military engineering.

Templemichael Parish.

THE name of this parish suggests a Danish origin, or, at any rate, a Danish dedication, and its position, near the mouth of a great river much frequented of the Northmen, does not weaken the suggestion. What St. Nicholas was to the Normans St. Michael was to the Christianised Danes. Wherever the latter had a settlement of note they erected a church under the Archangel's invocation. The church was accorded a prominent position so that it would be the last object to fade from the hardy sailor's eyes as he set out on his perilous journey and the first to greet him as he returned. Older than the hypothetical Danish Church of St. Michael is the undoubtedly Celtic foundation of Molana, and, later probably than either—the preceptory of Knights Templars at Rincrew. All three have disappeared before Time's effacing fingers; of Molana only do any considerable remains survive. For a description of these last and some account of Templemichael and Rincrew see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 209.

BARONY OF DECIES-WITHIN-DRUM.

HIS Barony is enclosed by the sea and River Blackwater on three sides and by the Drom Finghin range on the other; hence its qualification—"Within Drum." Drom Finghin (the Co. Waterford portion of which is now more commonly known as Sláb Síann) has been so named from the dawn of history. It is referred to by the Four Masters under date—A.M. 3,502, as one of the three celebrated hills of Ireland, for possession of which Heremon, the first Milesian king, quarrelled with his brother, Heber. Circumstances of situation and history have favoured preservation of the Barony's ancient land names; the region is maritime, Irish speaking, more or less mountainous, and comparatively isolated. Add to this that no regular "plantation" of it ever took place. Within it lies the cradle of Christianity in the Decies, scil:—Ardmore, which continued, intermittently at any rate, to have a bishop of its own down to the beginning of the 13th century. As might be expected from the region's history, ecclesiastical place-names of much interest survive in some number. The Barony contains seven entire parishes and portion of another. Of these one or two rank amongst the most exclusively Irish speaking in Ireland. Besides the Blackwater, which bounds it on the west, Decies-Within has two small rivers—the Goish (Geoir) and the Lickey (Athainn Liceannac). Analysis or explanation of river names is not, as a rule, attempted though the day is not far off when they will be compelled to yield up their secrets to Irish philological scholarship. Geoir signifies a belly or paunch; the river derives this strange name from a sub-division of Graigue and Ballycullane townlands by which it flows near Óróiseáin na Géaríre.

Aglish Parish.

THE present Parish, of but moderate extent, lies on the east bank of the Blackwater. It is popularly known as Eaglair na n'Deiríreac ("of the Decies"), to distinguish it from a second Aglish on the western side of the river. (a) We also find the form Eaglair na nGall which the "Taxations" metamorphose into Gallys, &c. Within this parish was the chief seat and stronghold (Dromana) of the Lords of Decies. There was also a Friary of Franciscans, occupied by members of the brotherhood till quite recently and supposed to be a perpetuation or rather transplantation of the Youghal Convent—the first Franciscan foundation made in Ireland. It is considered highly probable that the Friars expelled from Youghal retired hither to await a lull in the penal storm and doubtless to enjoy such protection as the Lords of the Decies could afford them. For the local names of the parish no more, on the whole, than average interest can be claimed. An account of the church remains &c. will be found in the Journal of Waterford and S.E. of Ireland Archaeological Society, (Vol. IV., pp. 202, &c.).

The following popular doggerel, which may date back a century or so, recites some of the townlands with their characteristics:—

"Tá an Eaglair ann, agur Cúrraícin cluichí an gCraann.
"An Ghráis caol, cám; Leacán tSileasáin coinne na hAbann,
"Món na gCailleac gánn, ná teidír gan do dhinnéar ann.
"Craoibh beaga, bhríte, cul le h-uirge, 'r mná gan turfingt ann."

(b) Bulán na Speal—“Round Green Place of the Scythes.” Bulán or Bálán has a multitude of significations. It generally conveys the idea of roundness or of a round object. It designates, for instance, a round, green or heatherless, patch on a mountain side, or any kind of round spot or object contrasting in colour with its surroundings. A round patch of sunlight on the floor admitted through a hole in the door would be a “bulán,” as would be also a ring for exercising a horse, &c.

Ardmore Parish.

Ardmore was an ancient monastic and episcopal parish according to Celtic discipline; it is maritime in character, of great extent and curiously broken up into isolated fragments. Historically it is one of the most important parishes in the county—if not, indeed, in Ireland. From our present special point of view also it is extremely interesting. It furnishes a large number of cliff names, some ecclesiastical names of value, and many unusual names and forms. St. Declan established himself here in the 6th century, or perhaps in the 5th—previous to the advent of St. Patrick,—for the chronology of Declan's life is singularly complicated and uncertain. The present writer is preparing for publication, and hopes soon to be able to send to the press, a mediæval Irish "Life" of the Saint from a continental MS. The ecclesiastical remains at Ardmore consist of a Cathedral, Round Tower, primitive oratory, and, at a distance of a quarter of a mile from the main group, a second early church with holy wells, &c. There is likewise the site of a castle, frequently referred to in connection with the 17th century wars. For a detailed description of cathedral, tower, oratory, &c., see Journal of Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. IV., pp. 153, &c. Ardmore (Δρο μόρ "Great Height"), is name of the parish only. An older name according to St. Declan's Life was Δρο να γελομάς—"Height of the Sheep." Δρο να γελομάς, as a place name, still survives; it is occasionally applied to that portion of the parish lying generally to south of the main road which runs from Ardmore village to the sea at Whiting Bay. Within the specified area are roughly comprised the townlands of Ardochasty, Ardginna, Farrengarret, and Ballinamona. The village of Ardmore is spread over the adjoining portions of four townlands—Duffcarrick, Dysert, Farrengarret and Monea. That wonderful industrial revivalist, the Great Earl of Cork, developed an extensive fishery at Ardmore. In 1616 he erected a fish press and built salting and fish houses, all of which have long since disappeared (c).

A young man, the heir of considerable property, had gained a certain lady's affections. A jealous and disappointed rival contrived at a ball to put by stealth into the young man's pocket a gold cup, which he then accused him of stealing. The accused fled on horseback and, being pursued, jumped his horse over Faill Faois, calculating the animal would fail to clear the chasm and that both would be killed. The horse, however, jumped the opening and landed on a piece of earth-covered rock at the other side. Here the young man took refuge in a cave, but was tracked by bulldogs, taken finally, and hanged at this place!

BALLINROAD, Ωαίτε αν Róto—“Road Homestead.” Area, 202 acres.

BALLINTLEA, Ωαίτε αν τSteibe—“Mountain Homestead.” On this are the graveyard and ruined church of Ballymacart. Area (in two divisions), 290 acres.

BALLYCURREANE, Ωαίτε Ήi Κοράν—“O’Coorane’s Homestead.” Area, 223 acres.

“Ballycurry” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Τάμε να οΤυμιρέαννα (οΤυμιρέαννα)—“Field of the Devotional ‘Rounds.’”

BALLYGUIRY. (See under Dungarvan par.). Area, 261 acres.

BALLYKILMURRY, Ωαίτε μίκ Σιόλλα Μύρη (also Ωαίτε Ήi μίκ Σιόλλα Μύρη)—“MacGillemory’s (or O’MacGillemory’s) Homestead.” “MacGillemory, a leading Norse family in Waterford, was said in later times to have come from Devonshire.” Journal R.S.A.I., Sept. 1901, p. 302. Area, 113 acres.

S.DD. (a) Φαίλ αν Ήιρζε—“The Water Cliff.”

(b) Φαίλ να Σαοράς—“Cliff of the Sheep.”

(c) Δαν Θρασάν—“The Little Bank (or Border); a bank of land running into the sea.

(d) Σαρράις να Ροντά—“The Seals’ Rock.”

BALLYNAHARDA, Ωαίτε να ή-Διρνε—“Homestead of the Height (Ridge).” Area, 266 acres.

BALYLNAGLERAGH, Ωαίτε να Στέιρεας—“Clergy Town.” Area, 98 acres.

BALLYNAMERTINAGH, Ωαίτε να μΟιρτίνεας—“Homestead of the Small Bundles” (O’D.). Although this is O’Donovan’s explanation of the name, I regard it with considerable doubt. It seems much more probable that the qualifying word represents a family name, scil:—Martin or Merton. The Act (16 Chas. I.) for adjusting differences between the Earl of Cork and the Bishop of Waterford enacts that “the Castle in Ardmore lately builded by Sir E. Harris with the two plowlands next adjoining called Carrigduff and Ballymartinagh be made mensalls for ever of the Bishoprick.” Μαρτίνεας is a cripple or deformed person; hence the name may be “Homestead of the Cripples.” Area, 336 acres.

- S.D.D. (a) Áit na Sgálaí—“Ford of the Planks.”
 (b) Tobair na Tuinne—“Well of the Quagmire.”
 (c) Ráirc na Sgíne—“Field of the Knife.”
 (d) Ráirc a Chlampaí—“Field of the Contention.”

 (f) Cláir na Muc—“The Pigs’ Trench”; a ravine on the coterminous boundary of this townland with Ballybrusa and Ballylane.

BALLYNAMONA I., Baile na Móna—“Homestead of the Bog.” There are, strangely enough, two townlands of the name in the parish. Area (in two divisions), 464 acres.

- S.D.D. (a) Póill Ruadh—“Red Hole (Cavern)”; a subdivision of some 300 acres.
 (b) Ráirc na oTúrcach—“Field of the Turks (or Turkeys).”
 (c) Tig Caillé Beara—“Caille Beara’s House”; this is an unmarked cromlech standing close to edge of the cliff (f).
 (d) Faill a Sglinntín. This is locally understood to mean “Cliff of the Streamlet.” There is a similarly named cliff on Ballinaharda, and in both cases the cliff so designated is between two small glens running down to the sea.

BALLYNAMONA II., Baile na Móna—“Homestead of the Bog.” This townland, of same name as last, is separated from the latter by some miles; they cannot therefore be regarded as portions of a common Ballynamona. Area, 738 acres.

BALLYTRISNANE, Báile Uí Tresnáin—“O’Tresnan’s Homestead. Area, 281 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cill—“Church.” The name is here applied to two fields (formerly one) in which is an early church site and, close to the latter, a Holy Well.

CARRIGEEN, Carrairín—“Little Rock.” Area, 46 acres.

CARRONAHYLA, Cáirn na hAdróile—O’Donovan renders it “Cairn of the Adze” and surmises that the monument marks the grave of a cooper. The name may be Cáirn na hÁille, “Cliff Cairn”; or possibly C. na Áible—“Cairn of Fire Spark (or ‘Electric Flash’).” Area, 157 acres.

CARROWBEG, Cáirn Úeag—“Little Cairn.” Area, 230 acres.

CARRONADAVDERG, Cáirn a Dáim Óeiríg—“Cairn of the Red Ox”; a remarkable eminence visible for many miles in three directions. A wild legend accounts for the name. Fionn and a contemporary giant had a “difference” as to ownership of a certain red bull. In the heat of dispute the rival proprietors seized each a horn of the beast and pulled the creature in twain. Something over a century since an enterprising man named Gilmartin erected a windmill on the summit of the Cairn. Area, 357 acres.

CLASHBRACK, Cláir Óneac—“Speckled Trench.” Area, 226 acres.

CLOGHERAUN, Cloispeáin—“Stony Place”; entirely uninhabited. Area, 202 acres.

(g) Tobair na Úd Finné—“Well of the White Cow.”

(h) An Cill, a field in which is an early church site.

Clifwards (E. to W.):—

(t) Faill Dúngarvan—“Dungarvan’s Cliff.”

(u) Faill Iffinn—“Hell’s Cliff.”

(v) Faill na mBriualán—“Cliff of the Berries.”

(w) Cúil Úréan—“Stinking Corner”; so named from the odour of decaying seaweed.

CROSSFORD, Áit na Croíre—“Ford of the (Termon?) Cross.” Area, 102 acres.

CRUSHEA, Croír Aoða—“Aodh’s Cross.” Area, 171 acres.

“Crosshea” (Inq. Eliz.).

S.D. Caerlais Aoða—“Aodh’s Rock”; in the sea, but uncovered at low water. In the 6th century this rock would probably have stood well over high water.

CURRAGH, Cúrrac—“Swamp.” The sandy soil is peculiarly suited to potatoes which are grown here extensively by the fishermen. Area, 291 acres.

“Cúrrac Tírm na Sac” (Old Saying).

(b) Údarín na Leasan—“Little Road of the Glen Slope,” running east and west.

(c) Údarín a Leara—“Little Road of the Lios”; parallel with last.

(d) Tobairín Muire—“Mary’s Well”; this however has no character for sanctity.

(e) Caerlais a Phána—“Rock of the Pound.”

(f) Pháirc na Teibhann—“Field of the Boundary.”

(g) Tobair Óáidh Óig—“Young David’s Well.”

(h) Údarín na Larópe—“Little Road of the River Fork.”

(i) Cúlaim—“A Field.” See under Corbally, above. In the present instance, however, the name is applied to a field! Cúlaim, as a place name, occurs four times in the county, scil:—three times in this parish and once in Corbally or Rathmoylan.

DRUMSLIG, Órom Stioga—“Shell Ridge.” Area, 529 acres.

S.D. (a) Mine Shafts (O.M.), Mianac an Iarainn—“Iron Mine.” Iron Ore was worked here on a small scale in the beginning of the last century. Two of the workings have special names, scil:—Mianac Mór and Mianac Beag.

DUFFCARRICK, Caerlais Óub—“Black Rock.” Area, 178 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Loc Mór—“Great Pond”; a lagoon of brackish water.

(b) St. Declan’s Stone (O.M.); a stone to which wonderful healing, &c., powers are popularly attributed. It lies on the strand, and on the Saint's feast day persons desiring cures crawl through a cavity beneath it and perform various devotions. This is the celebrated rock on which the Saint's Bell or altar stone was carried across the sea from Wales.

(c) Ústairín a Trianne—“Little Road of the Trench.” This modern road represents portion of the ancient highway which ran northwards from Ardmore to Cashel. In other portions of its course the road is known as the “Track” or “Trench” of St. Patrick’s Cow, &c.

(d) Faitce—“Hurling Green.” This was a sandy space, thirty acres in extent and grass overgrown, which lay between the present partly washed-away strand road and the sea. Only about two acres of the green remain; the balance has been carried away by the sea.

(e) Craonnóis—“Artificial Island.” This has entirely disappeared. The site, which is now far below high water mark, must have been a tideless lagoon at the date of construction of the Crannog (g). Curiously enough Craonnóis is the Irish for a pulpit and the dicky of a coach; the idea of isolation, on an eminence overlooking one’s surroundings, underlies the various uses of the word.

(f) Dáire a Mhaorain—“The Dog’s (or Wolf’s) Field.”

DYSERT, Tíreapt—“Hermitage.” There are ruins of a church—probably of the 12th century, also a Holy Well much venerated, and some mediæval stone crosses of rude character. On this townland (W. boundary) there was also a castle which stood a short siege in 1642; no traces survive. Area, 224 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Coolamore and Coolabeg (O.M.), Cúlaim. See under Curragh, above.

(d) Faill na Daraige—“Cliff of the Oak Tree.”

(e) Faitce Mór—“Great Hurling Green” (perhaps, for Fatac Mór—“Great Giant”); the name is applied to a huge cliff.

GARRYNAGREE, Gárrairde na gCrotó—“Garden of the Cattle.” Area, 308 acres.

GATES, Na Geataidé. Idem. Here, in former times, stood the commonage gates, on the boundary of the then reclaimed land. Beyond the gates, to the north, stretched primæval mountain. Reclamation, in later times, advanced half a mile further towards the mountain, but recently there is a receding movement which promises to give back to the grudging waste most of what, with God knows how much toil, has been wrung from it. Area, 97 acres.

GLENALEERISKA, Steann a Léin-Uirse—“Glen of the Clear Water.” Area, 84 acres.

MONAGOUSH, Móin a Ghúmhaí—“Bog of the Fir.” Area, 270 acres.

S.D. Mine Head (O.M.) ; so called from some lead and silver mines formerly worked here. In connection with the abandonment of the enterprise a story is told locally of a miner employed in the workings who, when he came up for dinner, was in the habit daily of sharing his meal with a certain wild crow of which he had made a pet. In the course of time the bird grew to recognise both his patron and the dinner hour. His companions often amused themselves at the expense of the kind-hearted miner, and made fun of his strange protégé. One day, the crow at dinner became quite facetious, and lifting its benefactor’s hat off its owner’s head flew away with it. The miner was obliged to follow in pursuit and had got some distance from the works before he recovered his headgear. When the irate workman got back to his shaft his companions had already descended and were entombed below, for the mine had caved in immediately on their descent ! On Mine Head is one of the chief lighthouses on the Southern Irish Coast.

(e) Báirc na nGhlampuirí—"Field of the Grampuses." The grampus is a species of dolphin, common along the Irish coasts.

(f) Cloch a Dáta—"Stone of the Dye." This is a dressed block of limestone (4' 6" x 2' 3"), quadrangular based, and a truncated pyramid in shape, which lies at present before the hall door of Monea House. It is apparently the plinth of an ancient cross. The hole for reception of the shaft came in a less reverent age to be used as a dye bath, hence the modern name (k).

MOYNG, Muings—"Morass." Area (in two divisions), 513 acres.

Mt. STUART; a modern name; no Irish. Area, 196 acres.

(i) See Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IX., p. 228.

(j) In the history of Round Towers the story of the present tower claims a place apart. The Ardmore tower stood a siege in August, 1642, on which occasion ordnance was actually brought into use against it. See Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., pp. 56, &c.

(k) A writer of the Vallancey School translates the name—"Stone of the Daghdha (Tuatha De Danaan King)." See "Kilkenny Archaeological Journal," 1850, pp. 43, &c. REANAGULLEE, Réir na gCoillíse—“Mountain-Plain of the Grouse”; thus O’Donovan,—perhaps however it would be safer to class the name as of doubtful meaning. Area, 305 acres.

Ballymacart Parish.

This is a very small division—of the same general, physical &c., character as Ardmore. It contains only two complete townlands with portion of four others. A feature—unique, as far as the writer is aware—is the situation of the ancient church, scil:—immediately without the present boundary of the parish. For further details see Journal of Waterford and S.E. of Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. IV., pp. 197, &c. In 1280 (Jan.) there is record of a grant in fee to Robert de Stapleton of the land of Balimaicort, a messuage called Knockedrum, 80 acres in Ballicullan, and the townland of Baliabraam (n).

(m) See note (k), above.

Clashmore Parish.

Historically this is, after Ardmore, the most important parish of the Barony. Like almost all parishes attached to important Celtic foundations Clashmore is of large extent. Its nomenclature is of perhaps more than average interest; there are a dozen, or more, very unusual names, and a few names which are of a puzzling character. St. Cronin Mochua, a disciple of St. Carthage, founded the monastery and church of Clashmore, and here he and his household were murdered by pirates in or about 631. For further information see Journal of Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. IV., pp. 201, &c.

AUGHNACURRAVEIL, Áit na Siarnéil. Somewhat uncertain. O'D. renders it—"Ford of the Midges (Córrlathair)."Siarnéil looks like a Celticised corruption of the English word "Gravel"; Siarnéal (Gravel) is, however, masc., while the word here is (if in the sing.) feminine. Further investigation is needed. Area, 287 acres.

BALLYCURRANE. (See under Ardmore par.) Area, 232 acres.

BALLYHEENY, Baile Uí hInnre—“O’Heeny’s Homestead.” This is an Ulster family name. Local Seanchaidhes tell that the Castle of Ballyheeny (it was really a stronghold of the Desmonds) was owned by an O’Heeny who, for her fortune, left a daughter an old horse’s skin and as much land as it would cover or enclose. The quick witted lady cut the hide up into thin strips of which she made a rope long enough to enclose the townland of Ballyheeny, which thereupon became her property. Area, 381 acres.

(p) Cronan, patron of Clashmore, is better known locally as Mochua—“Fair Star, offspring of victory, glowing mass of gold, bright pillar, Cronán holy, without reproach; white sun of Glaís Mór.” Calendar of Oengus, Ed. Whitley Stokes.

(q) “Búg—Plant or herb of green colour.” Hogan, “Irish Names of Plants.”

KILMORE, Cill Mór—“Great Church.” The early church site is surrounded by an immense embankment of earth—the largest of its type in the Decies. This great earthwork, elliptical in shape and nearly 300 yards in greater diameter, is composed of walls still no less than 25 feet high in parts, measured from bottom of the surrounding fosse. The trench itself is 10 feet deep by 17 in width. Area, 98 acres.

KNOCKANARIS, Cnoc an Fiaoraír. Meaning uncertain; apparently—“Hill of Crookedness,” but it may be C. an Fiaðraír (“Fever Hill”), from the fact that fever patients were removed thereto for sanitary reasons in time of pestilence, or, more likely perhaps, C. an Árúir (“Hill of the Dwelling”). Area, 667 acres.

The sub-division (about 60 acres) so named lies close to, and on, the coterminous boundary of this townland and Garranaspig, and embraces portions (about 30 acres) of both. Forty years ago there was here a considerable village known as “The Cathair.”

Grange Parish.

AN older name of this parish is Lios Seineáin—“Guinan’s Lios” (“Lisgenenan”—Visit. Books, E., 3. 14, T.C.D.), from an earthen fort, not now existing, but the site of which is just traceable on boundary of the townland of Cush. Grange (Grainread) is, of course, an English word common enough in place names. It means the out-farm of a religious house or body. Grange parish, which is of moderate extent, is of the same general (physical &c.) character as Ardmore and Clashmore. Unlike the two latter however it has practically no sea frontage. The church remains are described in the Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 196. Within the ill kept graveyard attached to the ruined church stands a stunted and imperfect ogham-inscribed pillar stone on which Mr. Brash could only read “Amogi.” (s)

BAWNARD, Bán Árdo—“High Field.” Area, 50 acres.

BAWNACOMMERA, Bán a Chamara—“The Seaweed Field” (O’D.). The quality of this land is vouched for by the fact that the mythic “Síl Sílmhead” spent a night here; hence she went for another night to Ardmore, and thence again for a similar period to the Ferry Point. The “Síl Síl” was a legendary cow. We shall meet with her again many times in the following pages. Area, 110 acres.

Kinsalebeg Parish.

THIS Parish Ceann tSáile—"Head of the Tide (or 'Salt Water')" is so called from its position. Its qualification, Deas, distinguishes it from Kinsale, Co. Cork. MOORD, An Móird (An Mag Árro)—“The High Plain.” The height here is insignificant ; it can only be called an elevation in relation to the slightly lower flat extending to the east. Area, 62 acres.

S.D. St. Bartholomew’s Well (O.M.), Tobair Pháirtanáin. Idem. This is a well-known holy well at which a pattern is held and “rounds” made on August 24th.

Ringagonagh Parish.

THE place names of the Parish are as interesting and as numerous as the peculiar position and circumstances of the region warrant one in expecting. This parish forms the extreme portion of a prominent headland and is bounded by the sea therefore on three sides and by untilled and unoccupied mountain on the other.
Ringagonagh, or Ring as it is popularly called, is one of the most Irish speaking parishes in Ireland. Needless to add, the parish name—Rinn Ó gCuana ("O'Cooney's Point")—is not ecclesiastical in origin ; it is written " Rin Igoneighe " in an Inquisition of the time of James I. For a description of the ruined church, &c., see Journal of Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. IV., p. 198. Many of the sub-denominations in this parish were collected for me by Rev. M. Sheehan, D.D., D.Ph., Maynooth College. To Dr. Sheehan I beg likewise to express my indebtedness for many valuable suggestions as to the meaning of the sub-names in question.

(c) Cúrraós Mór—"Great Swamp."

(d) Tor Feadra—"Elder Bush."

BALLYNAGOUL, Baile na nGall — "Homestead of the Foreigners." A local tradition, which seems to be English in origin (and therefore unreliable), states that the foreigners were the crew of a Turkish vessel (Algerine Rover) wrecked here —hence Rinn na nTúircaé. Area (in two divisions), 180 acres.

S.DD. (a) Bóthar a Úanra—"The Glebe Road."

(b) Bárra Baile—"Homestead Summit."

(h) Tráis (not Tráis)—"Strand."

S.D.D. (a) Na Raiciníde—"The Flint Rocks"; a group of rocks under low-water mark.

CARRIGEEN, Cárraigín—"Little Rock." Area, 119 acres.

CUNNIGAR—Coinigear—"Rabbit Warren"; also called "An Coir." This is the well known sand hill extending across Dungarvan Bay. Area, 44 acres.

GORTADIHA, Gort na Daibhce—"Garden of the Cauldron (or Hogshead)"; so named, no doubt, from tub-like dips or hollows in the soil. Area (in two divisions), 510 acres.

(e) Ráipe na nlongaċ—"Field of the Clawed Things (Crabs ?)."

(i) Gárraíde Rinn—"Gardens of (the) Point."

(j) Dótaír a Póinnte—"The Point Road"; an old roadway to Dungarvan. This ran down to the "point," whence there was a track across the mud-slob to meet Dótaírin na Trága at the far (Dungarvan) side. The track, scarcely ever used now, was of course covered by the sea at high water.

HELVICK; meaning unknown; it is almost certainly not Irish and is generally considered Danish. More probably however it is a family or other personal name, as witness the form "Helvickes-head" in an Inquisition of James I. Area, 231 acres.

S.DD. (a) Carrraig an Oileáin—"The Island Rock."

(b) An Sánta—Meaning unknown.

(c) Carrraig Cáubáin—Meaning unknown. Perhaps C. Cá Úáin—"White Hound Rock." Cá (sing.) is not inflected in Waterford.

(q) Cúilín Antoinne—“Antony’s Little Nook.”

(r) Cúil Páircéar—“Parkester’s (?) Nook.”

(s) Carras a Tormair—“Rock of the Measuring”; this is known to English speakers as Helvick Rock, and is always submerged.

(t) Carras Óub—“Black Rock.” This rock, near the middle of the bay, is marked Carrickapane on the Ordnance Map, and Irish speakers sometimes call it Carras a Péine, the meaning of which is doubtful.

(u) Carras Óaltar. Owing to the extraordinary gutturalisation of t in local pronunciation this name was very difficult to catch. Óaltar appears to be a personal name—almost certainly not Irish.

(v) Carras an Scamail—“Rock of the Shadow.”

(w) Carras na bPotaíde—“Rock of the (Lobster) Pots.”

(ii) Fáil an Úacair. Uncertain; perhaps Úacair for Úcaire—“Spawn.”

KILLINOORIN, Cill an Uairteann ; uncertain. O'Donovan renders the qualifying term "The Cold Spring." The ancient church site has, so far, eluded discovery. Area, 84 acres.

BARONY OF DECIES-WITHOUT-DRUM.

BARONY names are almost always of great antiquity; they are generally ancient territorial denominations. Decies perpetuates the name of the ancient Desii race and region. The present barony is so called to distinguish it from a second Decies—known as “Within Drum”—from which it is separated by the Drom Finghin range, referred to in the Irish Annals as far back as the year of the world 3,501.

Under the date in question the Four Masters state that Heber quarrelled with his brother Heremon for possession of this—one of the three most excellent hills in Ireland. The Drum (Drom) range extends from Dungarvan Bay to the western boundary of the county and beyond. The present is far the largest barony in the county: it comprises within its boundaries no fewer than nineteen parishes—or rather eighteen parishes with portion of a nineteenth. It is exceptionally rich in its local names—rich in their number and in their variety. Not only are the names numerous and varied, but, consequent on the use of Irish as a living tongue throughout the region, it was quite easy in almost every instance to get them from the lips of native speakers. Towards its eastern end considerable portion of the barony was known till recently as Paoracha, or Power's Country—a name which extended likewise to the adjoining parts of Upperthird and Middlethird. Noticing the number of Powers (locally known as Poore) and Barrons on a County Grand Jury list a witty judge once described Waterford as “a poor and barren country.”

Previous to the confiscation period O'Briens, McGraths and Fitzgeralds occupied respectively the Comeragh, Tooraneena and Blackwater districts of the region now under review.

Affane Parish.

CONFORMING to the general rule the parish name in the present instance is derived from name of the townland on which stood the ancient parochial church. Comprised in the parish is a considerable stretch of mountain, but, as the latter was practically unoccupied till less than a century since, mountain names are not numerous in proportion. Throughout the parish ran (N. to S.) the ancient highway from Cashel to Ardmore, likewise a branch of the same which made a detour via Lismore, and finally another ancient road—Dotar na Naoth, which led east and west, and crossed the Blackwater river at Affane. For a detailed account of the Cashel-Ardmore road—known as the Rian Ós Pháirtuis—see an article by the present writer in the Journal of the Royal Society of Antiquaries, Vol. XV. (Fifth Series), p. 110, and for a description of the ecclesiastical antiquities of the parish see same writer's paper in Journal of the Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. II., pp. 195, &c.

TOWNLANDS.

AFFANE, Át meadóim—“Middle Ford.” In local pronunciation the initial letter of the qualifying word is aspirated contrary to grammar rule. The Blackwater was fordable in three places below Cappoquin, and it is from the middle, or chief, of these that the present townland gets its name. A battle was fought here in 1565 between the Earls of Desmond (Garret, son of James,) and Ormond (Thomas, son of James,) in which the former was defeated with great loss. Many memorials of the fight survive in the place names of the vicinity. Two fairs were held here—on May 4th and November 22nd. Area (in three divisions), 371 acres.

S.DD. (a) póill a phúca—“Hollow of the Pooka”; a limestone cavity surrounded by a low wall.

(b) Réitis Bealaig a tSleibe—“Graveyard of the Mountain Roadway”; within Captain Power’s lawn. It is probable that the slain were buried here after the battle above alluded to.

(c) Tobair a Maoir—“The Steward’s Well.”

(d) Finisk River (O.M.), Fionnúirge—“White (Azure) Water”; for a river name the present seems suspiciously easy of translation.

(e) Póill a tSagairt—“The Priest’s Pool”; called from a priest who was drowned there.

BALLYHANE, Baile Uí Seagáin—“O’Shane’s Homestead.” Area, 407 acres.

BAWNFOWN, Bán Fionn—“White (Azure) Field.” Area, 187 acres.

S.D. Aughnamara (O.M.), Áit Máine—“Mary’s Ford.”

BELLEVILLE, Cill Darachín—“Darahan’s Church” (see Kilderraheen). Lag a Dácuir (“Hollow of the Bakehouse”) seems to have been another name (alternative or older)—perhaps only a sub-denomination. The place also bore for a short time the fancy name—“Bettyfield.” Area, 140 acres.

S.D. Bealleac Bridge (O.M.), Béal Lice—“River Mouth of the Flagstone.” Compare Belleek, &c. The name Bealleac is popularly extended in the present case to a sub-division.

BLEANAHOURSE, Béan na hAbha Ruairí—“Groin of the Grey River” (O’D.). Area, 58 acres.

S.D. “Turnpike” (O.M.), at junction of roads, near north-east angle of the townland.

COOLAGORTBOY, Cúil a Ghairbh Úirí—“Corner of the Yellow Field.” Area, 421 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Cuaire na Lairde—“Cattle Field of the River Fork”; at County Boundary.

(b) An Cúrrós (cúrrós)—“The Wrinkle”; a field name.

(c) Bán na Coirte—“Bark Field.”

CARRIGEEN, Carrraigín—“Little Rock.” A limestone quarry on the site has almost obliterated the “Little Rock.” Area, 256 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Bóthar na bPótós—“Road of the Puddings”; probably a reference to the battle of Affane.

(b) Tobair Fionnuirge—“Clear-Water Well.”

CLOTTAHINA, Clot a Ceine—“Fire Sod.” (a) Thus O’Donovan—but the derivation can hardly be admitted. C. Áit (Áitce) ceine seems more likely. Taking clot to be a sod (O’D.) we have “Sod of the Fire Kiln.” This, to be sure, is not very intelligible, but it is as good as O’Donovan’s “Fire Sod.” Formerly each village had its corn-kiln in which the grain was dried before treatment in the domestic quern or the local mill. On the town-land is a very well known souterrain. Area, 343 acres.

S.D. Gleann na Leaca—“Glen of the Flagstones”; on west boundary.

COOLANEEN, Cúl Áitnín—“Little Antony’s Corner.” Area, 144 acres.

COOLNACREENA, Cúl na Críne—“Corner of the Withered (Tree)” (?). Area, 362 acres.

(b) Árto Perolin—(?).

(c) Tealacl na Saigeara—“Roadway of the Javelins”; perhaps another allusion to the battle.

CRINNAGHTAUN, Cnuinneachtán—Meaning uncertain. Probably for Cnuinneachtán—“The Wheat Growing Place.” Area (in two divisions), 376 acres.

S.D.D. (a) One Mile Stream (O.M.) ; on east boundary.

(b) Dothar a Mhacaire—“Road of the Battle Field.”

CURRAGHROCHE, Currach a Roirtig—“Roche’s Morass.” Area, 514 acres.

S.D. Tobair Coluim Cille—“St. Columba’s Well”; one of the most noted of the many holy wells of the Blackwater region. Fifty years ago it was much resorted to for devotional purposes.

DROMANA, Órom Ana or Órom Eanraig; meaning doubtful. O’Donovan makes it Óromanna—“Ridges,” but this is certainly incorrect. “Ana’s Ridge” is more likely. Ana, a lady of the Tuatha De Danaans, became Queen of the Stuag or fairy hosts of (a) “Morgan Evans of Clotthenny” (Will of Earl of Cork, 2642).

Munster. Her name occurs apparently in perhaps half a dozen further instances throughout the Decies. At Dromana was a famous castle of the Desmonds, now metamorphised into a modern mansion. It is stated that portions of the present castle date from the time of King John. The original castle, together with the Decies property (by which is here signified that portion of the ancient Desmond estate lying on the east of the Black-water), came into the possession of the Fitzgeralds in the first half of the 13th century, through the marriage of John, head of the Desmond sept, with the heiress of Thomas FitzAntony, Lord of the Manor of Decies, &c. This Decies property remained an integral part of the Desmond estate proper till the death, in 1457, of James, the 8th Earl. To his younger son Gerald the 8th Earl in question bequeathed Decies and Dromana Castle. A granddaughter of Gerald's was that Katherine Fitzgerald known to historians as the old Countess of Desmond who, it is claimed, died at the age of 140 years. In the Park at Dromana is still pointed out the venerable cherry tree in the endeavour to climb which the aged lady received a fall that resulted in her death ! The Castle of Dromana was enlarged and partly rebuilt by Gerald and in the possession of his descendants it has remained for seven centuries. Though uniformly loyal to the English power the Dromana Fitzgeralds became in habit and living as Irish as the Irish ; for instance, Sir Gerald Fitzgerald, Lord of the Decies (temp. Henry VIII.), could not speak a word of English. Some reservations in the grant of Decies to the house of Dromana led to trouble, as in that stormy age they were well calculated to do ; in 1565 the head of the Desmond clan (Gerald, 15th Earl) claimed rights of chieftainship over Decies. Practical insistence on this claim led to that bloody skirmish dignified by the title of Battle of Affane. (b) John Fitzgerald, Lord of Decies, at his death, in 1664, left as his heiress an only child, Catherine, a minor, who married Edward Villiers, eldest son of Viscount Grandison. The eldest son again of this union was John Villiers, created Earl of Grandison in 1721. John's sister, Harriet, became mother of William Pitt, the Great Earl of Chatham. Earl Grandison was succeeded in title by his grandson, George, who gambled away much of his fine patrimony. Earl George left no male heir ; his only daughter, Gertrude, married Lord Henry Stuart, son of the Marquis of Bute—hence the present double name of the Decies family, Villiers-Stuart. Colonel Villiers-Stuart, son of the above-named Lord Henry, was the popular candidate in the famous and still remembered election of 1826, when the county from Blackwater to the Suir rang with the refrain : “Stuart for ever and down with the Mail man.” Till recently the year mentioned was universally known in Waterford as—“The Year of Stuart’s Election,” and indeed it is frequently referred to under that title to the present day. One of O’Connell’s monster meetings was held on Dromana Hill. Area, 759 acres.

S.DD. (a) “The Bastile,” locally corrupted to “Back Stile”; an eminence close to Dromana Castle, and adapted for defence of latter.

(b) Cárras a Teampán; meaning doubtful; Teampán is, ordinarily, “trouble.” Here it seems to signify a standing stone. (c) The word occurs twice in Waterford place-names. The present name has a respectable antiquity, for we find it in an answer filed by Villiers, May, 1684.

(c) Dearna an Fiaidh—“Gap of the Deer”; a point on the hill-top at the south boundary of the townland.

(d) Clair a Mairgáin—“Trench of the Market”; at north-east end of demesne, where fairs were held on June 5th and Sept. 4th, before their permanent transference to the village of Villierstown.

(e) Lady Well (O.M.); this is not to be mistaken for a holy well.

DROMROE, Drom Ruad. Area, 242 acres.

S.D. Dótar na Naoimh—“Road of the Saints”; the ancient highway westwards towards Lismore ; it forms the southern boundary of the townland.

(c) See Joyce, “Irish Names of Places,” Vol. I., p. 403.

KILDERRIHEEN, Cill Doráin—“Dorahin’s (?) Church.” Although the word is certainly cill (not coill, a wood) I searched in vain for trace of tradition or church site. Area, 144 acres.

S.DD. (a) Páirc an Fál—“Field of the Hedge.”

(b) Páirc na Blair—(?).

KNOCKNASHEEGA, Cnoc na Síge—“Hill of the Streak (or ‘Stack’); see Cheekpoint, Par. Faithlegg. Area, 279 acres.

LITTLE BRIDGE INCHES, Inre an Óróicé—“Inch (or ‘River-Holm’) of the Bridge.” This was anciently, no doubt, portion of Kilderriheen. Area, 53 acres.

“Killdurraheen or Little Bridges” (O.S. note).

LEFANTA, Liat-Dánta—“Grey Fields.” According to the Ordnance Map, Lefanta Islands, in the Blackwater, adjoin Mount Rivers, while Mount Rivers’ Island adjoins Lefanta. Area, 52 acres.

S.D. Port Glás—“Green Embankment (or ‘Landing Place’); at the point where Bóthar na Naomh entered the river. The present place name is better known locally than the townland name. “Portglass” appears in a lease of 1738 from the Earl of Cork to Christopher Musgrove.

MOUNT RIVERS; modern (barbarous) name; no Irish equivalent.

Rivers was formerly portion of Affane (Hunter), according to the evidence of Sir R. Musgrave in the Blackwater Fishery Case (1869), and on it stood the Castle of Affane.

MONEYGORM, Muine Ghorm — “Blue-Green Ridge (or ‘Thicket’).” Area (in three divisions), 596 acres.

S.D. Át a tSéaránais—“Ford of the Englishman (or ‘Protestant’).”

MONEYROE, Móin Uí Óró—“O’Broe’s Bog.” The surname O’Broe (sometimes Anglicised—Bray) I have never met in Waterford, though it occurs in a famous Waterford song—the “Lá tó riabhar iarr an gCairleán Cuanae” of Séamus na Sroin. Area, 361 acres.

TURBEHA, Tóir Deite—"Birch Bush." Area, 249 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Barnanagarlogh (O.M.), enance na nGárlach—"Gap of the Children"; a spot where unbaptised infants, &c., were interred. The word enance in place names has a wider extension than "gap"; the exact meaning it is difficult to fix.

(b) "The Yard" (corruption of "Guard"), at north side of the townland; it was occupied by a company of soldiers in 1691.

(c) Gleann Sioltáin—"Siolan's Glen," ("Glen of the Dripping"—O'D.).

Ballylanean Parish.

LYING in the very heart of Power's County this parish is still largely Irish speaking. Hence there is ample opportunity of submitting its place names to that best of all tests—native pronunciation. The church and parish were dependencies on the Abbey of Mothel. For an account of the ecclesiastical remains see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. II., pp. 200 &c. In the ancient graveyard rest the remains of the Irish poet Timothy (Saothair) O'Sullivan.

(e) Staicea—"Something Stiff and Solid"; a rock on east side of the cove.

BALLYBANOGE, Baile na Bánóige—“Homestead of the Little Green Field.” Configuration is extremely curious; towards its western extremity the townland extends for a full half mile with width of a few perches only. Area (in two divisions), 644 acres.

(c) Dane’s Island (O.M.), Oileán Uí Órc—“O’Brice’s Island”; it is practically detached from the mainland, and contains traces of earthen fortifications. Before separation the present island formed portion of a headland, across the neck of which an earthen rampart was thrown. Portion of the rampart in question is traceable on the mainland. The English speaking natives call the place “Dane’s Island,” from their tendency to attribute all prehistoric remains to the Danes (Danaans).

(d) See Cárn na hAdróle, under Ardmore Par., antea.

(d) Slippery Island (O.M.), Oileán Steanáin.—Idem.

(e) Rinnamo (O.M.), Rinn na mBó—“ Headland of the Cows.”

the personal name Navan, not unknown locally.

(f) Cnoc a Chaitlín—“ Hill of the Holly Bush.”

(g) Ballardé Báná—“ White Walls ”; the place where a gentleman named Smyth was murdered many years ago.

CARROWTASSONA, Ceathramha an tSáoráinag—“ The Protestants' (Englishmen's) Quarter.” This must have been originally a sub-division of Ballynamanoge. It lies, wedged in, between the two divisions (north and south) of the latter, and is of unusual shape —in no part more than a single field in width. Area, 174 acres.

SEAFIELD, Garrán na Fionnóige—“Grove of the Carrion Crow.” The name of the crow is frequent in place names—probably because of the bird’s inconvenient predatory habits. Traceable in a field at south boundary of townland, close by Glenanearbail road, are the foundations (about 20 yards by 16) of Philip Barron’s Irish College. Area, 341 acres.

S.DD. (a) Lios na Caillige—“Lios of the Hag” (Caillteac Dearfa?).

Carrigcastle. On the rich alluvial flats by the Mahon the legendary cow pastured one night, and there it was that the abortive attempt to milk her into a sieve took place.

(d) Trawnastrella (O.M.), Traígs na Streille—“Strand of the Carpet (or ‘ Mat ’).”

Clonea Parish.

THIS Parish is generally styled Ná nÓireach (“Of the Decies”) to distinguish it from Clonea—Þaoisach (“Power’s”), the popular modern name of Mothel Parish. Though maritime the present parish has comparatively few cliff, or sea-coast, names; this is probably due to the character of its shore line—low, clayey, and comparatively featureless. The parish is of small extent and, the geological formation being limestone, the soil is generally rich—a fact which is not without its effect on the preservation of Irish names. As a rule the better the soil, the more foreign importation there has been, with results unfavourable to the survival of original names. For a description of the church ruins, &c., see Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Journal, Vol. III. p. 3.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLAGHAVORRAGA, Údarlae a Mhargair—“Pass of the Market.” The place caps a low ridge. Where the market was held is uncertain. An old native says the market in question was for sale of cabbage plants. English speakers uniformly Anglicise the name—Ballymarket. Area, 201 acres.

DUNSALLAGH, Dún Saileac—“Willowy Fort.” Area, 30 acres.

GLEN, Gleann. Idem. Area, 221 acres.

S.D. Cillín; the site of an early church on the farm of John McGrath (north side of old road which ran inland from the sea.)

KILBEG, Cill Beag; apparently i.e. “Little Church.” As however there is no trace or tradition whatever of a church, and as latter, if it had ever existed, could hardly have been completely obliterated, I am inclined to suspect the pronunciation to be a corruption of, say, Coill Beag. Area, 116 acres.

S.DD. (a) Toberavaw (O.M.), Tobair a Úaróte—“Well of the Drowning”; most probably from the accidental drowning of somebody therein.

(b) Na Cúrraíciúrðe—“Little Marshy Places (Fields).”

- S.DD. (a) Cove Hill (O.M.).
 (b) Seana Sráid—“Old Village.”
 (c) Gleann Dáile na hAbhéiríte—“Glen of the Apple Orchard Homestead.” Úbal-Íocht is masc. but it takes in Waterford the fem. form as given.

Colligan Parish.

THE Parish name is, of course, non-ecclesiastical, and is borrowed, in the usual way, from the townland on which the ancient church stood. From the parish in turn is named the well known Colligan River, which forms its eastern boundary. The parish is small, but, being remote and mountainous, it furnishes a fair proportion of interesting names. For a description of the ecclesiastical remains see Journal of the Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. III., p. 77.

TOWNLANDS.

- COLLIGAN, Cuilligeán (loc. case)—“Hazel-Abounding Place.” Area (in three divisions), 736 acres.

(i) Cnoc an Aonairg—“Hill of the Fair.”

(j) Grianán—“Sunny Spot (or Place)”; a hill on which was a circular entrenchment. “Grenanemore and Grenanebeg” (Inq. Jas. I.).

(k) Cnoc na mBuadachairde—“Hill of the Boys”; a subdivision on which stand present police barracks.

(l) Tobair Caoic—“Blind (Dry) Well.”

(m) Ústáid a tSteibe—“Mountain Road.”

(b) Toberbawn (O.M.), Tobair Dán—“White Well.”

(c) Liosaniska, Lóir an Uisce—“Water Lois.” The frequent occurrence of this name indicates prevalence of the custom of isolating the lios by flooding the surrounding trench after the manner of the mediæval moat.

GARRYCLOYNE, Íarbh-Óluain—“Rough Meadow.” Area, 327 acres.

S.D. Ústáid a Óuirb—“Roadway of the Black (Earth)”; an ancient pathway.

GARRYDUFF, Íarbhairde Óub—“Black Garden.” Area, 400 acres.

“Íarbhairde Ófirneadh, áit ná fuailearth an cùlós ceart” (Local Poet).

Dungarvan Parish.

A STRIKING characteristic of this parish is the diminutive size of its townlands. These generally consist of less than fifty acres, and many contain three or four acres only. It is probable that the series of small parallelogram-shaped townlands to the north-east of the town are sub-divisions of original Burgery lands. Owing to the multiplicity of townlands, particularly in the Burgery district, sub-denominations are comparatively few. Another curious feature is a number of “staings,” or long and very narrow fields and townlands. This word staing is of Germanic origin, and is used to designate a measure (pole or perch) of land. Its use however in this parish is peculiar; it is applied to the long very narrow fields and townlands alluded to, irrespective of their area. Physical features, of course, directly affect the place-names of a parish; here is mainly a rich limestone plain cut into three sections by the Colligan and Bricky rivers. There are many quarries and caves, but few outcrops of the underlying rocks. A range of high hill bounds the parish on the north, while a skirt of mountain forms its southern boundary. For a detailed description of the ancient ruined church of the parish see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. III., p. 216.

TOWNLANDS.

ABBEYSIDE, Dún na Mainistreach—“Fort of the Monastery.” The name is derived partly from the now ruined keep, or rather from the earthen dun that preceded it, and partly from the ancient Augustinian Friary founded here in 1295 by the ancestor of the Earls of Desmond. The local McGraths and O'Briens were generous benefactors of this house. Some remains of the monastic church survive, attached to the modern church of Abbeyside, and a considerable portion—including the tower and west entrance with fine stone ribbed work—is incorporated in the latter. Close by is a fine castle of the McGraths fast tottering to disappearance. Area, 177 acres.

ACRES, Na nÁcaraiðe—“The Acres.” Area, 7 acres.

BALLINROAD, Baile an Róra—“Homestead of the Road.”

Dótar is the ordinary word for road, the use of róra being largely confined to poetry. Róra seems to be, not a borrowed, but a true Irish word. Area, 66 acres.

BALLINURE, Baile an Iubhair—“Homestead of the Yew.”

Area, 58 acres.

BALLYCOE, Baile Cé; meaning unknown; perhaps Baile thíc Cé (b. 'c Cé). O'Donovan states (comment on this name in Ordnance Office) that coagh is used in Ulster to designate a round hollow. Area, 145 acres.

S.D. "Bian's (Bianconi's) Cross." Here the Dungarvan mails were in the old days transferred to and from the mail coach on its way Corkwards from Waterford, or vice versa.

S.DD. (a) Baile na mBárra—"The Barrys' Homestead." This sub-denomination and the next are probably submerged townland names; at any rate they are as well known locally as the official name of the townland.

(b) Baile an Chábaid—"Causeway Homestead."

(c) Bóthairín na gCorr—"Little Road of the Corpses"; a name often given to a road by which funerals generally approach an ancient cemetery.

(d) "Ballynamacgough"—the peak on extreme boundary of parish, according to an old map in possession of the Christian Brothers, Dungarvan.

BALLYNACOURTY, Baile na Cúinte—"Homestead of the Court (Mansion)." Area, 359 acres.

The next five stand in the sea, at some distance off the shore:—

(i) Caerlais Óireas—“Speckled Rock.”

(j) Caerlais Fada—“Long Rock.”

(k) Caerlais Thór—“Great Rock.”

(l) Caerlais a Cárpin—“Little Cap Rock”; from its appearance over water.

(m) Caerlais na nÓrcaé—“Rock of the Turks.” Turks is a name applied locally to the Ring men. This particular rock is far out in the bay—towards Ring.

Inland :—(n) Báile an Áirí—“Homestead of the Height.”

(o) Báile an Clámpair—“Homestead of the Dispute (or Quarrel).” This last is probably an old townland name. It is, at any rate, regarded locally as designating an independent division. One local authority stated that it was B. an Clámpa formerly.

(p) Báile an Cuailín—“Little Cuckoo Homestead”; probably, like last, an old townland name.

(q) An Cnoicín—“The Little Hill”; a small sub-division, on which stands the Coastguard Station.

(r) An Coirán and An Cláir—“The Reaping Hook” and “The Trench” respectively; these are two field names.

(s) “An Clouseen”; meaning unknown; the second word looks like Norman-French ; it is applied to three particular fields.

(i) Loc a Tρuim—“Elder Tree Pond.”

BALLYNALAHESSERY, Úaile na Leitreachaise—“Homestead of the Half-Plowland.” Seirreap is a group of six persons, from which comes Seirreac, a yoke of ploughing oxen, or rather the six men who ploughed. One (cantoirb) held the handles of the wooden plough, a second guided and drove the team, a third followed the plough and pressed down with his foot the newly-turned sod, the fourth with a forked stick (gabhalos) pressed the beam of the plough so that the shoe entered the earth, the fifth with hammer, wedges, &c., attended to the mechanism of the plough, while the sixth superintended the whole. (e) Later on the term Seirreac came to be applied to any team—even of two horses. (f) Area, 224 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Tobair—“The Well.”

(b) Úotair an Fioná—“Road of the Wine.”

(b) Páirc na Trásgá—“Strand Field” (Do.).

(c) For this information regarding the Seisear I beg to express my indebtedness to Rev. R. Henebry, D.Ph.

(f) Gaelic Journal, Vol. XVI., p. 221.

BURGERY, Burgoerie; the name is not Irish, but is borrowed from the English—burgess. This townland was apparently the property of the burgesses of Dungarvan as early as the 10th year of Edward I. “The Burgesses of the vill of Dungarvan render by the year for their Burgages £13 17 4.” (Inq. Clonmel). Area (in two divisions), 75 acres.

CARROWCASHLANE, Céatpharma a Caireáin—“Castle Quarter.” Area, 56 acres.

CLASHMALEA, Cláir Mháileáit—“Malea’s Trench.” The present name is practically now unknown in Waterford. Area, 2 acres.

CLONANAGH, Cluain na nEas—“Meadow of the Horses.” Area, 10 acres.

CLONCOSKRAN, Cluain Coscráin—“Coscran’s Meadows.” There is an insignificant fragment of an ancient castle. Area, 198 acres.

S.D. Bricky River; I suppose from Ureas, “speckled.”

COOLNAGOWER, Cúl na nGaothair—“Goats’ Corner.” Area, 282 acres.

CRROUGHTANAUL, Crocta an fÁill—“Croft of the Hedge.” This, with the two adjoining small townlands of Shanakill and Two-mile Bridge, is styled “Killingross alias Shanakill, pt. of Killingford,” on a map in the possession of the Christian Brothers, Dungarvan. Area (in two divisions), 12 acres.

CRUSERA, Crográire—“Cross Road.” Area, 51 acres.

CURRANE, An C(or)raín; apparently “The Reaping Hook,” but in reality “Pointed Hill.” Area, 12 acres.

CURRAHEENARIS, Currhaein Árás—“Little Swamp of (beside) the Dwelling House.” As this diminutive townland is uninhabited its name is hardly remembered locally. Area, 4 acres.

CUSHCAM, Coir Čaim—“(Place) Adjoining the Hollow”; from a ravine through which flows a stream forming the western boundary of the townland. Area, 46 acres.

DUCKSPOOL, Cláir na Lácaí—“Trench of the Ducks.” In this townland are two staings. Area, 166 acres.

(b). Óstairín a Mhuilinn—“Little Road of the Mill”; this is the road running N.W.W. to Tournore.

DUNGARVAN, Tún Garbáin—“Garvan’s Fort.” Garvan was a common personal name in Celtic times, Pagan and Christian. It may be, in the present instance, the name of a saint; but, more probably, from his connection with a tún, Garvan was a warrior or chieftain. The martyrologies enumerate five saints of the name, but none of them is mentioned in connection with the Decies. Some local speakers sound the first part of the place name as if it was ódmhn, but the tún sound is just as common. The 16th and 17th century pronunciation of tún in the Decies was dhown. (g) Moreover the Four Masters invariably write the name Tún Garbáin, as above. (h) Before erection of the present bridge communication with Abbeyside was maintained by a roadway through a ford somewhat west of the causeway. Area, 95 acres.

S.DD. (a) “Buttery”; the eastern portion was formerly Óstair a Mhaigseir—“Market Road.” The present name, it is supposed, arose from the fact that dairy produce was the commodity chiefly sold here. More probably, however, it is the Anglicisation of Óstair Uaistearas—“Upper Road,” an old name for this whole street.

(b) “The Milk Market”; now occupied by a house and garden, at end of Parsley or Crimmins’ Lane.

(c) “Fair Green”; west portion of Buttery, near its junction with “Fair Lane.” It was so called in 1760.

(g) Vide, Inquisitions, Wills and Surveys passim, e.g. Will of William Power of Dunmore (Downmore), proved 1671. Compare also Fiddown &c.

(h) A.F.M., 1574, 1598, 1599.

(d) Ústairín na Trásga—“ Little Road of (to) the Strand.”

(e) “ Chapel Lane.” The present “ Chapel Lane ” is of modern formation. The former possessor of the name is now Rice’s Street, or Youghal Road; this led to the old church on site of the Christian Brothers’ present residence.

(f) “ Wolfe Tone Street.”

(g) Ábhairírt (Uball-gort) Anna—“ Anne’s Orchard ”; the name (in 1760) of the space to south of the Buttery, at present occupied by the Christian Brothers’ field and curates’ garden.

(h) Gárrairde an Lóca—“ Garden of the Pond ”; this is the present new cemetery with the field to south.

(i) “ Clubbert’s Lane ”; now St. Augustine’s Street.

(j) “ River Lane,” later “ Cox’s Lane ”; now Carbery’s Lane. At end of this was “ George’s Quay.”

(k) “ Poore’s (Power’s) Lane ”; now Dirty Lane.

(l) “ Fox’s Lane ”; now Galway’s Lane.

(m) “ Kennedy’s Lane ”; now Thomson’s Lane.

(n) “ Dead Walk ”; this is a very modern name. In old maps the road now so called is marked “ Buttery.”

(o) Blackpool, Ústair i nGleannach—“ Lower Road ”; compare Buttery, above.

(p) “ Windmill Lane ”; former site of this is now occupied by Catholic Church and Cemetery.

(q) Ráipe a Mairgáin—“ Market Field ”; included like last in present Catholic Church grounds.

(r) “ Bull Ring ”; this occupied the open space in the street fronting the present Catholic Church. Here, even within the memory of persons still living, bull-baiting took place three or four times a year.

(s) “ Strameen Lane ” (now commonly Stramey, and Scramey’s, Lane), Lána Sctráimín; origin uncertain.

FAIRLANE, Ústair an Aonair—“ Road of the Fair.” Portion of the townland is in the adjoining parish of Kilrush. Area, 26 acres.

GALLows HILL, Cnoc na Crioice—“Hill of the Gibbet.” The hill in question is a fine mote, circular in plan, and at present without concentric embankment or trench. On the mote a gallows was erected in later times. Area, 7 acres.

GARRYNAGERAGH, ḡarrat̄e na sc̄aoileas—“Garden of the Sheep (pl.).” Area (in two divisions), 235 acres.

“Garranygearach” (Inq. Jas. I.).

GLENBEG, Gleann Beag—“Little Glen.” Area, 283 acres.

GLENMORE, Gleann Mór—“Great Glen.” Area, 325 acres.

GURTEEN, Goirtín—“Little Garden.” Area, 30 acres.

S.DD. (a) St. Gehan's Well (O.M.), Tóbar Ólá-hAoine—“Friday Well.” This is situated at the bottom of a lawn adjoining Glendine House. The well was formerly in high repute, and “rounds” are still made here, especially on Fridays and Sundays. It is made up of two circular basins, about 10 feet apart, and each about 5 feet in diameter; the more easterly of these is accounted the “real” well.

(b) Glendine (O.M.), Gleann Doirín—“Deep Glen.”

JOUTERSPARK, Páirc a lúctair—“Fishmonger's Field.” Follers is the local name for hawkers who carry inland the fish landed at Dungarvan. The place was formerly a commonage on which fish retailers, travelling tinkers, &c., encamped; it constitutes at present the smallest townland in the county. Area, 1 acre.

KILLONGFORD, Cill a longphuirt—“Church of the Encampment.” The cill was close to the stream on the north side of the townland of Shankill, itself evidently a former sub-division of Killongford. A large “bullan” of limestone was moved from the cill site many years since, and may now be seen in the Catholic Cemetery, Dungarvan. Area, 209 acres.

S.DD. (a) Seana Cúirt—“Old Mansion”; it was erected by a tyrannical and unpopular lady—Grace Hurst, by name—who cheated the builders out of their wages, &c., &c.

(b) Páirc na Spáire—“Field of the Village.”

(c) Céatharna Tampron — “Thompson's (or Samson's) Quarter.”

(d) Goirt Dúirte—“Yellow Garden.”

KILLOSSCRAGH, Cill Láirne—“Lasser’s Church.” The Martyrology of Donegal enumerates fourteen saints of the name (which—to add to the confusion—is both masculine and feminine). Details are wanting to enable us to identify our St. Lasser. The church was, however, close to (west end) of Morrissey’s farmyard, as marked on O.M. Area, 119 acres.

S.DD. (a) Póil na Cloiche Sile—“Hole of the White Stone”; in river Brickey at the present new bridge.

(b) Þáirc a Chailleáin—“Castle Field.”

KILMINNIN, Cill Mo Fингин—“St. Minin’s (My Finghin’s) Church.” No trace of the ancient church remains, but its site is sufficiently indicated by a small graveyard, still occasionally used for interments. There is a second townland and early church site of the name, a couple, or three, miles further to the east. Area (in two divisions), 155 acres.

S.DD. (a) Dóthairín na Horrys; probably called from a family known as Horry or Harry.

(b) An Steáin—“The Staing.”

(c) An Crampán—“The River Inlet.” Rev. P. Dineen (“Irish-English Dictionary”) seems to have some doubt that the Irish word has the sense here given; it certainly has, as far at any rate, as Waterford usage is concerned.

(d) Cádar Seagáin Óáibhí—“John (Son) of David’s Causeway”; a crossing place over the pill to the north of the bridge.

KILMURRY, Cill Muire—“St. Muire’s Church.” Site of the church was discovered close to John O’Donnell’s farm-house. Area, 205 acres.

S.D. Tobair Muire—“St. Muire’s Well”; it was close to the church site, but is now dried up.

LISHEENOONA, Lírin Una—“Una’s Lios.” Area, 51 acres.

LOUGHANISKA, Loc an Uisce—“Water Pond.” The Irish form does not suggest tautology like its English equivalent. Area, 80 acres.

LOUGHANUNNA, Loc an Fionnaig; meaning uncertain. Perhaps Locán Ána—“Anne’s Pond.” Area, 51 acres.

MIDDLE QUARTER, Ceathramha Láir—Idem. On the townland is the site of an ancient castle. Area, 97 acres.

NEWTOWN, Baile Nuad—Idem. Area, 96 acres.

PARKATLUGGERA, Páirc a tSluagair—“Swallow Hole Field.” Swallow holes are common where the geological formation is limestone. They indicate the existence of underground caves and passages, and into them streams of surface water disappear to the perplexity of the country people. Area, 17 acres.

PARKEENFLUGH, Páircín Fluic—“Little Wet Field.” Area, 13 acres.

PARKLANE, Páirc Eibhlín—“Ellen’s Field.” Area, 8 acres.

RINGAPUCA, Rinn a Phúca—“The Pooka’s Headland.” On the left bank of a little stream falling into the Colligan is the traditional site of an early burial ground. An old road crossed the river by a ford at the same spot, and was continued in an easterly direction, bisecting line of the present Hospital and Burgery Roads, and disappearing in the direction of Barnawee Bridge. Area, 9 acres.

“Otherwise Ardavulane” (Sale Maps, 1861, Devonshire Estate).

RINGCREHY, Rinn Cnoicé—“Gallows Headland.” Area, 64 acres.

RINGNASILLOGE, Rinn na Saileog — “Headland of the Willows.” Area, 34 acres.

SHANDON, Sean Óún — “Old Fort”; no remains of the fortress survive, unless indeed the mote on Gallows Hill be the eponymous “Dun.” In this latter hypothesis Gallows Hill would probably have been part of Shandon, which it adjoins. Area, 160 acres.

SCART, Scairt—“Thicket.” Area, 32 acres.

“Scarticristury,” i.e. Christopher’s Scart (A.S.E.).

Fews Parish.

THE ancient church of Fews, or rather its site—for no remains of the church survive—will be found described in the Journal of the Waterford and S.E. of Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. III., p. 72. The name Fews is unecclesiastical in origin; it is applied to the parish, but to no particular townland, and, as locally pronounced, it is obviously incorrect, scil:—Þaróirte an Írde, for Þaróirte na Ófioth—“Parish of the Woods.” Fews is, by the way, singularly bare of trees at the present day. Names derived from timber and shrubbery abound in this neighbourhood indicating the former presence here of extensive forests; compare Kilmacthomas, Shanakill, Graigearush, &c. The region was probably portion of the Forest of Decies alluded to in the Martyrology of Aenghus, March 26th. The people of this parish were noted, a hundred years ago, for their pretensions, a trait which gave occasion to the sarcastic allusion of a local poet:—“Uaire le bochtá, uaoine þaróirte na Ófioth.”

Kilbarrymaiden Parish.

CONSEQUENT on the maritime character of this Parish, cliff and sea-shore names are numerous. Otherwise, from our present point of view, the district embraced affords nothing of special interest. The name of the Parish, derived, in the usual way, from the townland on which stood the ancient parochial church, is of course ecclesiastical in origin. For a detailed description of the ancient church, &c., see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. II., p. 195.

(g) “St. Muirne’s Cave”; approachable only at low water of very high spring tides. Within is believed to be a miraculous statue of the saint. Kilgobinet Parish.

SECLUDED, extensive, mountainous and Irish-speaking, this parish is peculiarly favourable to place-name preservation. Local denominations of all kinds are accordingly both numerous and interesting. There is one river—the Colligan, and—high up on the mountain, at the N.E. angle of the parish,—a couple of small lakes. Besides the Church from which the parish is named there are sites of, at least, three others. For account of Kilgobinet Church see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. III. p. 73 and also Marcus Keane's “Towers and Temples of Ancient Ireland,” p. 455. St. Gobinet is the well known patroness of Ballyvourney, Co. Cork; she is also honoured in Inisheer, Aran Islands, where there is a primitive church bearing her name. Gobnat is locally anglicised Abigal, Abina and Abby (l).

There is a local legend, somewhat truncated, of a bull (Tarbh Conaire) which ran thither to drink in the Colligan. Area, (in two divisions), 380 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Dog’s Gap (O.M.), Deárná na Muadraíoch. Idem. This is a well known pass, for pedestrians only, over the Comeragh Mountains. Local folklore connects the “Gap” with a wild legend related in the life of St. Declan (n). Declan was invited to dinner by a pagan, Dercan by name, who, in hatred of the Christian name, had a dog, cooked to simulate mutton, placed before the saint. The saint however, by supernatural power, detected the attempted imposition, and—local tradition (but not the “Life”) adds—as soon as he made the Sign of the Cross over the dish, the dog, restored to life, leaped off the table, and, dashing through the open door, fled over this gap which has ever since borne his name.

(b) Seefinn (O.M.), Suirde Finn—“Fionn’s Sitting Place”; height, 2,387 feet.

(c) Óulán na gCopp—“Round Green Space of the Dead Bodies.” This was a circular patch, free from heath, where funerals crossing the mountain waited while the “bearers” rested. A rounded green or white cleared patch amongst the heather is locally called a "bullán," from, I think, the English "bowl." At date of my visit I was unable to satisfy myself that this spot is within the boundary of Coumaraglin, and I have had no opportunity since of verifying the matter. TALLACOOLMORE. (See Tallacool, Clonea Par.). The present is a disjoined fragment of Kilgobinet parish. Area, 151 acres.

“Tullaghcoolemore” (A.S.E.).

Kilmolash Parish.

THIS is a parish of small size, lying on both sides of the Finisk River a little above the junction of the latter with the Blackwater. The ancient church—for a description of which see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV. p. 89 &c.—stands close to the river, on its south bank. The land is mostly arable—some of it very fertile—a class of country not favourable to the preservation or multiplication of ancient names. As a consequence the local nomenclature possesses little special interest beyond that derived from the battle of Affane which was fought partly within the parish. A considerable portion of the parish lies within the Barony of Decies Within, which see.

TOWNLANDS.

BEWLEY, Béal—“Opening,” (scil.:—To the river or to road over the Drum ridge). At this place there is said to have been a preceptory of Knights Templars, but hardly any remains survive. (See Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 94). Area, 300 acres.

CLASHNADARRIV—Clair na nTáirb—“Trench of the Bulls.”

Area, 140 acres.

CLOGH, Cloc—“Rock”; anciently—according to the testimony of intelligent Irish speakers—Cloc Óaire Gnára—“Rock of the Cattle-lowing Homestead.” There are some insignificant remains of one of first Norman castles erected in Ireland. This particular stronghold is alleged to date from the time of King John; its high walls enclosed a courtyard of half an acre and were defended at the angles by embattled towers, while the gateway on the south side was protected by a drawbridge. The place is frequently referred to in the history of the 17th century &c. wars. Area (in two divisions), 261 acres.

S.DD. (a) Poulanore (O.M.), Póill an Óip—“Hole of the Gold”; a pit, filled with water, in south east angle of townland. Into it—so local story runs—a quantity of gold was thrown in Cromwellian times.

(c) Lag na Mairí—“Hollow of the Dead”; where the slain lay thickest and were buried as they lay.

(d) Móin na hUiríne—“Bog of the Dun Cow”; the name is connected doubtless with some forgotten legend or fact of history; compare “Leabhar na hUiríne,” Úarra na hUiríne (Bar. Glenaherity), &c. The present sub-division is regarded locally as a separate townland.

(e) An Stoáine—“The Swallow Hole”; the mouth of a limestone cave into which a stream disappears.

(f) An Bórt—“The Embankment”; this is really a field, surrounded by a bank as it is liable to flooding from the river.

Area (in two divisions), 455 acres.

S.D. Coolaclampar, Cúil a Clampaír—“Corner of the Dispute”; a patch of meadow land on north bank of the Finisk, so named because formerly a cause of strife between the proprietors of Affane and Kilmolash. The word clampaír (a “dispute” or “controversy”) enters, by the way, into quite a number of place names.

WOODSTOCK, Coill a Cip—“Wood of the Stock or Stump.”
Area, 302 acres.

“Kilkipp” (Memoranda Roll, Exchequer—16-28).

Kilrossanty Parish.

KILROSSANTY, a parish of large extent, takes its name from the townland on which the ancient church stands, or rather the townland gets its name from the church and the parish is called from both. Mountainous, secluded, and Irish-speaking, the region preserves an unusually large number of interesting names. Three considerable rivers—the Dalligan, Mahon and Tay have their origin in the parish, but, for reasons already alluded to, no attempt is made to explain their names. One of them, Tay, is clearly the same in origin as Tay, Tees, &c., of Great Britain. The parish abounds in “coums” or mountain hollows. As it has been found rather difficult to assign the mountain names to their respective townlands, a considerable number of the former are furnished under the separate general heading—Comeragh Mountains. This last name is here used, by the way, to designate the whole line of mountain within the parish, and the mountain sub-denominations are roughly arranged with regard to their relative positions from south to north. For a description of the ancient church &c. see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. III., pp. 6, &c.

Close by the castle a battle was fought in 1643 between the Parliamentarians under Sir Charles Vavasour and the Irish, in which the latter were defeated. Father Maurus O'Phelan, Ord. Cist., to whom I am indebted for invaluable assistance, informs me that a spot—hazel &c. overgrown,—by side of the "gap," is still known as An tSeana

O'Daly, "Poets and Poetry of Munster," 2nd Series, p. 218.

(c) Féit Óán—“White Bog-Vein.”

(r) See Ballymurrin, Kilbarrymeadan Par.

(s) See “Gaelic Journal,” Vol. II., p. 161.

(c) Údtairín a Cárail Caoic—“Little Road of the Blind Horse.” This name is applied to various disjoined lengths of a trench which are remains of an primitive roadway leading hence to the coast at Stradbally. A legend accounting for the name is to the effect that an ancient resident of Cutteen owned an aged horse which, though blind, was so sagacious that, with laden panniers of seaweed on his back, he would, guideless, make his way from Stradbally Cove to his owner’s home. On one occasion the panniers fell into the ford since called Át a Tríorcair (“Seaweed Ford”). Compare old road of same name under Carricklong, Drumcannon Par., &c. These horse, cow and other animal legends demand scientific investigation.

(d) Cárraig a tSliogán—“Shell Rock.”

(e) Údarra an Mhaoilaird—“Dog’s Gap”; a famous pass (not available for vehicles) over the Comeragh Mountain. See under Kilgobinet Par. antea. Sir H. Maxwell (“Scottish Land Names”), pertinently observes that Maoilaird in Scottish names generally means a wolf. At the summit of the gap is a standing pillar-stone, 8' x 4' x 1', and close by are two further similar pillars prostrated. Again, a few yards to south of the pillars, and still on the summit, stands a roughly square enclosure of dry stone (Catáir type). The space enclosed is about ten yards square and the enclosing walls are about four feet in thickness by four feet high.

S.DD. (a) Þáirc a tSéipéil—“Chapel Field”; from a chapel of the Penal days which stood there.

(b) Lírin na nGaoðar—“Little Lios of the Goats”; a name reminiscent of the later use of liose—as folds for cattle, goats, &c., at night.

GARRAMILLON, Þarrrán Thíoltúin, also Þarrrán na Fionnóige—“Mellan’s Grove” and “Grove of the Scald-Crow.” Area (in two divisions), 848 acres.

S.D. Cillín, an early church site with circular enclosure of earth. Close by are a couple of large pillar stones ogham-inscribed.

GLENDALLIGAN, Steann Óealgaðan—“Dealgain’s (?) Glen.” The second word is doubtful; it seems to be a personal name—a derivative apparently from oeatg, a thorn. Portion of the townland is in a neighbouring parish. Area, 1,304 acres.

S.DD. (a) Baile Óealgaðan—“Dealgain’s Height,” where Glendalligan River has its source.

“Gortinicary” (D.S.M.).

S.DD. (a) Bótar na Ruadán—“Road of the Moors.”

(b) Bótar Óealaighis Óna—“Queen Anne’s Road.” Road-making seems to have been vigorously pursued in Ireland during the reign of Anne; a surprisingly large number of old Waterford roads like the present still bear her name.

GORTNALAGHT, Gort na Leacá—“Garden of the Monumental Cairns.” Area, 636 acres.

“Gortnelogh” (Distr. Bk.).

KILCOMERAGH, Cill a Chomaraig—“The Church of Comeragh.” Here stood a smaller castle of the Desmonds. There is also a cill or early church site. Area, 124 acres.

KILROSSANTY, Cill Rosanta — “St. Rosanta’s (Roxentius’) Church” (?) The foregoing (queried) interpretation is Rev. Dr. Henebry’s. O’D. however supposes the second word to be a derivative from Ror, “a wood.” Within the graveyard is the execrated tomb of Valentine Wallis, popularly regarded with dread, while immediately without the sacred precincts are three holy wells—Tobair lóra, Tobair Muire and Tobair Órigoe. Wallis (of the tomb) was an Augustinian friar of the Penal days, who, to retain some family estate (Ballykeeroge, Ballynevoige, &c.) conformed to the Established Church. Owing to the peculiar transformation of his name it has been extremely difficult to trace Wallis’ origin, &c. His real name however appears to have been Walsh, and it looks as if the Walshes of the Piltown (West Waterford) branch, to which he belonged, anglicised, or rather modernised, the name to Wallis. The subject of the present remarks was evidently a connection (probably a descendant or representative) of the celebrated Sir Nicholas Walsh, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and Speaker of the Irish Parliament, who died in 1615. Area, 358 acres.

“Kilrosinta” (D.S.). “Kyllrossanta” (Visit. Eliz.).

S.DD. (a) Ceathramhán an Teampuill—“Church Quarter.”

(b) Fairce—“Hurling Green.”

(c) Láthair a Dá Sput—“Two Streams’ Fork.”

(f) Bóthar na bPúcairí—“The Pookhas’ Road.”

KNOCKNACULLEN, Cnocán a Chúillinn—“Little Hill of the Holly.” Area, 511 acres.

KNOCKYELAN, Cnoc Uí Phéilán—“O’Phelan’s Hill.” This is perhaps the only instance in which O’Phelan’s name is found attached to a place within the confines of O’Phelan’s ancient territory. Area, 452 acres.

S.DD. (a) Páirc a tSeana Tíge—“Field of the Old (Great) House.”

(b) Cillín—“Early Burial Ground”; two adjoining fields (formerly one) are so called.

(c) Coimineár—“Commonage.”

(d) Bótharín a Phúca—“Little Road of the Pooka.”

LEMYBRIEN, Léim Uí Óbriain—“O’Brien’s Leap.” Léim in topography is often applied to the gush of a stream through a narrow passage between two rocks. Popular story (Folk-Etymology) accounts for the name thus:—O’Brien of Comeragh (Thomond stock), “rising” for a hop, step and jump, from some point of the mountain above, reached, at his first landing, a place in Kilrossanty where, for conviction of the incredulous, the imprint of his heels may still be seen in a stone; thence in the second stride (the “step”) he carried himself to the spot in the present townland where marks similar to those in Kilrossanty are pointed out. Whither the “jump” carried him the writer did not enquire. Part of the present townland is in Stradbally Parish. Area, 537 acres.

S.DD. (a) Árho na Léime—“Hillock of the Leap.”

(b) Bóthar na Sceilginn—“Road of the Trees.”

SHANBALLY, Seana Baile—“Old Homestead.” Area, 313 acres.

TRENEARLA COMMONS, Coimín na ṚTírí nLápla—"Commonage of the Three Earls"; this is entirely uninhabited mountain. Area, 375 acres.

The following additional sub-denominations occur along the mountain side—all within the parish. As it was found difficult to exactly locate them, they are appended here without special reference to the townlands within which they lie. The order followed indicates their relative position from south to north:—

Carrraig Ghairde—"Rock of the River Fork"; a jagged mountain point.

Seárrna hEirge—"Gap of the Stream Cut Channel."

Carrraigín a Chaoirtáinn—"Little Rock of the Rowan Tree (Pyrus Aucuparia)."
The rowan or quicken is indigenous to these mountains and is generally reputed, by the way, to possess some supernatural virtues.

An Gabal—"The River Fork."

An Leaca Ghairb—"The Rough Glen Face (or Slope)."

Cárán Ghairb—"Rough Path."

Leat Móin—" (The) Half Bog."

Cnoc na Sgeirte—"Hill of the Whitethorn Bush." Sgeat (gen. Sgeirte) is itself genitive of an older nominative—Sgi.

Carrraigín na Fúinneoidhe—"Little Rock of the Window"; named from a cleft in the rocks, which viewed from the plain below seem to admit light like a window. O'Donovan however writes the name—briónógs, i.e. "of the Scald Crows."

Móin a Þeroltára—"The Pedlar's Bog"; from a pedlar who was murdered and buried here.

Móin na Dóirne—"Bog of the Deep Pit."

Carrraig a tSeagail—"Rock of the Rye"; a broken crag invisible from the plain.

Mám—“Gap”; through this runs the modern public road to Kilbrien (Dearfna Mámá).

Clair a Tíngdáirio. Meaning unknown.

Clair a Tuaðir—“Trench of the Cattle Field.”

Kilrush Parish.

ALTHOUGH the parish contains a sufficiently large number of townlands it is in reality but of small extent—its townlands, like those of Dungarvan, being diminutive. For a description of the Church remains &c. see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 222. In the graveyard which surrounds the ruined church is a stone coffin standing on one end after the manner of a tombstone. The local names are perhaps of less than average interest.

S.D. “Father Twomey’s Well.”

Lickoran Parish.

THIS is a small and unimportant division. Two of its townland (mountain) names, Teigmic and Óneo, defy analysis, and are evidently, like many mountain and most river names, of great antiquity. The names quoted designate two remarkable dome-shaped hills, which because of their resemblance and contiguity are grouped together in local reference. For a description of the ruined parish church of Lickoran see Journal of Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. III. p. 77.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYNAGUILKEE, Dáile na Giolcage—“Homestead of the Broom (Spartium Scoparium).” On the townland is a cill, or early church site, marked on O.M.; the stone cross, also marked, has disappeared. Amongst the Du Noyer drawings in the Royal Irish Academy are four views of the plinth and portion of the shaft of this cross. They are numbered 22, 23, 24 and 25 respectively, in the Du Noyer collection. The cross was of red sandstone and carried ornament of simple plait or fret on its four sides. LICKORAN, Lic Uarán—“Flag Stone of the Cold Spring.” Area (in two divisions), 311 acres.

THE parish derives its name, which is non-ecclesiastical, from the townland on which the parish church stood. For some account of the ecclesiastical remains see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. III., p. 224, &c. Though the parish is extensive and the region Irish-speaking the list of sub-denominations collected is by no means large.

WOODHOUSE, Tig na Coille. Idem. Area, 104 acres.

Monksland Parish.

THIS was a dependency of the Cistercian Abbey of Inislaunaght ("De Surio"), near Clonmel, to which a grant of some lands in the parish was made by King John. It is probable that an early Celtic church preceded the Cistercian establishment. At any rate the more ancient name is lost—though the present name (Fearann na Manach—“Farm of the Monks”), with an antiquity of seven hundred years behind it, has little reason to complain of modernity. The parish is of small extent, and interesting on other grounds and from another standpoint than ours, scil:—its extensive copper mines and works. A brief description of the ecclesiastical remains &c. will be found in the so frequently quoted Waterford Archaeological Journal—Vol. II., pp. 198 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYNAGIGLA, Baile na gCúigíleach—“Homestead of the Distaffs.” Area, 214 acres.

“Ballinagiglach” (D.S.R.).

S.D. Sáilín—“Little Heel” (i.e. “Remnant” of land). Sáilín also signifies a large lake or pond, or an arm of the sea, and it is just possible that this latter may be its force here.

BALLYNASISSALA, Baile na Soirala—“Homestead of the Cecils (?).” Area, 334 acres.

“Ballysiselly” (A.S.E.).

S.D. Cnoc Mháon—“Mahon Hill”; Mahon is probably from Mág, a plain.

“Ballivaden” (D.S.M.).

S.D. Dóthairín na Marbh—“Little Road of the Dead,” by which funerals approached the ancient cemetery. A unique circumstance of the cemetery, by the way, is its separation by a stream from the church.

Area, 323 acres.

“Carrycaredagh” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Cnoc Meall; this is tautological—both words signify a hill.

“Killowan” (D.S.R.).

S.D. An tSeana Sír—“The Old Village.” This is probably the ancient church site which would naturally have been forgotten in course of time owing to the encroachment thereon of the later village.

(c) Bóthairín a Capaill Caoig—“Little Road of the Blind Horse”; this is the second time so far that we have met this name.

Rossmire Parish.

THE name, which the parish does not share with a townland, is, of course, non-ecclesiastical in origin; it signifies “Moire's Wood (or Shrubbery)”—Ror magair. magair has not been, and probably never will be, identified. The name is written Ross-meere in the D.S.M. For further account of the church &c. see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. III., p. 72. The popular name of the church is not Rossmire but Killcool (Cill Cúil or Cúinail).

WHITESTOWN, BAILE NA BHFÁOITEAC—“Homestead of the Whites.” Area, 330 acres.

Seskinane Parish.

THE name signifies “Little Sedgy Moor,” and is written Seskynnane in an Inquisition of Jas. I. About two-thirds of the parish are in this barony; the remainder belongs to Glenaheiry. The Parish, which is Irish-speaking and of great extent, is an elevated plateau. Bog and mountain names abound, while of other names that are generally interesting there is a fair proportion. The name SLIAB GCUA has come in recent times to be applied to Seskinane, but the former is a misnomer, as it is quite clear, both from the Irish lives of saints and from the annals, that Slieve Gua is the ancient name of the whole Knockmaeldown mountain range and not of its any particular portion. Donnchadh Ruadh spent a considerable portion (by no means the most exemplary part) of his life in this parish, and here too flourished, at the same time, the local poets, Thomas O’Moran and Maire Ni Dhonogain (u), still honoured in popular memory. The ruined church near the centre of the parish is extremely interesting, not indeed architecturally, but from the fact that many of its door and window lintels are ogham inscribed. For a detailed account of the church &c. see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 83. Within the parish are the identified sites of at least four further early churches. A number of the principal townland names of the locality, with the characteristics of each place, are strung together in the following rhyme, which is probably the composition of one of the many 18th century "poor scholars" who partook of the hospitality of the parish:—

(u) See “Gaelic Journal,” Vol. III., p. 104, also O’Daly “Poets and Poetry of Munster” 2nd Series, p. 211.

"Baile Óicáire an agháin agus im,
 "Liop Liat Ói pháith 'se pílib,
 "Liop Ruadhaí mar a bhuailtear an cùigean
 "Tuar an Fionna mar a liontar an gloinne,
 "Cataip na Léigé déal na flíste
 "Buaile Móintín na bpriantín im,
 "Baile Uí Ceipín an férípin thilif
 "Baile na Molt na mbúlarde mbriante

BLEANTASOUR, Bléantáir Óthair (or Sáthair). Meaning uncertain. The first part of the name may be bléantá—loins (also narrow low tongues of land), with an s added after the manner of an English plural, while the second word appears to be óthair—dun or fawn colour. More probably however bléantáir is singular and the abstract from bléan. Muine na Cínce is, according to one authority, another name for the place or for a sub-division of it. Area (in two divisions), 1,622 acres.

"Blantashowre" (Inq. Jas. I.).

(f) Cnoc Meadóin—“ Middle Hill.”

KNOCKBOY, Cnoc Ùrte—“ Yellow Hill”; from the pronounced colour of the blossoming furze. The fair of Knockboy was held on September 8th, a fact which probably enables us to fix the patron of the parish. Area, 752 acres.

"Knockboye" (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Toberatemple (O.M.), Tobair a Teampainn—"The Church Well."

(g) Aughnalisheen, Áit na Lírin—"Ford of the Little Lioses."

(k) Losg na Brófarach—"Hollow of the House Ruins"; a well-known sub-division of large extent.

S.D. Laghtmanus (O.M.), Leacth Maghnuir—"Manus' Monument."

REANADAMPAUN, Réid na nTeampaín—"Mountain Plain of the Round Boulders." "The Tampauns" are five great standing stones, which seem to be portion of a dismantled cromlech; they are now incorporated in a fence. Cian "na Mionn Óir" (of the golden diadems), from whom Kilkeany is named, was a Druid and possessed of a famous ríat vráoráideachta or "Rod of Enchantment." On a certain day three brothers, wayfarers, with their mother whom they carried on their shoulders, called at the Druid's house seeking hospitality. The master happened to be from home, but a maid, who was kneading bread for dinner, requested them to await Cian's return. The strangers, not liking the slovenly appearance of the girl and the manner in which she manipulated the dough, refused to stay. When Cian returned for dinner and heard the story he flew into a rage that his hospitality should be spurned, and seizing his magic wand, he started in pursuit of the travellers. He overtook them on the mountain plain, where, with a touch of his druidic slat, he changed them and their two dogs into these five pillar stones. Two large pillars (the two travellers) support a third (the mother); two smaller pillars are the petrified wolf dogs. Area, 1,003 acres.

TOORANEEENA, Tuair an Fionn—apparently “Green of the Wine.” Area, 318 acres.

“Toorennyng” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Glenagow, Gleann a Ghao—“The Smith’s Glen.”

Stradbally Parish.

THIS is a maritime and Irish-speaking parish of great extent. Its place names are consequently both numerous and interesting. There are many cliff names, but the general nomenclature is of very mixed character. The parish name itself comes from the townland on which the church stood. For information as to the church remains, &c., see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. II., pp. 201, &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYLYNCH, Baile Uí Loings—“O’Lynch’s Homestead.” Area, 395 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Monastery in Ruins (O.M.). The ecclesiastical character of this ruin is doubtful.

(b) Tobair na mBhrácair—“The Friars’ Well.”

(c) Entrenchment (O.M.). This is of the usual character—a line of earthwork across the neck of a rather low headland. In the present instance the bank of earth is double, but the space enclosed is much contracted owing to subsidence of the cliff. The enclosure does not perhaps at present measure more than $\frac{1}{4}$ acre. The fosse between the double wall of earth is about thirty yards long by fifteen feet wide and a yard or so in depth. Portion of the embankment still stands about five yards in height.

(d) Cuanín Óonncaidh—“Denis’ Little Harbour.”

(e) Faill na Cnoicé—“Cliff of the Crane (Mechanical).” This is, perhaps, a new meaning for the word cnoic.

(g) Faill a Racá—“Wreck Cliff.”

(h) Cúilín na Hugairéad—“Little Corner of the Hogsheads.”

(h) Cloch an Eiríon—“Rock of the Ivy.”

BRENAN, Úrásanán—“A Droplet.” O’Donovan however writes it Úrasanán and suggests a derivation from Úr “a hill,” or Úreas “Stinking.” There is site of a castle but all traces have disappeared. Area, 634 acres.

“Brenane” (Inq. Jas. I.).

“Carrigenahy” (Distr. Book).

CURRAHEEN, Curratáin—“Little Marshy Place.” Area, 282 acres.

“Carreheene Landoney” (Distr. Book). “Lorryheene Londoney” (A.S.E.).

DURROW, Ósraibh (Ósraibh-Mhaig)—“Oak-plain.” Area, 273 acres.

“Durro” (Inq. Jas. I.).

Cloghlowrish, Cloch Laoighair—“Speaking Stone”; an immense glacial boulder cleaved asunder and standing by side of Queen

Anne's Road. The boulder was entire—so says the legend—till a false oath was sworn by it. Thereupon it split asunder exclaiming with a human-like voice:—"Ir rearb i an fírinne."

DRUMLOHAN, Drom Lócaín—"Chaff Ridge." Lócaín may however be a personal name. Here is a famous ogham cave in a cillín or early church site. Within the precincts of the cillín are also a large monument of bullán type and an ancient quern stone of unusual size. The bullán, generally water-filled, is resorted to as a Holy Well. Area, 296 acres.

"Drumloghan" (Inq. Jas. I.).

(b) Déalaic an Iarainn—"Roadway of the Iron."

FOX'S CASTLE, CAIRLEÁN NA SIONNAC—"Foxes' (personal name) Castle." The church site marked on O.M. appears to be the castle site instead. Perhaps the castle itself usurped the site of an early church.

Whitechurch Parish.

THE name in Irish is Teampall Seoil, which is equivalent in meaning to the official English name. The whiteness was probably physical—the result of whitewashing, or of decoration with glistening quartz ; it may of course have been merely figurative—in allusion to the fame of the church &c. Greater portion of the parish, which is very extensive, is a rich limestone plain. Irish is still generally understood, nevertheless sub-denominations are neither very numerous nor particularly interesting. A fair was formerly held at Whitechurch on 5th August; it however appears to have been a Charter Fair. For some notes on the ancient church of the parish see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 88.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINTAYLOR, Dáile an Táillíúrla—“The Tailor's Homestead.” Tailor (Taylor), notwithstanding the article, is almost certainly a family name here. The Irish evidently regarded names like Taylor, Turner, Mason &c., as common nouns. Area (in two divisions), 586 acres.

“Ballyntaylor” (Inq. Eliz.).

BALLYARD, Dáile Árda—“Elevated Village.” Area, 84 acres.

(c) Cúmpas (Craic) a tSuaig—“Swamp of the (Fairy) Host.”

BALLYMULALLY, Dáile Uí Thaoibhala—“O'Mulally's Homestead.” Locally the qualifying word is understood to signify “honey,” and the name is accounted for by a story of a shower of honey which once fell here! Area (in two divisions), 398 acres.

S.D. Johnstown (O.M.), Dáile Seagáin. Idem.

BALLYNACOURTY, Baile na Cúinte—“The Mansion Village.” The “Mansion” was the residence of the Osbornes, to whom this property passed from Roger Dalton in the early part of the 17th century. Dalton apparently held from the Dromana Fitzgeralds. Area, 242 acres.

S.DD. (a) Þáirc an Ímpir—“Field of the Wrestling”; a place where the dead play at night.

(b) Sgiobóil na n'Déiríead—“Barn of the Decies (Decies family —i.e. Fitzgeralds of Dromana)”; adjacent to site of the Mansion house.

S.D. Þáirc a Dallán—“Field of the Pillar Stone.”

BALLYNAMEELAGH, Baile na Miolac—“Village of the Cattle.” The meaning is however somewhat doubtful. Miolac has more than one signification; it may mean lousy, brutish, or cattle abounding. O’D. makes it the first of these three in the present instance. Area, 192 acres.

S.D. Ooangloor (O.M.), Uath na gColáir—“The Pigeons’ Cave.”

CAPPAGH, Cearrás—“Tillage Plot.” Area, 401 acres.

“Kypagh” (Inq. Jas. I.).

(b) Abbey (O.M.). The ruin so named was most probably the residence of Sir James Fitzgerald, who removed to Dromana where he died in 1581. There is little or no evidence to sustain the theory that the remains are ecclesiastical.

CANTY, Na Cáinte—“The Dispraised Places.” Area, 319 acres.

“Caynty” (Inq. Eliz.)

CARRICKKROE, Carras Óneo; meaning uncertain. Óneo signifies “fire.” The place was granted as portion of the forfeited Desmond estate to Sir C. Hamilton by letters patent 18th June, 1589.

S.DD. (a) Páirc a Leagán—“Field of the Pillar Stone.”

(b) Moloneys’ Village (O.M.), Dáile na Maoileadhna. Idem. This is a sub-division.

S.D. Orióiceadn a Tócair—"Causeway Bridge."

FARRENBULLEN, Feirinn Óuillín—"Land of the Loaf." One old man, a native, said—Cairn Óuillín. It is locally believed that this diminutive townland was granted to a Cromwellian trooper, who in his hunger disposed of it for a loaf of bread. Place names when understood are often popularly accounted for by a history (Folks' Etymology) obviously invented to fit the name. Area, 13 acres.

S.D. Carrasg Mhuirí—"Maurice's Rock"; a limestone bluff or outcrop beneath which is an extensive cave explored by Mr. Ussher and described in various communications to the Royal Irish Academy. On this rock, says another legend, the eponymous Maurice, presumably a criminal, was bound hands and feet to a post and there allowed, Tantalus-like, to starve to death within a few feet of a loaf placed there for his greater torment. There are indications that the bluff was once crowned by a lios or cathair.

GARRAUNFADDA, Gárrán Fada—"Long Grove." Area, 224 acres.

GLENAVADDRA, Gleann a Mhaoráin—"Glen of the Wolf (or 'Dog')." Area, 204 acres.

KILCLOHER, Cill Chluthnáin—"Sheltered (Cosy) Church." Here St. Carthage, on his way from Rahan to Lismore, rested for some days with his retinue. The early church site is in the south corner of a field called Páirc na Cille. Clothair is by some understood to be the name of the church founder—hence Tobair Ólaorth Clothair—“St. Clothair’s Well.” Area, 222 acres.

S.D. Bóthairín na Meacan—“Little Road of the Parsnips”; an avenue which led to a garden (attached to a mansion).

(d) Poulnabrone (O.M.), póll an Óirón—“Hole of Lamentation”; a pool in the Finisk.

KILGREANY, Cill Gráine—“Graine’s Church”; site of the cill will be found by north side of main road close to a cave and well. The personal name Gráine is usually anglicised—“Grace.” Area, 186 acres.

“Kilgrany” (Inq. Jas. I.).

(b) póll Cáit Osborne—“Catherine Osborne’s Cavern.”

KILNAFARNA, Cill na Fearna—“Church of the Alder Tree (Alnus Glutinosa)”; site of the early ecclesiastical settlement was difficult to discover; it was found at length on the boundary between two farms (Tobin’s and Ronayne’s). To a well in the vicinity some sort of sacred character attaches. Area, 451 acres.

“Kilnefarny als Kilmafarnoge” (Inq. Cor. I., 1643).

KNOCKMAON, Cnoc Meádon—“Middle Hill”; in allusion to the rocky outcrop in centre of the bog between two high ridges. On this rock was the castle of Knockmaon, some remains of which still stand. For a notice of the ruined church a few perches to south of this castle see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 93. On the eastern margin of Knockmaon Bog there would appear to have been a smithy or sword factory in the far-away bronze age. A quantity of unused implements of bronze have been found here, for a description of which see a paper by the present writer in the journal just quoted, Vol. IV., p. 47. Area, 146 acres.

ASTOR ENCL AND TEN CENTS POSTAGE.

BARONY OF GAULTIER.

GAULTIER (Gall-tír—“Dane country” or “Foreigners’ land”) was so called from the occupation of the district by a non-Celtic race. The term Gall was, at one period of our history, synonymous with “Dane” or “Norwegian” and at another with “Englishman.” In modern usage the word is largely restricted to the latter sense, while “Locháin” is applied to the Dane of history. It is wonderful, by the way, how little the Dane has left his impress on the land names of the Barony he made his own. Gaultier, as a local denomination, dates approximately from the expulsion of the Ostmen of Waterford from the city on the arrival of the English. The first care of the new-comers was to hang Reginald, ruler of Waterford, for having placed iron chains across the river to bar the progress of the invading fleet, and their second—to drive out the Danish inhabitants, one Gerald McGilmore alone excepted. A particular district outside the walls was assigned the dispossessed citizens—whence the “Cantred of the Danes” of later times, and the “Osmanstown of Waterford” built in 1384, according to a plea-roll of Edward II.

Ballygunner Parish.

THE parish takes its name from Ballygunner townland on which the Church (now in ruins) stood. This church, it is evident from Theiner, (a) was originally dedicated to a St. Mochorog, Confessor, whom we may safely regard as its founder. Mochorog, like many of the early church founders of our eastern and south-eastern seaboard, appears to have been a Briton, and son of Branchan, a British prince. At any rate such was the reputed nationality and parentage of the Saint Mochorog, who is honoured at Delgany, Co. Wicklow. (b) This Mochorog of Delgany is stated to have assisted St. Kevin when the latter lay dying. In post-invasion times a change of patrons was somehow effected in our Church, for the survival of the ancient "pattern" on September 8th is proof that at the Reformation period the Blessed Virgin was titular. For description of the ruined church and its graveyard see Journal of R.S.A.I., Vol. I., 5th Series, p. 481. In the Down Survey Map the parish is named Ballygunner Temple and the church appears to have been in repair at the date of the survey. Amongst the crops grown in the parish in 1846 are mentioned peas, beans, and flax. (c)

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYGUNNER (in three parts:—B. More, B. Castle, and B. Temple), Dáile mhic Gónair ("b. mōn," "b. a Cairleán," and "b. a Teampuit," respectively)—"Town (or Homestead) of Gonar's Son." This is one of our few land names which commemorate Danish occupation. There are on the townland one, now practically demolished, circular lios of large size (O.M.) with a stone-lined subterranean chamber and one small, partly ruined cromlech (O.M.). Ballygunner temple is returned in the Down Survey as the property of Lord Powre, and the other two divisions of the townland as belonging to Sir Robert Walsh, Irish Papist. The Cromwellians liked good measure; they reckoned the total area of the three divisions (including seven acres of glebe on Ballygunner Castle) at 649 acres. This, as a matter of fact, was little more than half the real acreage. "James Walshe (father, or grandfather, presumably, of the Sir Robert Walsh of Petty's Survey) of Gonnestown" appears as a juror in an Inquisition of Elizabeth. (d) The castle (modernised) of the Walshes is still in use as the residence of John Power, farmer. Area (in three divisions), 1,212 acres.

Sub-denominations—(a) Cúrraíc Sóim—"Blue Bog (or Marsh)," a small sub-division; the name is Anglicised—"Foxy Bog." The terms for "bog" or "marsh" are very numerous in Irish and of extremely frequent occurrence in place names. They are however, by no means, synonyms and their different shades of meaning are well understood. Móin, for instance, is a turf bog,—Cúppac, a swampy patch,—Tonn, a quaking bog,—Gneallac, a heavy, miry place,—&c., &c.

(b) Baile na Gaoite—“Homestead of the Wind,” from its exposed position; a well-known sub-division, regarded locally as practically a separate townland.

(c) Cill Bricain—“Brican’s Church”; site (nearly forgotten) of a primitive church on Baile na Gaoite. There are no remains, but the exact site has been identified, scil:—immediately to N.E. of surveyor’s mark 163, on Ordnance Sheet (six-inch) No. 18.

(d) Aoilacán—Meaning uncertain; probably derivative from aoil, lime; a large sub-division formerly well known by this name.

(e) An Steibín—“The Little Mountain,” a sub-division of 25 acres.

(f) Cappairgin Seal—“Little White Rock,” on B. Castle.

BALLYMACLODE, Baile mic Leòd—“McLeod’s Homestead.”

On the townland is a comparatively late (16th or 17th century) castle in ruins. This was probably the homestead of the settler from whom the place derives its name. Ballymaclode, like Ballygunner Temple, was in the possession of Lord Power at the date of the Cromwellian confiscation. Area, 374 acres.

“Bally McClode” (A.S.E.); “Ballemaclode” (Inquisition, temp. Eliz.)

S.D. Glennacruther (O.M.), Gleann a Chnothair—“The Harper’s Glen.” Of the ancient master of Irish melody no history or tradition whatever survives.

CALLAGHAN, Céallachán—Meaning doubtful; apparently “Little Place Belonging to a Church”; or perhaps (and less probably) the name is an Irish diminutive of the old English word callow—therefore “Little Wet Place.” “Callow” is still commonly used in the Queen’s County to denote wettish land which is often submerged in winter and grows long coarse grass in summer. The present townland contains a large area of bog and was mainly noted a century ago for its output of peat,

It is locally believed that this diminutive townland was granted to a Cromwellian trooper, who in his hunger disposed of it for a loaf of bread. Place names when understood are often popularly accounted for by a history (Folks’ Etymology) obviously invented to fit the name. Area, 13 acres.

S.D. Carrraig Thúinir—“Maurice’s Rock”; a limestone bluff or outcrop beneath which is an extensive cave explored by Mr. Ussher and described in various communications to the Royal Irish Academy. On this rock, says another legend, the eponymous Maurice, presumably a criminal, was bound hands and feet to a post and there allowed, Tantalus-like, to starve to death within a few feet of a loaf placed there for his greater torment. There are indications that the bluff was once crowned by a lios or cathair.

GARRAUNFADDA, Gárran Fada—“Long Grove.” Area, 224 acres.

GLENAVADDRA, Gleann a Mhaoraidh—“Glen of the Wolf (or ‘Dog’).” Area, 204 acres.

S.DD. (a) Toberatouk (O.M.), Cobán a tSeabhaic—“The Hawk’s Well.”

(b) Siutairne—“The Stroller (Vagrant); a sub-division, named from a small stream.

KILCLOHER, Cill Chluain—“Sheltered (Cosy) Church.” Here St. Carthage, on his way from Rahan to Lismore, rested for some days with his retinue. The early church site is in the south corner of a field called Þáirc na Cille. Clothair is by some understood to be the name of the church founder—hence Tobair Ùaoisín Cloichir—“St. Clothair’s Well.” Area, 222 acres.

“Cill Cluaimh mar a mheann na caolcón” (Old Rhyme).

S.D. Ústairín na Meacan—“Little Road of the Parsnips”; an avenue which led to a garden (attached to a mansion).

KILCANNON, Cill Conaín—“Conan’s Church.” Compare Kilcannon, Dunhill Par., also Drumcannon, Barony of Middlethird, Co. Waterford. Area (in two divisions), 213 acres.

S.DD. (a) Glashalahan (O.M.), Gláire leathan—“Wide Stream.”

(b) Poulacrappa (O.M.), póil na Cráige—“Rock Hole.”

This is the site of an early church, surrounded by its circular fence of earth.

(d) Poulnabrone (O.M.), póil an Úrúsí—“Hole of Lamentation”; a pool in the Finisk.

KILGREANY, Cill Gráine—“Graine’s Church”; site of the cill will be found by north side of main road close to a cave and well. The personal name Gráine is usually anglicised—“Grace.” Area, 186 acres.

“Kilgrany” (Inq. Jas. I.).

KILLISHAL, Coill íreat (O’D. records it Cill f.)—“Lower Wood.” Area, 108 acres.

(b) póil Cáit Osborne—“Catherine Osborne’s Cavern.”

KILNAFARNA, Cill na Feárna—“Church of the Alder Tree (Alnus Glutinosa)”; site of the early ecclesiastical settlement was difficult to discover; it was found at length on the boundary between two farms (Tobin’s and Ronayne’s). To a well in the vicinity some sort of sacred character attaches. Area, 451 acres.

“Kilnefarny als Kilmafarnoge” (Inq. Cor. I., 1643).

KNOCKAUN, Cnocán—“Little Hill.” Area, 243 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cárraig Árvo—“High Rock.”

(b) Tobair na Leatb—“Well of the Rags.”

KNOCKACULLIN, Cnoc a Cuillinn—“The Holly Hill.” Area (in two divisions), 121 acres.

KNOCKMAON, Cnoc Meádon—“Middle Hill”; in allusion to the rocky outcrop in centre of the bog between two high ridges. On this rock was the castle of Knockmaon, some remains of which still stand. For a notice of the ruined church a few perches to south of this castle see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. IV., p. 93. On the eastern margin of Knockmaon Bog there would appear to have been a smithy or sword factory in the far-away bronze age. A quantity of unused implements of bronze have been found here, for a description of which see a paper by the present writer in the journal just quoted, Vol. IV., p. 47. Area, 146 acres.

S.D. Saileacán—“The Place of Willows”; a small stream on which was formerly a drawbridge.

KNOCKNACROOHA, Cnoc na Cruaide—“Hill of the Stack (of turf or rock).” Area (in two divisions), 670 acres.

Cúrraíochín na Muice—“The Pig’s Little Swamp.”

NEWTOWN, Baile Nuá. Idem. Area, 272 acres.

"Newtowne"—(A.S.E.)

S.D.D. (a) New Geneva (O.M.), a space of about twelve acres enclosed by a high stone wall with flanking towers at the angles. This was originally the site of a colony of Genevese, founded about 1785. The Irish Parliament voted £10,000 in aid of the settlement. In consequence, however, of the demand by the colonists of certain privileges which it was not thought proper to concede the settlement was abandoned. Next year the Government commenced the erection of the barracks, of which some remains survive. These afforded accommodation for 1,500 men, and were occupied by militia and troops of the line. "Geneva Barracks" acquired notoriety in connection with the Rebellion a few years later; they were used as a prison, whence transfer was made to a guardship at Passage. Many are the stories still current, or current a quarter of a century since, amongst the country people, of the dark deeds done within these frowning walls. "New Geneva" came to an inglorious end in 1824, when it was purchased by the Marquis of Waterford, who sold the buildings to a Mr. Galway (merchant) of Dungarvan, by whom the barracks were dismantled and much of the material carried by water to Dungarvan.

Faithlegg Parish.

IN the Down Survey map (j) this is represented by a single townland which gives name to the parish. The two additional townlands therefore must have been formed out of the first within the past 250 years. It is remarkable that in the whole parish there is not a single native Irish speaker—a fact very regrettable from the point of view of a student of place names. The ruins of the ancient church are in an excellent state of preservation; they consist of nave and chancel connected by a pointed chancel arch of wrought red sandstone. The west doorway, also of red sandstone, and in harmony (architecturally) with the chancel arch is somewhat elaborately moulded. Within the nave is a rather remarkable holy water stoup or baptismal font which has been deemed worthy of notice and illustration by Brash. (k) For further notice of this church see Journal R.S.A.I., Vol. I., Series 5, p. 481.

(j) Record Office, Dublin.

TOWNLANDS.

CHEEKPOINT, Pointe na Sioga—“Point of the Streak.” Thanks to the ignorance of guide book compilers the name is popularly supposed to imply fairy occupation or connection (Sige—a fairy). Sioga however (not Sige) is the word entering into composition, and the origin of the name seems clear enough, scil :—from a rock, Carras na Sioga—out in the river near low water mark. A strong and rapid current sweeps over the jagged sides and summit of the rock, and the consequence is a long trail, or streak, of foam down stream with the ebbing tide and up the river with the flow. Area, 199 acres.

(b) “The Russian Side,” portion of Cheekpoint so called because, according to tradition, a Russian family or small colony once established itself there.

COOLBUNNIA, Cúl Óuinne—“Ridge Back (or Corner) of the Stream.” Close to the ruins of Faithlegg Church in this townland is a mote with the ruined castle of the Aylwards within its bally. The castle stood a short siege in 1649, when it was defended by its owner against a Cromwellian division. The Protector, who, it appears, had known Aylward previously in England, offered what he was pleased to call favourable terms. Acceptance was however incompatible with the religious tenets of the besieged. Under the circumstances the garrison refused to capitulate, and the proprietor with his faithful retainers died, (l) like Horatius, facing fearful odds for his faith and his ancestral acres.

FAITHLEGG, Féilinn. The name, which possibly is not Irish, has long been a puzzle, which we can only hope future investigation may solve. Unfortunately the oldest forms of the name afford no help towards a solution. An Inquisition, temp. Elizabeth, renders the name,—Faithlegg als faithlack ; the Acts of Settlement and Explanation, which make it—Fathlegg als Faithlegg, are equally powerless to help. If conjecture be admissible for once, I would suggest Féileann, gen. Féilinn, "Woodbine" (m) as the term. This would suppose the name to be in the genitive, a phenomenon easily explicable from the present local name of Faithlegg Hill, scil :—Meánán Féilinn. The modern Irish for woodbine is Féaltóis, a term which would explain the old form of the name—"Fathlock." It is well to recollect that old Anglicised forms of Irish names not only represent the sound but very often form a picture of the name as it appeared in Irish spelling. Area, 353 acres.

"Faithbeg" (D.S.M.); fflyn (Indenture, 1508.—See Journal W. & S.E.I. Archaeological Society—April, 1906).

S.D.D. (a) "Knockrotton"—Cnoc a Ruppa. Meaning unknown; perhaps Ruppa for Ropaire, a robber. This was a demesne of 21 acres in which stood the country residence of John Roberts, the architect, great grandfather of Lord Roberts, and builder of the Catholic and Protestant Cathedrals of Waterford.

(b) "Bolton's Rock," on the river bank.

(c) Tobar Sionais—"Well of the Fox," though it is possible the latter member of the name is personal. This well, which is nearly opposite the church and on the west side of the road, had the reputation of sanctity. "Rounds" or "stations" were made here, but have been discontinued for over half a century.

(d) Tobar a Cait—"The Cat's Well." The cat figures frequently in place names in Waterford. How his feline highness come to be associated with a well it is not easy to conjecture.

(l) "Cromwell in Ireland," Rev. D. Murphy, S.J.

(m) Hogan "Gaelic Plant Names," p. 122.

(e) "St. Lawrence's Well." O'Donovan found this well on north-east side of the townland. (n)

(f) Meanán Féilinn—"Smooth Hillside of Faithlegg." This is the well-known Faithlegg Hill, the most prominent physical feature of the Barony. From the summit a view of singular historic interest and of entrancing beauty is afforded. Its coat of heather lent the hill a rounded (smooth) outline.

KILCULLEN, Cill Cuileann—most probably "Cullen's Church," though the name is locally pronounced as if it meant "Church of [the] Holly." There is a St. Cuilleann honoured on April 22nd in the Irish martyrologies, and a St. Cuillenn on Nov. 5th. (o) The early church site may be seen—an untilled and bramble-overgrown patch, in a field by the roadside a few perches north-east of Delahunty's avenue gate. The old mail road to Cheekpoint ran close by the west side of the cill, whence it was diverted to its present course.

Kilbarry Parish.

THE name of the parish is ecclesiastical in its origin, incorporating the ancient church founder's name (Bappa). The church, to which there are some references in municipal documents and monastic charters, passed early into the hands of the Knights Templars, who erected a preceptory of their order beside it. Though close to the Danish stronghold the original formation of the church was Celtic, as the name, retained through all the ages, indicates. Only insignificant remains of the church survive, and the cemetery had, a few years since, become so crowded that the Sanitary Authority was obliged to close it to further burials.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINAMONA, Baile na Móna—"Homestead of the (turf Bog)." There is little trace of turf now, and the bog (on the east side of the townland) which gave the place its name, has been drained long since. Area, 348 acres.

(n) Field Books (Waterford), Ordnance Office.

(o) "Martyrology of Donegal," at dates specified.

S.D. Corráigín na Ó-Fiáid—“Little Rock of the Ravens.” This is a sub-division and a name, almost as well known as the townland and the townland name themselves.

BALLINDUD, Baile an Tóoraig—“Dodd’s Homestead. (p) Area, 400 acres.

S.DD. (a) “Sheep’s Bridge” (O.M.). Modern though this name looks it can boast of very respectable antiquity; it occurs (in the form “Shepyn Bridge”) in a lease dated Oct. 1495, from John Devereux, Benedictine Prior of St. John’s, Waterford (to which house “Shepyn Bridge” belonged), to Thomas Shallway, of the City of Waterford. Three hundred years earlier our bridge was ancient enough to be known as “The Old Bridge.” (q) The Crompan stream flowing down from Tourgar is still generally resorted to, especially at Sheep’s Bridge, for sheep washing.

(b) “Cromlech”; a fine specimen, though somewhat ruined owing to failure of one of its supports and consequent tilting of the table stone.

(c) Cillín—“Little Burial Ground.” The word cill from the Latin cella was originally used to designate a primitive church. When the church disappeared the word came to signify the graveyard, and in this latter sense cill is generally used now. To add to the confusion cill, and still more, cillín, is applied to pagan as well as Christian places of sepulture. The cill, or cillín, site (early Christian) at Ballindud is close by the roadside, a few perches south-west of the main entrance lodge to Ballinamona Park; it is not marked by monument or remains of any kind, and some difficulty was experienced in locating it accurately.

BALBBEG, Baile Docht—“Poor Town.” The real name was changed, half a century or more since, to Baile Beag (“Small Town”) for reasons other than euphonic. Area, 267 acres.

BALLYHOO, Baile Núig—“Hugh’s Homestead.” Area, 300 acres.

(p) Comp. Gleannadodaigh, under Corbally, above.

(q) Charter of St. John’s Priory, Waterford—see Journal, Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. II., pp. 83, &c.

BALLYNANEASHAGH, Baile na n-Áearaċ—Meaning unknown.

Dr. O'Donovan however writes it Baile na n-Óeiréad—“Town of the Decies Family”—and suggests, in explanation, that a family of the Decies race may have lived here, amongst strangers, in the Danish or Norman period. (r) Area, 333 acres.

CARRIGANARD, Carrraig an Áitro—“Rock of the Height.” This townland was formerly part of Ballybeg (Ballybocht). Area, 163 acres.

CARRIGROE, Carrraig Ceoḃac—“Misty Rock.” O'Donovan appears to be responsible for fixing, if not for inventing, the name Carrraig Ruad—“Red Rock.” It is not easy to understand how the error originated. Perhaps—but this is almost incredible—the great topographer mistook the adjective. The latter is certainly ceoḃac, not ruad. We have here an instance of affected and irregular Anglicisation due largely, perhaps, to inability to pronounce the gutterals of the qualifying word. Area, 93 acres.

COOLGOWER, Cúl ḡábhair—“Goats' Ridge-back (or Corner).” It was into the Goolgower bog-hole, or pond, that the head of Crotty, the outlaw, was finally cast some time subsequent to his execution in Waterford (1742). Area, 93 acres.

KILBARRY, Cill Í�arra—“Barry's (or Bearach's) Church”; so called, no doubt, from the founder. Area, 456 acres, of which nearly a third is marsh.

S.DD. (a) Seana mÍacs—“Old Milking Place”; a field. (b) Bán a Ḥaróle—“Field of the Cooper's Adze”; the name of yet another field. The word ḥaróle occurs at least three times in place names in the county. Its special force can only be conjectured.

(c) Baile a Sitíne—“Homestead of the Neighing (of horses).” It indicates site of a farmstead where stud horses were at one time kept.

(r) Field Books, as above, Ordnance Office, Dublin.

LACKEN, Leacán (Locative case)—“Glen Side.” Leaca is primarily—a cheek, whence the secondary meaning—a hill or glen side. The word occurs with great frequency in place names—nearly always however in composition. From an Inquisition quoted below it appears that sixteen messuages in this townland belonged to the Priory of St. John at Waterford. Area, 147 acres.

“Lackyn” (Inquis. temp., Chas. I.); “Le Leccan” (Inq. at Passage June 12th, 1536).

S.D. Caerfaigín a Nóra—“Little Rock (by extension ‘Little Rocky Place’) of the Barley.”

Kilcaragh Parish.

THIS parish consisted originally of only a single townland. Later, a sub-division of the latter became an independent townland under the name of Bishopscourt. The parish was a prebend or canonry in the Diocese of Waterford and formed portion of the endowment of the Deanery.

TOWNLANDS.

BISHOP'S COURT, Cúairt an Earpaig. Idem. This townland, originally part of Kilcaragh, existed as a separate denomination as early at least as the middle of the 17th. century. It derived its name from a castle (every vestige of which has disappeared)—the summer, or country, residence of the Bishops of Waterford. The castle farm continued in the personal occupation of the Protestant Bishop till the Disestablishment, a few years ago. Area, 318 acres.

KILCARAGH, Cill Catairach—“Church with Stone Rampart.” The early Irish ecclesiastical establishment was surrounded by a circular fence of earth or stone, and most of our early church enclosures—those at least on which later churches have not been erected—still preserve this circular form. Cahirs are comparatively rare in Waterford. In fact only a specimen or two survive, but the occurrence of the word in place names proves that stone forts were formerly far from rare. The comparative scarcity of stone accounts for the enormous preponderance of earthen forts in this county. In the present instance all trace of church and cahir has disappeared, but a few old people still remember portion of the church ruin. It is probable there was no graveyard ; this is deduced (1) from the absence of all tradition of its existence, (2) the diminutive size of the parish, which can never have had more than a few dozen people, and (3) the rocky nature of the church site and surroundings, in which it would have been practically impossible to dig graves. Absence of a cemetery accounts for the complete disappearance of the church ruin. O'Donovan, it is interesting to note, gives two derivations of the place name. In the Ordnance Survey correspondence (s) he makes it—"St. Carthage's Church," while in the Field Books of the Survey (t)—as the result, doubtless, of more mature consideration—he renders it "Church of the Stone Fort" Area, 333 acres.

"Killcaragh" (D.S.R.).

S.D.D. (a) "Cnoc an Aċċaragh." Meaning unknown ; perhaps—"Hill of the Contention (Aċċaragh)."
This is the well-known name of a remarkable elevation. Local speakers of Irish regard the name as referring to a dispute, or fight, in connection with which the following legend is recited. One harvest season, in the distant long ago, when portion of the hill was under cultivation, a meiteal, or harvesting band, was on a certain day engaged in cutting the crop. Towards evening a woman entered the harvest field and demanded that she should be given as many sheaves as she could carry away. The demand was conceded, whereupon she gathered up the whole quantity harvested that day and, tying it into a bundle, swung it lightly on her back and proceeded to carry it off. The harvester, who had not bargained for this, remonstrated, and finally took the corn from her. Hereupon the woman, maintaining that the agreement made with her had been violated, went to lodge complaint with the men of her own family. These, enraged at the injustice to their kinswoman, came in hostile mood to demand satisfaction. The result was a fierce fight in which the weapons were sheaves of corn, wielded however with such force and fury that many of both sides were left dead upon the bloody field.

(b) Cnoc an Áir (O'Donovan)—“Hill of the Plague (Slaughter);” now however Cnoc an Óir—“Hill of the Gold,” most probably for Cnoc an Fosgraí—“Harvest Hill.” The hill, though now furze and heath o'ergrown, was once cultivated as tillage marks up its side testify.

(c) Dán a Phátrún—“Field of the Pattern.” It is hardly necessary to explain that “an phátrún” was a public celebration of the patronal feast of the church. At first purely devotional, the celebration—owing mainly to the operation of the Penal Laws—became largely festive. Consequent on the confiscation and ruin of the Church buildings, &c., the people were driven from the accustomed places of assemblage. Gradually the religious element in the celebration diminished, and too often the “pattern” degenerated into a scene of riot and drunkenness. This led in scores of instances to the suppression of the meeting by the clergy and, in comparatively few instances, to its reformation.

(d) Seana Learán—“Old Elm”; a field name. The elm rarely figures in place names.

(e) Dán na Péirte—“Field of the Reptile (or Worm).”

Kilcop Parish.

THOUGH the site of an early church on its single townland, as well as its name, indicate the ancient ecclesiastical note of the place, the present parish division seems to be comparatively modern. It appears as part of Crooke in the Down Survey, and is not mentioned in the early Visitation Books. Not a vestige of the ancient church survives, and the first Ordnance Surveyors failed to find even its site. One must conclude they did not search far. St. Coppa, virgin (daughter of Bardan) is commemorated on January 18th in the Irish martyrologies.

Killea Parish.

THIS parish takes its name from Aodh, a disciple of St. Declan, who established a cell here in the latter’s lifetime, and whom St. Declan called to minister to him when he found death approaching. (u) The English rededicated the church under the invocation of the Holy Cross (Sept. 14th.) All traces of the original church have disappeared, and of the 14th century church which succeeded only portion of the tower and south wall survive. (v)

COXTOWN, Coiteac—“ Woody Place,” according to O’Donovan. This derivation is not above suspicion. The name is locally understood to be coiteac, a cock,—hence the Anglicised form, to account for which a curious story is told. (w) Area (in two divisions, scil—East and West), 417 acres.

(c) Uamh na Sgaoil—“Cave of the Herrings.”

(d) Port Sputain—“Haven of the Little Stream.” Port is very generally used in Waterford to designate an embankment by a river to prevent inundation. Along the coast however, as in the present instance, it is a haven.

(e) “Red Head” (O.M.); so called from the decided hue of the old red sandstone. This is almost certainly the “Ruddybank” of the invaders and of early charters.

(f) Uamh a Ghairbhinn—“Cave of the Little Estuary.”

(g) Pur na h-Uarna—“Lip of the Cave.”

(h) “Bishop’s Cove”; the name is modern—probably from some man named Bishop who was drowned here. There is also “Bishop’s Cave,” a great and steep pit of the puffing-hole class, some forty perches inland from the cliff’s edge and forty or fifty feet in depth. Bishop’s Cave is now protected by a wall, but before the erection of this fence more than one life had been lost there.

(i) Oonarontia (O.M.), Uamh na Rón—“Cave of the Seals.”

(j) Port a Dóraír—“Hole (or Pool) of the Door.” The word door, in such contexts, occurs occasionally in cliff names; its exact force in this connection it is difficult to determine.

CREADAN, now Ceann Cnáidéin, formerly Ceann Críadán;—Meaning uncertain. Ceann is of course a headland, and the qualifying word may be a personal name. Creadan Head is the place so often referred to in charters, annals, &c., as the most easterly point of Waterford. Area, 497 acres.

“Credane” (A. S. & E.). “Arkredan” (Inquisitionum Repertorium Waterford, temp. Henry VIII., pp. 60-62, Record Office, Dublin). “Ceann Crete” (“Wars of Gaedhil and Gaill”).

S.DD. (a) Clair Ruaidhri—“Rory’s Trench”; an indentation caused partly by a landslip on the cliff edge near the central part of the townland.

(b) Ardnamoult (O.M.), Aird na Muile—“High Place of the Wethers”; a headland less prominent than that from which the townland is called.

(c) Toban Pocáin—“Ulcer Well”; a small spring at north-east extremity of the townland.

(d) “Forty Steps,” an artificial stairway in the cliff, at the extreme end of “the Head,” affording access to the sea as well as to a dark sea-cave, which is unnamed.

(e) “The Packs,” a rock projection, so marked on the Harbour Chart near the north-east point of the Head.

DUNMORE, Dún Mór—“Great Fort”; so called from an earthen entrenchment, still in part surviving, which crowned and defended the promontory known as the “Black Knob,” on which now stands the Coast Guard Signalling Station. The earthwork here is of the headland isolating class so frequent along the Waterford coast, and consisting of a line, or lines, of embankment thrown across the neck of the promontory. In the present instance only portion of a single embankment remains. Under the head of Dunmore is to be included Nymph Hall, a portion of Dunmore cut off to form a separate townland with the foregoing fancy name. Area (with Nymph Hall), 457 acres.

S.DD. (1) Inland—(a) Parkmoe (O.M.), páirc na m-Bó—“Field of the Cows,” the present public park of Dunmore.

(b) Parkanearla (O.M.), páirc an Lápla—“The Earl’s Field.”

(c) Gleann Márta an Laois—“Glen of the Slaughter of the Calf,” in reference to some legend or event now forgotten.

(2) Along cliff line from north to south and east to west—

(a) Faill a Chípin—“Cliff of the Broken Piece of Stick.”

(b) Laweesh (O.M.), Láimh; meaning unknown.

(c) Cathedral Rocks (O.M.)

(d) Póil Dubh—“Black Hole”; this is a chasm on the cliff edge.

- (e) Counsellor's Strand (O.M.)
- (f) Dunmore Strand (O.M.)
- (g) Carriglea (O.M.) ; this is locally—"Goosey's Rock."
- (h) Ladies' Cove (O.M.)
- (i) Poulnaleenta (O.M.) ; does not seem to be known locally.
- (j) Badger's Cove (O.M.)
- (k) Stony Cove (O.M.)
- (l) Shanoon (O.M.), Seanduairín—"Old Cave."
- (m) Black Knob (O.M.)
- (n) Uairín na g-Colum—"Pigeons' Cave."
- (o) Oonagh (O.M.), Uairín an Eile—"The Horse's Cave."

FORNAGHT, Fórnachta—"Completely Bare (Hill)." This word occurs in place names a few times only. Area, 384 acres.

"Fornaghty" (Down Survey Reference).

S.DD. (a) Tobair Úaire Uí Caorain—"Well of O'Keefe's Homestead"; reputed locally to possess curative properties.

- (b) Tobair na Srianóige—"Well of the Sunny Place."
- (c) An Srianóig—"The Sunny Place."
- (d) Gléann Diopáin—"Glen of the Dropping."

GRAIGARIDDY, Graig a Ruroe—"Village of the Scum." There is a large pond or water hole on which an impregnation of iron in the soil deposits a reddish scum. Area, 134 acres.

S.D. "Cudds"; presumably from curo, "portion," (con-acre plot). This name is applied to a field, or couple of fields, comprising a few acres.

KILLAWLAN, Cill Acláin—"Awlan's Church." The present is one of the few instances in which neither detailed physical examination of the locality nor careful search for tradition was successful in bringing site of the early church to light. (x)

S.D. Áit an Áifíann—"Ford of the Mass," because the road to a chapel of the Penal Days passed through it.

KILLEA, Cill Aoða,—"Aodh's Church." Area, 2 acres.

(x) "Achleanna vocatur mater SS. Fintane, Columbi, et Lugadii," Colgan, "Acta Sanctorum" note, p. 544.

KNOCKACURRIN, Cnocán Uí Čúrráoin—“O’Curran’s Little Hill.” Area, 38 acres.

KNOCKAVEELISH, Cnoc a Mhílir—“Myles’ Hill.” We cannot unfortunately identify Myles : he must have been a person of some note (perhaps legendary), for his name is perpetuated in the ancient names of Bellelake (y) and Woodstown Strand. (z) Area, 364 acres.

S.DD. (a) “The Short Head”—in contradistinction to Credan (the Long) Head.

(b) An Caoi Fhainnceácl—“The French Quay.”

LICAUN, Leacán—“Little Glen Slope (or side).” Area, 232 acres.

“Leckane” (D. Survey Ref.)

S.DD. (a) An Comhneácl—“The Commonage”; an unenclosed area of several acres. This appears as an independent townland on the Ordnance Map.

(b) An Cillín—“The Little Graveyard”; the site of an ancient burial place, and perhaps of an ancient church, discovered with difficulty. It will be found on Butler’s farm, and indicated by a remarkable “bullaun” or stone carved with a basinlike depression. “Bullaun” is merely a corruption of the English word bowl. These stones are found very generally on or beside ancient church sites, and occasionally too in other places. They possibly were connected with the rite of baptism.

LEPERSTOWN, Baile na Lóban—“Townland of (belonging to) the Leper”; so called because it was portion of the endowment of the Leper Hospital of Waterford. In this townland is a considerable area of commonage which formerly was much larger.

S.D. (a) The Fairy Bush (O.M.), Leacht Sgeinte a Dóthair—“The Leacht of the Bush of (by or in) the Road.” A leacht is a pile of stones—erected on the spot where the tragic occurrence took place—to commemorate a murder, fatal accident, or suicide. “Fairy bushes” (whitethorn) are uncommon in Waterford.

(y) Speed’s Map of “The Province of Munster,” London, 1610.

(z) See Woodstown, Kilnacomb Parish.

(b) Rinn Ruao—“Red Headland”; a considerable sub-division—of very poor land—which derives its name from the colour of its iron impregnated soil.

(c) Maċċa an tSaranaċ—“Cattle-yard of the Englishman (Protestant).” In the modern spoken language “Saranaċ” conveys the idea of “Protestant” rather than “Englishman.” Irish speakers regarded the two as synonymous, as witness the colloquial—“English Bishop,” i.e., the Protestant Bishop, &c.

(d) An Coimnear—See under Licaun above. The Comonage, embracing some thirty acres, is locally regarded as merely an appendage to Leperstown or Licaun.

PORTALLY, Port Alla—“Haven of the Cliff.” Port is a “haven,” even in the figurative sense, e.g. “Ata na purt uasacan.” (bb) The name, however, may be Port-falla, a term used in the Decies to designate a low wall or embankment; it would be applied, for instance, to a low protecting wall on top of a cliff. Area, 116 acres.

“Portallege”—(Inq. Jac. I.). “Portallagh als portallog als portallug”—(Acts S. & E.)

S.DD. (along cliff line—east to west). (a) Poll a tSeine—“Hole of the Seine Net.” The pool so named is within next, scil :

(b) Cuan Portalla—“Portally Cove.”

(c) Poll Uí Ceagádáin—“O’Ceagádan’s Pool.”

(d) Faill na gCaorac—“Cliff of the Sheep,” down which possibly a flock, or number of them, fell.

(e) Leac na ḡfeár—“Flagstone of the Men.”

(f) Uairn Óub—“Black Cave.”

Killure Parish.

THE parish is coterminous with the townland of Killure, from which it derives its name—Killure, Cill Iubair, i.e., “Church of (the) Yew tree.” Its ancient church, of which portion still stands, was monastic (Knights Templars). It is pretty safe to infer from its

(bb) Leabhar Breac, as quoted in Felire of Aenghus (Stokes), p. xxxv.

Irish name that the later Church of the Templars merely replaced an earlier Celtic foundation. Area, 627 acres.

"Kyllure" (Visit. Eliz., E. 3, 14, T.C., Dublin).

S.D. Caprais a tSiota—"Rock of the Silk." Origin of the name is unknown.

Kill St. Lawrence Parish.

THIS contains only three small townlands. The ruins of an ancient church (probably 16th century) stand in the now disused and overcrowded graveyard. Its proximity to the city caused the graveyard to be much used in times of pestilence, &c. A tradition was current half a century since that this church, though completed, or almost completed, by its builders, was never used. The "pattern" was held on August 10th, in the neighbourhood of the well called after the titular, and there lived till quite recently an aged woman who remembered seeing as many as thirty-six tents pitched here on the occasion of the celebration. The church was a post-invasion foundation, on (most probably) site of an older church.

TOWNLANDS.

CARRIGVOE, Cárpaís Uí ÓBaoiá—“O’Boy’s Rock.” Area, 160 acres.

S.D. "Cragheens," perhaps from craicín, a little lump or pile (of rock)—more likely, however, from craigin (cáirpín), little rock; the name is applied to a couple of small fields.

COUSE, Cábair—“Causeway (or crossing place).” The couse is generally a line of stepping-stones; sometimes it is a tree trunk laid across a stream. The present townland is called "Couse Michael" in the ancient baptismal Register (middle of 18th century) of St. John's Church, Waterford. Area, 111 acres.

S.D. Áit Óuirde—“Yellow Ford.”

KILL ST. LAWRENCE, Cill San Laethair—Church of St. Lawrence (the Martyr). Area, 36 acres.

S.D. Cobair Naomh Laethair—“St. Lawrence’s Well.”

Kill Saint Nicholas Parish.

THE titular of the church and parish suggest the Norman origin of both, for St. Nicholas was to the Normans what St. Michael had been to the Danes. Of course there may have been, and probably there was, an early Celtic church previous to the Norman foundation. The parish is large and somewhat dismembered—a small section being separated by a couple of miles from the main portion. A mound, covered with furze and rank vegetation, and a piece of masonry a couple of yards in length, mark the site of the ancient church on the townland which gives its name to the parish. Close to the church site, on the north-west, is St. Nicholas' Well, not now in much repute locally.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYCANAVAN, Daile Uí Čeannabáin—“O’Canavan’s Town.”

Area (in two divisions), 340 acres.

“Ballycanvane” (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

BALLYGLAN, Daile an Gleanna—“Homestead (or town) of the Glen.” Area, 381 acres.

“Ballinglanne” (Inq. Jas. I.) ; “Balliglann” (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

S.D.D. (a) Bóthairín na mBean nÍosom—“Little Road of the Black Women.” Íosom is generally rendered “blue,” but this is only approximately correct. In the present instance the force of the word is probably—black. Comp., peair íosom—a negro. Món Íosom, in Ballygunner, is popularly translated “Foxy Bog.” The present “bóthairín” is an old road running east and west along summit of the ridge which ends in Knockaveelish Head. The general east to west direction of the oldest road lines in this Barony is very remarkable.

(b) Áit a Čamain—“Ford of the Crooked (Stick or Place).”

(c) Cárraig a Dóire—“Rock of the Oak Tree”; a remarkable elevation, crowned by a cromlech and stone circle.

BALLINABOOLA, Daile na Duaille—“Homestead of the Booley (or Cattle Field).” Duaille is from the root bo, a cow. Area, 236 acres.

BARRISTOWN, Baile an Óaireag — “Barry’s Homestead.”
Area, 280 acres.

- CARRIGLEIGH, Carrraig Liat — “Grey Rock.” Area, 160 acres.

(b) Coheen Bridge (O.M.), Recte, Cabairín (pronounced cowsheen) Bridge. See Couse above.

CROSS, Cnóir — “Cross Roads”; so called from the ancient meeting place, on western side of the bog (where no road exists now), of the old road from Waterford, via Ballygunner Church, with a branch road from Ballycanavan. Area, 229 acres.

- “Crosse towne” (D.S. Ref.).
S.DD. (a) Foxmount (O.M.) ; the fancy name of a single farm — lucus a non lucendo.

(b) An Tóibh Cnoc — “The Black Hill”; a furze-covered elevation of no importance. Some adjectives of colour precede the noun in place names; compare Tóibh-Glaise, Tóairis-riat, &c.

DRUMRUSK, Órom Rúrca — “Ride of the Fleeces,” according to O’Donovan. (cc). The name savours of antiquity. Area, 306 acres.

- “Drome Roske” — (D.S. Ref.).
KILL ST. NICHOLAS, Cill San Niocláir — “Church of St. Nicholas.” Area, 189 acres.
S.DD. (a) Tobair a Teampaill — “Well of the Church.”
(b) Carrraig a Leapa — “Rock of the Lios.”
(c) An Seana Muillinn — “The Old Mill”; applied to quondam site of mill.

KNOCKNAGOPPLE, Cnoc na gCapall — “Hill of the Horses.”
Area, 115 acres.

- “Knocknegapple” (D.S. Ref.).
KNOCKROE, Cnoc Ruad — “Red Hill.” Area, 273 acres.

(cc) Field Books, O.S. (Waterford), in Mountjoy Barracks.

(b) Láthair a thullum—“Fork (meeting of two streams) of the Mill.”

(c) St. Anne’s Well (O.M.); on north-east of townland, and now waterless owing to diversion of its spring. There is no tradition of stations.

(d) Sput a Óraðair; meaning unknown. Óraðair is used locally to designate a heavy unwieldy person.

PARKSWOOD, Coill na Páirce—“Wood of the Field.” Area (in two divisions), 291 acres.

“Parckeswood alias Kyllneparcke” (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

PASSAGE EAST, Páirce. In Munster Páirce is used in sense of the northern—Snáim, that is, a piece of water which one can swim across. (dd) The town of Passage continued, till recently, portion of the Borough of Waterford. (ee) Area (in two divisions), 5 and 3 acres, respectively.

S.D.D. (a) “The Garrison” (O.M.); the castle of Passage, only a small portion of which survives. It belonged to the defender of Faithlegg, Sir P. Aylward, and was reduced, in 1649, by General Bolton, who also took and dismantled the tower, now very ruinous, which commanded the harbour from the hilltop. Built into a wall in the village is a stone bearing the arms of Aylward.

(b) “Old Chapel,” in the south end of the village.

Kilmacomb Parish.

SHEARMAN (ff) attributed the foundation of this church to Mochumb, an Ossorian monk, the 7th century contemporary and friend of SS. Canice, Pulcherius and Fachtna. Coma or Mochuma is not mentioned in the Irish martyrologies, though his name is distinctly perpetuated in the title of three churches in Ossory. There is a second Cill Mochoma in Waterford. English the Church of Kilmacomb appears to have been re-dedicated, not, as Dr. O'Donovan states, to St. John the Baptist, but to St. Matthew, Apostle, on whose feast (September 21st) the "pattern" is still kept. The ruins of a rather rude (approximately 14th century) church remain in a poor state of preservation, and some years since a pitying neighbour whitewashed the crumbling walls! (hh)

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINKINA, Baile an Céideanais—"Kyne's Homestead." The townland formed portion of the endowment of St. John's Priory, Waterford. (ii) Area, 302 acres.

"Ballynykeyny" (D.S. Ref.); "Ballychoyne" (Inq. Henry VIII.).

S.D. An tÁit—"The Ford"; the ancient crossing place, by the old road to Ballygunner Church ruin and graveyard, over the stream which forms western boundary of the townland.

CROSS. See above, under Kill St. Nicholas Parish. Area, 37 acres.

HARRISTOWN, Baile hAnraoi — "Henry's Homestead." Area, 229 acres.

S.DD. (a) CARRAIS FÁTHA—"Long Rock"; the hill on summit of which is the cistvean, with stone circle, referred to under "Ballyglan."

(b) "Fairy Bush" (O.M.) ; in Irish—Croíairí Leacht Sgeite a Ústair—"Cross Road of the Monument by the Bush on the Road." Croíairí = Croí, i.e., cross roads. The leacht here had a small stone circle which has entirely disappeared; some of its stones were in position sixty years since. See also under Leperstown, Killea Parish.

“Cnockhouse” (Acts S. and E.).

S.D. DOTAILPIN DUBH—“Little Black Road”; from the quantity of turf formerly stacked up there.

WOODSTOWN, BAILE NA COILLE. The English, or official, form is merely a literal translation of the Irish name. Area, 292 acres.

(b) Min—“Smooth Green Plain,” the Irish name of the “Rabbit Burrow.”

(c) Douglas (stream), DUBH-GLAIRE—“Black Stream.” Glairé is evidently from glar, i.e., azure—colour of air or water.

Kilmacleage Parish.

THE parish is called from the name of the townland on which the church stood—the townland and church deriving their name in turn from the (probably 6th century) founder of the latter. The English, as was their custom, re-dedicated the church, the new titular being St. Michael the Archangel, as the "pattern," still kept, testifies. Only insignificant remains of the church survive; these are rather picturesquely situated on the extreme point of a fertile headland which juts out into that portion of Tramore Bay, known as "The Back Strand." A landslip seems likely, in the no distant future, to bury in the waves the walls which have withstood the storms of centuries. The church consisted of nave and chancel, but unfortunately the chancel arch has fallen. A curious feature of the ruin is the sloping pier, evidently cotemporaneous with the church itself, which supports the north side wall. It is evident that when the builders had reached the height of three or four feet from the ground they found the wall out of plumb— inclining outwards—possibly through defective foundation. They solved the difficulty by erecting the sloping pier, and thence upward incorporating the pier with the wall! Close to the church lie a great stone font or laver of rude workmanship and portion of a second and much smaller, but otherwise similar, vessel. Several well defined mounds, with traces of many earthen buildings and enclosures, immediately to the north of the ruin, tell of former extensive settlement. An ancient roadway is traceable along the headland and by the church till it loses itself over the low clay cliff, a few yards to the south-east of the ruin.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINVELLA, Baile an Uile—"Homestead of the Old Tree." A leper resided at Ballinvella as late as the middle of the 17th century. (kk) The last windmill to cease working in the County Waterford still stands at Ballinvella, minus only its roof. Area, 251 acres.

"Ballyvelly" (D.S. Ref.) ; "Ballenvillore" (Inq. temp. Jac. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Bán na mBaob—"Field of the 'Bibes.'"

(ll) See an tca, under Ballymabin, Killea Parish.

(b) Át na Duinníse—“Ford of the Water Gush” (Duinniusgach—scaturire).

BALLYGARRON, Úaile an Gárráin—“Town (or Homestead) of the Grove.” The word gárrán, though obsolete in the spoken language, is of very frequent occurrence in place names throughout the Decies. Area, 412 acres.

S.D. (a) Killenagh Burial Ground (O.M.)—An Cillineac. This is the site of an early church, of which all trace has disappeared. The circular space, a quarter of an acre in extent, is still partly enclosed by its earthen rampart, but no burial has taken place there within memory of living man. A bullán of ancient type has recently been removed from the site. There was here also at the time of the Ordnance Survey a rough slab of stone, cross-inscribed and apparently of early date.

(b) Cloc Úctaír—“Stone of (by) the Road”; a large, coarse boulder by side of the present main road.

(c) Seana Spáis—“Old Village (lit. ‘street’)”); a field in which was formerly a village.

BALLYLOUGH, Úaile an Locha—“Town of the Lake.” This place name is, by snobbery, Anglicised—“Bellake.” Area (in two divisions), 616 acres.

(b) Faill Eogáin—“Eoghan’s Cliff”; a well known hill from which a rich and varied view is obtainable.

(c) Cnoc an Fiaidh—“Hill of the Deer (or Fiaidhlaig—‘Of the Hunting’).” This is the portion of the ridge on which Ivie’s farmstead stands so conspicuously.

(d) Belle Lake (O.M.), a sheet of water some sixty acres in extent. There is no special Irish name, but Speed’s Map (1610) calls it—Lough Miles.

BALLYNAMINTRAGH, Úaile na mBaintreabhaic—“Town of the Widows.” Area, 702 acres.

“Ballynemontragh” (Inq. temp. Jac. I.).

S.D. (a) Ceatharnað Ḫarð—“Coarse Quarter”; a tract of very inferior land on west side of the townland. This appears as a separate townland in the Down Survey, scil :—Garhnegariffe.

(b) Gleann Óróairg—“Dodd’s Glen.”

(c) Át an Oirrigh; meaning unknown.

(d) Át Ótarlín na Ceáiricéan—“Road-ford of the Forge.”

(e) Úán na gCrúibíníde—“Field of the Crubeens.” The crubbeen, but little known locally, is a species of blackberry (Rubus Caesius). The fruit is known by the same Irish name in the Aran Islands, where it thrives on the rocks.

(f) Seana Íráid—“Old Village”; a field in front (S.W.) of Flynn’s farmhouse. The íráid, not a stone upon a stone of which now remains, was approached by an old road, debouching at an angle of 20 degs. from the present Tramore-Dunmore road at a point 30 perches to the west of the farmhouse just mentioned, and running by north side of present farm buildings till it struck line of the present Waterford road, some 30 perches to north of Ballynamintragh Cross Roads.

(g) Muillion Uí Cuinn—“O’Quinn’s Mill”; in ruins for half a century at least.

(h) Át Dub—“Black Ford”; crossed by present Tramore Road on west side of the townland.

BALLYSHONEEN, Baile Séonin—“Homestead of Little John (or Jennings).” Area, 231 acres.

“Ballyshoneene” (D.S. Ref.).

KEILOGE, Caol fóid—“Narrow Land (lit. ‘sod’),” from analogy of places similarly named (and Anglicised—Keeloge) throughout Connaught. (mm) More probably, however, Caotóig—“Little Narrow Place,” from analogy of Waterford names. Locally the name is now often pronounced Coilleóis—“Little Wood.” The townland is peculiar in shape; it terminates at its eastern end in nose-like projection, half a mile in length by one-seventh of a mile wide. This projection, by the way, appears as a separate townland under the name Baunfine in the Down Survey. Area, 555 acres.

(mm) Field Books, Ord. Sur., Mountjoy Barracks.

"Keyloggs" (D.S. Ref.).

S.DD. (a) Óán Fionn—"White Field." This is the "Baunfine" of the Down Survey.

(b) Át an Caoilteig—"Narrow-Land Ford"; old people still living remember the ford and the line of stepping-stones previous to erection of the present bridge.

(c) Át an Churraige—"Ford of the Marshy Place"; towards east extremity to townland.

(d) Móin a tSeabhaic—"Bog of the Hawk."

(e) Cnuicín an Áiríunn—"Little Hill of the Mass"; on boundary with Callaghane, and extending into latter.

(f) Caol Sorm—"Narrow Blue (Black ?) Place."

KILMACLEAGUE, Cill mic Liag—"MacLiag's Church." This was anciently—with Ballygarron, Keiloge and Bawnfine—glebe land, pertaining to the See of Waterford.

S.DD. (a) Clocháin—"Stony Place"; a sub-denomination better known perhaps than the townland name itself.

(b) Deárlna Úrde—"Yellow Gap (or Pass)," no doubt from the colour of the blossoming furze.

(c) Dealacl Slatin, (also Deul Áta Slatin)—"Roadway (or Ford Mouth) of Little Rod (or Stick)"; formerly this was a passage across a small sea inlet. Yet another name was Deárlna Sálac—"Dirty Gap."

(d) Lior na gCaoineach—"Lios of the Sheep"; because the enclosure was used as a sheepfold.

(e) Lismongragh (O.M.), Lior Mongáineach—"Roaring (or Howling) Lios."

(f) Óán an Easpóig—"Bishop's Field"; glebe land.

(g) Óannra. This word, as name of a field, occurs a few times in the county; it is apparently a rendering of "Manse," and in every case the field to which it is applied is glebe land.

(h) Rinnashark (O.M.), Rinn na Seap—"Headland of the Sharks."

ORCHARDSTOWN, Baile an Uiball-Suirte—“ Orchard Home-stead.” This appears in the Down Survey Map as Ballynolost. Some Saxon Surveyor or clerk wrote s for r, and hence the transformation. Area, 251 acres.

(b) Bán na gCnáth—“ Field of the Bones.” Burials are supposed to have taken place in this field, and a ghostly horse sometimes shows himself ! Also, Croíraine Bán na gCnáth; the cross-roads adjacent to the field.

Monamintra Parish.

THE parish, of comparatively recent formation, contains one town-land only, from which it gets its name. It had no church. Monamintra—in two divisions—appears in the Down Survey as a portion of Kilmacleague Parish.

MONAMINTRÁ, Móin na mBaintreabhaíc—“ Bog of the Widows.” Area, 356 acres.

“ Moynmontraghmore and Moynmontraghbeg ” (D.S. Ref.).

Rathmoylan Parish.

THE Rectory, like Killea, belonged to the Priory of St. John, Waterford. Rathmoylan Church ruin, standing on a natural, mound-covered plateau, has a modern look, and is in a comparatively good state of preservation. Attached to the church is a small graveyard, which contains neither inscription nor aught else of particular interest. In the few grass-grown mounds beside the church ruin, indicating the former site of a village, an imaginative writer discovered remains of the royal rath of O’Felan, Prince of Desi ! (nn)

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYMACAW, Daile mic Óáidh—“MacDavid's Town (or Homestead).” It may be assumed, from A.S.E. &c., below, that Ballymaquill is another, and (presumably) earlier, name for Ballymacaw. Area, 539 acres.

“BallymcDavin” (Inq. temp. Car. I.) ; “Ballymacka als BallymacDavid als Ballymaquile” (A.S.E.) ; “Comon betweene BallymcKella and Brownestown” (D.S. Ref.).

S.DD. I. (Inland) (a) Cúl Uí Ceallaigh—“O'Callaghan's Corner (or Ridge Back)”; a large sub-division, formerly an independent townland.

(b) “The Ruan” (An Ruán). Ruan is primarily a plant which dyes red, but it is used, even by English speakers, in a transferred sense, to designate a certain class of inferior, moory land which produces the weed in question.

(c) An Fáitche—“The Hurling Green,” a field on Cúl Uí Ceallaigh.

S.DD. II. (Along Cliff Line)—W. to E. :—

(d) Cuan Daile mic Óáidh—Ballymacaw Cove.

(e) Cárraig na m-Bád—“Boats' Rock”; within last.

(f) Dúimplic. The name is probably a corruption of “derelict”; it designates a small cove.

(g) Port a Mharó—“Haven of the Stick (Piece of Timber).”

(h) An Seomra—“The Chamber”; an arched cave leading from one small bay to another.

(i) Fáil Faoa—“Long Cliff.”

(j) Uairín an Iarainn—“Cave of the Iron.”

(k) Port a Cláirde—“Haven of the Earthen Fence.”

BROWNSTOWN, Daile an Óigráig—“Brown's Homestead.” Area, 413 acres.

“Brownestown als Brownetown” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. All are rock and cliff &c. names along the coast line from N. to S. and W. to E. :—

- (a) "Bar Rock" (O.M.).
- (b) Cooneenclogher (O.M.), Cuaínín Clocháir—“Little Stony Cove.”
- (c) Pointe na mBáistí—“Point of the Bass”; from a kind of fish caught here.
- (d) An Rúirc; meaning unknown. Rúirc is explained in the Dictionaries—a whipping, or violent slap. (oo) The name is, in the present instance, applied to a considerable extent of level strand, once mussel covered.
- (e) Portheige (O.M.), Pointe Taidhg—“Taidhg's (Timothy's) Point.”
- (f) Sluasaí—“A Gurgling Sound,” by onomatopœia; by extension—the thing which utters the sound. It is the name of a cave through which the waves are driven with a hollow bubbling noise.
- (g) Faill a Mhaora—“Cliff of the Wolf (or Dog).” Mhaora in place names often signifies a wolf. (pp)
- (h) Póill Suingean—St. John's Hollow”; the place probably where a man named St. John was drowned or killed.
- (i) Trais Úeas—“Little Strand.”
- (j) Cloc Liat—“Grey Rock.”
- (k) Cuaínín an Fíona—“Little Cove of the Wine”; from a wine-laden ship wrecked there.
- (l) Clashlacky (O.M.), Clair Leacairé—“Flaggy Trench.”
- (m) Portoonakabeg, pórt Uaitne Úeas—“Little Green Haven”; a small inlet. See (p) below.
- (n) Pouljoe (O.M.) and Poulhardy (O.M.); possibly called from men named respectively Joe and Hardy (a local name) who lost their lives in the waterholes or pools named.
- (o) “Traction,” a cliff; origin of name unknown.
- (p) Portoonaka (O.M.), pórt Uaitne—“Green Haven.”
- (q) Foilnaracka (O.M.), Faill a Raca—“Cliff of the Wreck.”

(oo) Vid. Dineen.

(pp) “Scottish Land-Names,” Sir Herbert Maxwell, Edinburgh, 1894, p. 126.

- (r) Fáil na Sgean—“Cliff of the Knives.”
- (s) Scoilt a Cinn Áirí—“Cleft of the High Head”; this is the extreme point underneath the south-west tower.
- (t) Garrigaunboy (O.M.). I failed to discover the name locally.
- (u) Fouhnalium (O.M.), Sput na Léim—“Stream of the Waterfalls. Léim is primarily “a leap.”
- (v) Portalaun, Port Oileán—“Island Haven”; a small headland with an ancient entrenchment across its neck. See under Dunmore, Killea Parish.
- (w) Poulhoulen (O.M.). poull Howlett; probably from some man named Howlett drowned here.
- (x) Beengarvoge, Binn Garbhais—“Wild Mustard (Sinapis Arvensis) Headland.”
- (y) Lic an Eirg—“Flagstone of the Fish.” The first word of the compound is not in the nominative, but—as we often have it in place names—in the dative, or rather locative case.
- (z) poull na gCóirc—“Pool of the Corks.”
- (aa) poull Faoit—“White’s Pool”; from a fisherman drowned there.
- (bb) Cionn Liat Úrbhe—“Yellow Grey Head.” The two first words are regarded as a single term which the (now second) adjective qualified. Observe use of the oblique, cionn, for the nominative.
- (cc) Scoilt a Óuirípc—“Cleft of the Dulse.” Óuirípc (Dulse, otherwise “Green Lavers”—Ulva Latissima) is an edible seaweed.
- COOLUM; see under Corbally Parish. O’Donovan, however, writes it Cúllom—i.e., “Bare Ridge Back.” The name as a townland denomination seems comparatively modern. At any rate it does not appear in the Down Survey Map. Area, 362 acres.
- S.D.D. I. (Inland). (a) Bóthairín and Dán a Rioğ—“Little Road of King” and “Field of the King” respectively.

(c) Caprais a Muirion and Caprais a Swede—“Rock of the Murder” and “Rock of the Swede” respectively. The Irish muirroeadair, it may be well to observe, is not necessarily the capital offence of British law, but violent death of any kind.

(d) Clair Ána—“Ana’s (or Anne’s) Trench”; a small glen running out towards the sea.

(e) Deinre Úrroe—“Yellow Bank.”

(f) Uairn Gáthrae—“Goat-Fish (?) Cave.”

GORTAHILLY, Gort a Caille—“Garden of the (Heath) Cock.” Area, 155 acres.

S.D. Bán an Áiríann—“Field of the Mass.” This, or a similar name, is sometimes applied to a place through which ran a “Mass Path,” or short way across a field to a church.

GRAIGUE, An Gráig—“The Village.” Area, 95 acres.

“Graige” (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

S.D. Cnocán—“Little Hill”; a hillock on which people assembled for amusement on Sunday evenings.

KILMAQUAGE, Cill mo Cuáig—“St. Mocuac’s Church.” The saint in the present instance is identical with, or a namesake of, the patron of Kilmacow in Ossory, Clashmore in the Decies, and Kilmacow, Bar. of Kinnatalloon, Co. Cork.

“Killmaquage als Killmcquage als Kilmoguage” (A.S.E.).

S.D.D. (a) Cillín a Méadair—“Meade’s Cillin,” site of the ancient church from which the townland derives its name. This is on the holding of a farmer named Meade—hence the qualifying word. The cillín here is still surrounded by its original circular fence of earth. Very generally, as in the present instance, the cillín is found in a valley or other secluded place, while the túor, which hardly differs from it in external appearance, is found, as a rule, in an open position on a ridge or hillside.

(b) Tobair Cuain—“Cuan’s (or Quann’s) Well.” This formerly enjoyed some reputation for sanctity, and “stations” were performed here a century since.

(c) Cúl 'Oifigheas—“Blackthorn Abounding Ridge Back (or Corner)”; probably a suppressed townland name.

(d) poll a phúca—“The Pooka’s Hollow”; name of a field.

KNOCKANPADDEN Cnocán Óróin—“Little Patrick’s Little Hillock.” Area, 134 acres.

RATHMOYLAN, Ráth Maoláin—“Maolan’s Fort.” It was anciently, according to the Books of Survey and Distribution, in three parts, scil:—Rathmoylan-Aylworth, Rathmoylan-Wadding, and Rathmoylan-Dobbyn.

“Rathmolan” (Visit. Bk. Eliz., E. 3, 14, T.C.D.).

S.D.D. I. (Inland). (a) pairtein a phátrum—“Little Green of the Pattern.”

(b) Sappairinn, aliter, Sappairde Gabáinn—“Rough Piece of Land,” otherwise, “Garden of the Cattle Pound.”

(c) Slinn a tSeagail—“Slaty Place of the Rye.” Rye is now seldom grown in Waterford, but, judging from the frequency of the word in place names, it was once extensively cultivated. Seagail is a loan word from the Latin Secale.

S.D.D. II. (Coastwise, W. to E.). (d) “Entrenchment” (O.M.); a small entrenched headland of prehistoric type. The space enclosed by the circumvallation is, as in the Coolum entrenchment, about half an acre; originally, as in the case of the latter, the space was much more extensive.

(e) Stony Cove (O.M.), poll a Guail—“Coal Hole.”

(f) pairteisírt—“Cloven (?) Cliff”; an allusion to a separated rock in the sea above low water mark.

(g) Carrraig na pairteisírt—“Rock of the Cloven (?) Cliff”; a rock in the sea, at the distance of a furlong or more from the head. I do not understand how psírt in the present name and in the preceding come to be in the same case.

(h) port Seite—“Haven of the Hide.”

(i) Uairín Thionáin; apparently—“Kid’s Cave.”

(j) Gealp Uairín—“Short Cave.”

(k) "Old Ship's Cove" (O.M.), Seana Long—“Old Ship,” name of a small cove.

(l) Port Sreanarðe—“Gravel Haven.”

(m) Rathmoylan Cave (O.M.), Uairn Roin—“Seal Cave.”

(n) Green Cave (O.M.), Glaer-Uarmha—“Green Caves.” This is usually translated “green”; it indicates rather a light blue-grey—the colour of air or running water.

(o) Uairn na Maolac; meaning unknown.

(p) Uairn Dub—“Black Cave.”

Rossluff Parish.

THE Parish is, like Monamintra and Corbally, of late erection, for in the Down Survey, Rossluff appears as parcel of Kilmacomb. As an independent parish it contains only the townland of the same name, and has neither church remains nor site; it gave title and revenue to a prebend in the Cathedral of Waterford. There is a reference to Rossluff as early as 1494. See Journal Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. IX., p. 124.

TOWNLAND.

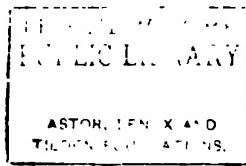

ROSSDUFF, Ror Dub—“Black Shrubbery.” Area, 196 acres.

(b) Tobair a Bláic; bláic is the English “black,” which is occasionally appropriated in place names to signify a reclaimed peaty bog patch.

St. John's Parish (Without).

THIS Parish was in two parts, styled respectively St. John's Within and St. John's Without. One part, as its name suggested, lay within the city wall; the other embraced the adjacent suburbs or liberties. The parish took its name from the Benedictine Priory of St. John the Evangelist, in which it was inappropriate. For a full account of the Priory, church, &c., see Journal Waterford Archaeological Society, Vol. II., p. 81. St. John's tutelage (ancient and modern) is recalled by quite a host of street &c. names within the parish ; thus we have St. John's Church, College, Schools, Mills, &c., John's Street, Town, Lane, Place, Pill and Avenue.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYTRUCKLE, Baile Ḥrucait—“Torcal’s Town (or Homestead).” This affords one of the few instances of the survival of a Danish name. Torcal (Thorgils, Thorkils, Turgesius, or Turgeis) was a Danish chieftain of Waterford. By internal metathesis, common enough to place names, the name has been made Ḥruocat. O’Donovan derives Ballytruckle from Ḥrucait gen. Ḥrucaile, a car, but there is certainly no final e sound in the place name as locally pronounced. Ballytruckle is the place called in old documents, &c., the Oxmanstown, or Osmanstown, of Waterford. Area, 273 acres.

“Ballitrickill” (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

BALLYCOURDRA, Baile Σορδραού, “Cordray’s Homestead.” There is in the Barony a second townland of the name, forming a detached portion (89 acres) of Drumcannon Parish. Area, 14 acres.

COVE. The name is English and modern, the place being merely a later sub-division of Grange. Area, 34 acres, including a portion within the Municipal boundary.

GRANGE. Grainreach—“A farm with its buildings”; the name was applied to the out-farm of an abbey or religious house. In the Down Survey Map, portion of which (reproduced) is given herewith, it will be observed that Grange, Newtown, &c., are allotted to “St. Katherine’s Parish.” Of course there was no such parish; the explanation is that these lands formed part of the endowment of St. Catherine’s Abbey, and that they (portion of them, at any rate) were farmed by the community—

hence the name, Grange. On the suppression the lands seem to have passed to the Sherlocks, and we find them referred to as "Saint Katharine's Grandge" in the will (latter half of 16th century) of James Sherlock, Mayor of Waterford, 1580, &c. Area (in two divisions), 331 acres.

"Grange" (A. S. and E.).

S.DD. (a) Gall's Rock (O.M.).

(b) Richardson's Folly (O.M.) ; a long narrow lane joining the Grange and Kill St. Lawrence roads. The term "Folly," qualified by the name of its author, is applied to a building, garden or other work of an expensive and useless, or white-elephant, character. Compare "Aby's Folly," under Coxtown, Killea Parish.

NEWTOWN, Baile Nuad—"New Town (or Homestead)." The name is of very frequent occurrence, and most of the new towns are now very old towns indeed. Area, 148 acres.

S.D. "Highly Up's"; the name, now practically obsolete, applied to the junction of the Newtown, with the Passage, Road (east corner). A publichouse formerly stood here, from the proprietor of which, presumably (or rather from his nickname), the corner derives its singular title.

PRIORSKNOCK, Cnoc a Phriora—"Prior's Hill." This land formed portion of the endowment of the Benedictine Priory of St. John's. Area, 51 acres.

"Pryorsknock" (D.S.M.).

The following street, &c., names in St. John's Without deserve record, inasmuch as either the name is becoming obsolete or the reason for its application is not now apparent :—

(a) "Ballymacedulan"—old name of townland embracing sites of the present County Infirmary, Fever Hospital, Waterloo House, &c.

(b) "Bath Street"—named from Poleberry Baths, which stood near site of present Shee Charity.

(c) "College Street"—the present continuation of Bath Street to Hennessy's Road; so named from Old College of St. John on its west side.

- (d) "Fairy Lane"—present Henry Street, off the Manor.
- (e) "Frederick Street"—(now non-existent) led south from Poleberry and parallel with Old Tramore Road.
- (f) "Hardy's Road"—the continuation of South Parade by north side of Park to Bridge; named from a Colonel Hardy, owner of east side of Johnstown, &c.
- (g) Johnstown, Féarán Tighe Eoin—"Land (or Farm) of St. John's House," i.e., St. John's Priory.
- "Johnstowne alias Farretyoinn" (Inq. temp. Jac. I.).
- (h) "Lower Road"—now called, by affectation, Lower Newtown. This was also called, through contempt—Falla Fóirín—"Mud Wall (Town)."
- (i) "Mendicity Lane"—running south-west from John's Bridge into Manor; now part of Railway Square.
- (j) "Old Brewery" (Bell & Ramsay's)—present site of Tramore Railway Station.
- (k) "Poleberry." (Poleberry Lane in lease of 1793); derivation unknown; probably Póill Úisí—"Water Cress Hole."
- (l) "Rampart Lane"; this name occurs in century and a half old entries in Baptismal Registers of St. John's Church; it was probably the former name of Castle Street. In Castle Street was "Jackey's Hole," a well or pool (afterwards represented by a hydrant), supplied by a subterraneous aqueduct from a spring near east end of Hennessy's Road. The aqueduct in question caved in and was filled up or repaired some thirty years since; it is the "subterranean passage" concerning which there is a query in the first No. Journal of Waterford Archaeological Society.
- (m) "Willow Garden"—to west of Old Tramore Road, where now is a row of cottages.
- (n) "Wyse's Bridge"—at junction of Bath Street and Poleberry. The bridge is remarkable for having a pointed arch at one side and a round arch at the other.

St. Stephen's Parish (Without).

THE fragment of St. Stephen's Parish which lay beyond the walls may be described generally as the triangular area bounded by Johnstown and Ballytruckle Road on the East, John's Pill on the West, and a very irregular line—from Waterloo House to Ozier Bank House—on the South. It has but few sub-denominations, and of these not more than four or five call for notice :—

- S.DD. (a) "Ballymacedulan" (see St. John's Without, above).
- (b) "Bleach Yard"—now grounds of Waterloo House.
- (c) "Ice House"—on north side of Poleberry Lane.
- (d) Miller's Marsh ; from its proximity to, and connection with, John's Mill. References to the mill in question are, by the way, traceable back for centuries.
- (e) "St. Mary Maudlin's (Magdalén's) Chapel." To this chapel, which belonged to St. Stephen's Hospital, I find three or four references—one of them in Inq. of 1661, edited in Vol. I., p. 115, Waterford Archaeological Journal, and a second in an Inq. of 1569 printed in same Journal, Vol. IX., No. 3. It is probable the site of the chapel is that occupied later by the Leper Hospital (now County and City Infirmary), and that the eastern boundary of St. Stephen's (Without) has been slightly altered.

Waterford City Parishes.

WE may, for convenience, group all the City Parishes together under one heading. They number seven, and are all, with the exception of Trinity Parish, of small size, and comparatively uninteresting from our present point of view. Three of them (St. John's, St. Stephen's, and Trinity) extend beyond the boundaries of the ancient city, and the extra-mural portions will be found treated of under their various parochial headings—"St. John's Without," &c. As the purely urban names are mostly all English, and carry their meaning on their faces, anything like detailed analysis will not be necessary. It will be enough to enumerate those which possess an historic or other such interest, or which have become obsolete within the past two generations. In the present place it may be useful to give a list (very imperfect) of old names not now capable of identification. These have been extracted from the Great Parchment Book (1599) and other sources :—

Babber's Tower : "Bantug Ibarry, west by Gibbet Hill" (evidently, Dán Tighe Uí Dearbháis—"Field of O'Barra's House"); Barryears ; Boat Street ; Bride's Church ; Bride's Gate ; Calle's Mead ; Castell no Kylechan ; Dawkin's Gate ; Dowley's Castle ; Fowlquay Gate ; Howstowne (this may be Ballyhoo) ; Lincoln's Castle ; Lincoln's Quay, in which was a bridge ; Little Conduit ; Moran's Castle ; Moran's Kay ; Peak's Tower (in St. Mary's Lane) ; Reservoirs (Upper and Lower) ; Rope Walk Well ; St. Catherine's Well ; St. George's Gate (north side), also St. George's Street ; St. John's Tower (this was the tower at St. John's Gate, which was afterwards used as the County Gaol, and small portion of which still survives embodied in a limekiln) ; St. Michael's Well ; St. Patrick's Castle ; St. Patrick's Stile ; Tobber-Scheiin (no doubt Tobair Sgeirín—"Well of the Little Bush") ; Windcroft.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH. For detailed account of the ancient monastic church, &c., see Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. II., pp. 81, &c. For St. John's Without see above, under its proper heading.

S.DD. (a) Close Gate (otherwise Bowling Green Gate), at present junction of Castle Street with Manor. There were apparently two Bowling Greens ; one was on, or about, site of present Lombard Street. (qq)

(b) "French Tower," at north-west corner of parish ; it still stands, on line of the city wall which it guarded at an angle.

(c) John's Street, so called (with John's Lane, John's Place, Johnstown, &c.) from Benedictine Priory and Church of St. John close by.

(d) New Gate. It was found inconvenient to have the long stretch of city wall from Patrick's to Close Gate unprovided (qq) Smith, "Hist. Waterford," (Ed. 1746), p. 194.

with an opening, and therefore, at some time about the end of the 16th century New Gate, at the present junction of Stephen and Newgate Streets, was provided. New Street was then opened up to give access to the west through the new gate, and it soon became the fashionable residential street of the city. "Sic transit gloria mundi." It was still New Street two centuries and a half ago. (rr)

ST. MICHAEL'S PARISH. Some remains of the ancient church stand in a cemetery at the rere of the shops on east side of Michael Street. A gateway (and gate which few citizens of Waterford have ever seen opened) gives access to the cemetery.

S.DD. (a) "The Conduit"; at angle of Michael and Peter Streets.

(b) Lady Lane ; so called from a votive chapel which stood on the site slightly to rere of the Female National School which has just been closed. The street is referred to under its present name in A.S.E., and under the name of "Our Ladye's Street" in the Great Parchment Book of the Corporation. (ss)

(c) Michael Street ; this appears under its present name in A.S.E. The name comes, of course, from the church to which it gave access, and probably dates from Danish times. At any rate, the Christianised Ostmen generally dedicated a church to the Archangel in every seaport they occupied. Generally, too, the foundation was on elevated ground, so that their patron's church might be the last thing the hardy seamen saw as they started on their perilous voyage and the first thing to greet their eyes on their return.

ST. OLAVE'S PARISH. St. Olaf (Amlaff, Amlav) is another Danish patron. The original parish church stood on, or partly on, the site of the present Protestant church of the name, erected in 1734.

S.DD. (a) Colbeck Street ; named from the gate in which it terminated to the south, i.e., Colbeck Gate. Material at hand does not warrant a definite statement as to the signification and origin of

(rr) Acts of Settlement and Explanation.

(ss) G.P.B.—"Rental of Lands," 1599.

Colbeck. The word appears to be a personal name—the name, in all probability, of the builder of the gate and tower. The name “Colbeck” occurs in the Great Parchment Book.

(b) Cooke Lane; called from a Mr. Cooke; it is referred to in A.S.E.

(c) High Street; likewise mentioned in A.S.E.

(d) “Lady Church”; there are no remains; it stood in south-west angle of present Friary Garden.

(e) “Green Tower”; referred to (under same name) in A.S.E.; stood at south-west angle of parish.

ST. PATRICK'S PARISH. The ancient church from which the parish is named occupied the site of the present Protestant church in Patrick Street, and was called Tearmann Íosa. Some portions of cut stone mullions and transoms from the earlier church will be found built into the churchyard wall to the rere of the houses in Carrigeen Lane. In the cemetery are many monuments and inscriptions of interest.

S.D.D. (a) Barronstrand Street, Sráid na mBíoráin—“Street of the Sprats.” The Anglicised form appears to be a corruption of the Irish name, without any reference to “Barron” or “a strand.” O'Donovan conjectures (arguing from an Irish form) that Bíorán may be an English personal name—Birrin; it certainly is not Barron or Barry. A gate at northern termination of the street was Barry's Strand Gate. The name is of considerable age, for it occurs in Municipal Records of the 16th century under the forms—Berronstrond and Barronstrond. (11)

(c) Carrigeen Lane, Carráigín—“Little Rock”; the name formerly extended, and is still occasionally applied—especially by Irish speakers, to the whole western end of Patrick Street and the portion of Ballybricken immediately adjoining. In the present lane are the ruins of what is popularly supposed to be, and what most probably is, the pre-Reformation clergy house of St. Patrick's.

(d) “The Cross”; the old popular name (still occasionally used) for Broad Street. The name was derived from the historic market cross of Waterford, which stood in the middle of Broad Street, at junction of the latter with Patrick and Peter Streets. The cross was taken down in 1750.

(11) Great Parchment Book of the Corporation, ut Supra.

- (e) "Fanning's Lane"; this led north, from Patrick Street.
- (f) "Garter Lane"; it led from Barronstrand to George's Street.
- (g) Jenkin's Lane; it appears as "Jenkin Lane" in A.S.E.
- (h) "Little Barronstrand Street"; before the widening of Broad Street this led north-west, from junction of Broad and Little Patrick Streets, to George's Street.
- (i) "Little Chapel Lane"; this, or portion of it, still exists, but is no longer a public thoroughfare; it is a narrow lane running through to Jenkin's Lane from George's Street and parallel with the flagged way by St. Patrick's Catholic Church ("The Little Chapel," from which it is named). A note in the Survey Books (uu) describes it:—"A very narrow paved lane, generally very dirty, and occupied by mechanics and labourers."
- (j) "Patrick's Well"; this occupied centre of the triangular space at junction of Patrick and Stephen's Streets, and was finally closed in only a few years ago; it was nearly thirty feet in depth.
- (k) Patrick Street, Σπάτιο Πατριάρχης. Idem. It appears under its present name in A.S.E.
- (l) "Royal Oak Lane"; before the widening of Broad Street, above alluded to, this led west from Barronstrand to George's Street.
- (m) "St. Patrick's Gate"; at top of Patrick Street.
- (n) Tower; at rere of Harvey's printing works, and former west termination of Jenkin's Lane.

ST. PETER'S PARISH. Some slight remains of the ancient church are visible in the yard of the Police Station, and the ancient cemetery (portion of it) is represented by the grass plot in front of the Dispensary in Peter Street.

S.DD. (a) Bakehouse Lane and Trinity Lane appear under these names in A.S.E.

(uu) Field Survey Name Books, Mountjoy Barracks.

(b) Site of Guild Hall ; on western boundary of the parish.

(c) Magnus' and Tor Castles—of which neither trace nor tradition survives—in Peter Street.

ST. STEPHEN'S PARISH. What remains of the ancient graveyard will be found at the south-west corner of Keily's Brewery in New Street. There is neither inscription nor architectural survival of interest. Attached to this church was the ancient Lazar House or Leper Hospital of the city. (vv) Portions of the city wall are visible along west boundary of the parish. For St. Stephen's Without see antea, under its proper heading.

S.DD. (a) St. Stephen's Street ; this appears in A.S.E. under same name.

(b) "St. Stephen's Well"; now built over and filled in. It adjoins the workshop of Mr. Thomas McGrath, turner. A subterranean aqueduct carried hence a water supply to a hydrant at top of New Street.

(c) New Gate ; this stood at junction of present Newgate Street with Stephen Street, where portion of the city wall is still preserved.

TRINITY PARISH. This had no church proper ; a chapel in the Cathedral, behind the high altar, served as the parish church. Of course all trace of the chapel disappeared when the Cathedral was taken down, over a century since. Within the parish stood the Dominican and Franciscan Friaries. (ww) For Trinity Without, see under Bar. of Middlethird.

S.DD. (a) "Arundel Castle"; this stood on the wall of the Danish city, almost exactly in the middle of the present Arundel Lane. Recent sewerage excavations brought to light portion of the castle foundations—opposite Mr. Murphy's shop. A piece (some eight or nine yards long) of the Danish wall is incorporated in the boundary wall between Mr. Murphy's establishment and the neighbouring premises to the west.

(b) Arundel Lane ; before the opening of the Square to its present size this led north from the original Square to Blackfriars. The present Arundel Lane—popularly “Crubeen (Cruibín) Lane”—runs at right angles to the direction of its earlier namesake.

(c) Blackfriars ; so named from propinquity to the Dominican Priory. The name occurs (Blackfryers) in an Inq. of Elizabeth. About the middle of this street (on its north side), where it was bisected by the line of the Danish wall, there stood yet another tower, the name of which is lost.

(d) Conduit Lane ; at top of this street (in High Street) was a conduit from which a water-pipe was carried down the narrow lane to the Quay for the convenience of ships. The widening of Conduit Street is comparatively recent.

(e) Keyzer Street ; so named from a castle (Keyzer's) which stood at its northern termination.

(f) Milk Lane ; the name can boast of some antiquity ; it occurs in A.S.E.

(g) Palace Lane ; this is the present flagged lane at western end of the City Hall.

(h) “Quay Lane”; now Exchange Street. The latter name it owes to the Exchange which stood at its present northern termination.

(i) Reginald's Tower, better recognised till recently as the Ring Tower. This is the best known ancient building in Waterford. Its original foundation is ascribed to Reginald, Danish chieftain of Waterford, (xx) A.D. 1003. During the centuries since, the venerable building has served many purposes—a fortress, a mint, a prison, &c.

(j) “The Shambles”; at the corner (west) of Quay Lane (Exchange Street) and High Street.

(k) “Turgesius' Tower”; this stronghold, from the builder of which Ballytruckle is called, stood on the approximate site of Mr. P. M. Doyle's establishment on the Quay.

(xx) See Kingsley's “Hereward the Wake.”

BARONY OF GLENAGHIERY.

LENAHIERY is by far the smallest Barony of County Waterford. It contains indeed only one complete parish, Kilronan, with portions (insignificant in three cases) of five others. The name (Gleann na hUisce) itself is apparently of great antiquity and not quite easy of explanation; it seems to signify—"Glen of the Dun (Place or Cow?)". Analogy of Leathar na hUisce suggests "Cow" as the word qualified by "Dun." At any rate the name communicates itself to the river—Aibinn na hUisce (The Nire)—which bisects the barony. What history centred round the hypothetical cow nothing that has been yet published reveals, neither is there any tradition connecting a cow with river or barony. In the tract on the expulsion of the Desii already quoted (Ballynahemary, Whitechurch Par.) there is a remarkable legend of a red cow, and we have already met (Ardmore Par. &c.) a legendary White Cow, also St. Patrick's Cow and a Red Ox. Glenahery is bounded by the Suir on the north, by Tipperary Co. on the west and the high range of the Comeragh Mountains on the east. As Irish is still a living language throughout practically the whole region, recovery of many ancient and valuable names has been possible—moreover local knowledge supplied aid to analysis of some names otherwise unintelligible. The following popular rhymes refer to places within the barony and illustrate their names:—

I.—

"Cnoc a Lírin an doirfinn dúnca,
"Tánaidh mar a bhealadh an tseabal ra cùinne,

“*Grais na nGáthair gan Céadair gan Congnáim,
 Caipleán Riabac ná raití marí ari fósgnáim
 Baile Mic Caireibre, blacks gan mhuineadh,
 Ráipe an fiaordáis, na bfiad ná' thaoisadh,
 'S Cnoc a Tríoláin na ghlileán rígraoilleadh.*”

II.—What Crotty, the outlaw, sang as he surveyed Glenahiery from his retreat high up on the Comeraghs:—

“*Is bheag an rathairc a cíodim óm leaba,
 “Cnoc thaoisíomhnaig agur Cnoc a Óainne,
 “Cnocan Uíannadán agur Seana Óail’ Ána, “Mullaíc a Staighre agur Gleann Dá Laéan,
 “S Tuairín lúacraí aig uiruaí a Gleanna.”*

III.—Finally I got the following, unrelated to either of the foregoing:—

“*Cill na Mac—baile gan rmaist,
 “Cill Mairnitín—baile gan dainbhín,
 “Cill Ronáin—baile gan ríriúnáim,
 “Baile Ruirealaig—baile gan déarla,
 “Agur Cill Moíoma—baile gan cumar.”*

Inislounaght Parish.

INISLOUNAGHT, which lies mainly within the Barony of Iffa and Offa East, has some five townlands in Glenahiery. The parish was monastic, and impropriate in the Cistercian Abbey of Inislounaght (ínír Learnaicta—“Island of New Milk”), otherwise “de Surio.” We find the name written “Abby Slunnagh” in the maps and notes of the Down Survey.

TOWNLANDS.

CAHERBAUN, Cathair Óán—“White Stone-Fort.” Area, 303 acres.

S.D. Whitefort (O.M.); name applied to site and some remains of the eponymous “cathair.”

(c) Site of Graveyard (O.M.), Cill Mocomma—"Mocomma's Early Church Site."

(d) Poll a Úraván—"The Salmon Hole" in river.

(e) "The Thirteen Hole"; a hole in the river—so called, my informant averred, because thirteen soldiers were drowned here on one occasion.

GLENABBEY; nonsensical modern name—lucus a non lucendo. Area, 84 acres.

KILMACOMMA, Cill Mocomma—"Mocomma's Church." Site of the early church is just without the present boundary of the townland—on Greenan. Area, 1383 acres.

"Killmacombe" (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Curraghgorm (O.M.), Cúrrac Gorm—"Blue-Black Bog."

(b) Glashaniska Well (O.M.), Cláir an Uisce—"Water Trench."

(c) Wood Tower (O.M.), Caisteán na Muice—"The Pig's Castle"; built in 1814—minus mortar—to celebrate the fall of Buonaparte.

(d) Tobernacallybeara (O.M.), Tobar Cailleach Úeara—"Caille Bera's Well." The lady from whom this well is called is celebrated in place names and local legend all over Ireland. (a)

(e) Cannon Hill (O.M.), Coill na Ceannáine—"Wood of the Bald-Faced Hill." Cannan it is locally believed was a druidess who leaped across from this place to Wood Tower Hill. Another local tradition states Cromwell mounted cannon here in 1650.

(f) Ardnagustaun Hill, Árho na gCarán—"Height of the Paths."

(g) Carrairgin—"Little Rock"; a sub-division.

(h) An Cumáin—"The Confluence."

(a) See antea under Ardmore and Lismore Pars., &c.

(i) Cnoc na nGaothair—“Hill of the Goats.”

KILNAMACK, Cill na Mac—“Church of the Sons.” The “Sons,” according to O’Donovan (b) were the Seven King’s Sons—Seacht Mac Ríos, to whom there was likewise a church in the Middle Island of Aran close to site of modern Catholic Church of the Island. The present early church site will be found marked on the 6 in. Ordnance Map. Area (in two divisions), 1089 acres.

“Killnemack” (A.S.E.).

S.D.D. (a) Mount Neill Wood (O.M.), through which run two paths, scil:—

(b) and (c) Monkhill (O.M.), and Michael’s Path (O.M.), Cáirn Mhícheil—“Michael’s Path.”

(d) Cnoc na Manac—“The Monks’ Hill”; a sub-division. The Stíl Gaothneac slept here of nights while she grazed during the day on the Marlfield flats.

(e) Bótharín an Áta—“Little Road of the Ford”; an old road, few traces of which remain; it led to a ford in the Suir, one third of a mile to west of the Kilnamack—Kilmacoomma boundary.

(f) An t-Át—“The Ford” in question; it is shown on the 6 in. ordnance sheet.

(g) Át na Scáirbhige—“Ford of the Rough Shallow Place”; another ford, represented now by the Bridge of Knocklofty.

(h) “Neill’s Weir” and “Butler’s Weir,” in river.

(i) Lios Cam na mBó—“Crooked Lios of the Cows.”

Kilronan Parish.

THIS is one of the largest parishes in the Decies, but, as it includes a considerable area of mountain and waste land, its population and importance are not proportioned to its extent. The name—Cill Ronáin, (“Ronan’s Church”) is of course ecclesiastical, but which individual, of the eleven or twelve Ronans in the Irish martyrologies, it is who gave his name to the original church it is now difficult, perhaps impossible, to define. The ancient church, which stands in the townland of Glebe, possesses considerable architectural, &c. interest, and the ruin is in a fair state of preservation. Indeed the church appears to have been in use in comparatively recent times. Within the roofless walls lies the tomb of Buck Sheehy, who was executed at Clogheen for having given evidence in favour of his kinsman—Rev. Nicholas Sheehy. Close by the ruin is a Holy Well still resorted to.

(b) Ordnance Survey Field Books, Mountjoy Barracks.

TOWNLANDS.

ARDPADDEN, Árpat Óáidín—“Little Patrick’s Height.” Area, 167 acres.

“Árpat Óáidín na gcealaod,
“Áit a mbítheadh þóil þoer a goraipe.”

(Old Rhyme).

“Ardpadeene, (D.S.R.).

BALLYDONAGH, Baile Uí Óonncháða—“O’Donohue’s Homestead.” On the townland is an early church site—Cill Mhícheil Gháda (“Michael the Blacksmith’s Church”). Area, 462 acres.

“Ballydonnogh” (A.S.E.).

S.D.D. (a) “Kealrush Stream” (O.M.), Caoł—“Narrow Stream.”

(b) Inre an tSagairt—“The Priest’s River Holm.”

(c) An Poll Cam—“The Crooked Hole”; this is in the River Suir, which forms the Northern boundary of the townland.

BALLYMACARBRY, Baile Mhic Caibre—“Homestead of Cairbre’s Son.” Area, 865 acres.

“BallymacCarbrey,” (D.S.R.).

S.D.D. (a) Tobernafallia (O.M.), Tobair na Faille—“Well of the Cliff”; from this well a stream runs into the Nire.

(b) Tobair an Feadra—“Whistling Well.”

(c) Gaire na nGiuimhais—“Rapid of the Pines”; a point on River Nire. Gaire is the word current in the locality—even among English speakers—to designate a river rapid or “scour.”

(d) Árpat na bPheasán—“Height of the Crows”; a rookery.

(e) Gárraithe Táid—“Timothy’s Gardens.”

(f) Þairc na Fáirce—“Hurling Field.”

(g) Sruhnascreaghan (O.M.), Sput na Sceantan—“Coarse-land Stream.”

BALLYMAKEE, Dáile Mhic Óró—“McHugh’s Homestead.”

The Nire has changed its course at this point so that it does not now, as it formerly did, mark the boundary of the counties. Area, 350 acres.

“Ballymakeh” (Inq. Jas. I.).

BALLYROHAN, Dáile Uí Rócain—“O’Roughan’s Homestead.”

Area, 178 acres.

“Ballyroughan” (Inq. Jas. I.).

BAWNFUNE, Dán Fionn—“Fair (White) Field.” It is locally believed that this was the birthplace of Rev. Nicholas Sheehy, who was legally murdered in 1766. (c) It was probably likewise the birthplace of his kinswoman the gorgeous Countess of Blessington. Sheehys resided here as middlemen, under Lord Middleton, till 1848 and their 18th century homestead still stands—a large old fashioned farmhouse occupied by a farmer named Walsh. Amongst the Renehan MSS. in Maynooth College is a quantity of interesting correspondence (early 18th century) relating to the Powers of Bawnfune. From these letters it appears the Dr. Bray, Archbishop of Cashel, was closely connected with this Waterford family. Area, 631 acres.

S.DD. (a) Þairc a tSagairt—“The Priest’s Field.” The “Priest” is popularly believed to be Father Sheehy whose parents’ property the field was. In the field is a well—Tobair a tSagairt—“The Priest’s Well,” and whoever—my informant gravely assured me—looking into this well pronounces slowly the words, “Fiuic, Fiuic, i n-aínm Father Sheehy,” will see the water bubble and boil.

(b) Cill, an early church site, shown on the ordnance sheet as a large irregular los.

(c) Madden “Lives and Times of the United Irishmen”—historical introduction.

(c) Údarra na Sáoríte—“Windgap.” Here twice a year (on Corpus Christi and some date in August) was held a famous fair which has been immortalised in the popular Waterford ballad—“Áonád Údarra na Sáoríte,” the production of Thomas O’Moran (otherwise Tomář na mBordáin i.e. “Thomas of the Tambourines”). From Michael Kavanagh’s spirit-preserving and nearly literal rendering it were worth quoting the following verses if only to convey an idea of an 18th century country fair in Waterford.

“On hardware stalls were razors, awls,
“Knives, forks, tin cans and kettles;
“With pans and pots in sorted lots,
“And various kinds of metals.
“There tents two score, were quilted o'er
“With blankets, sheets and friezes;
“While dairyware in piles was there
“The kind—good housewife prizes.”

BOOLABRIEN, Údarra Órlaín—“Brian’s Cattle Shed.” Area (in two divisions), 893 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Cnoc an Ócasair. Meaning unknown; this is also called Údarra na nGádair—“The Goats’ Little Hut.”

(b) Tobair na Móinte—“Well of the Bogs.”

CAHERBRACK, Caisleán Órlaíc—“Speckled Stone Fort.” Area, 426 acres.

“Caherbreak” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Glenacaheragh (O.M.), Gléann na Caisleáin—“Stone Fort Glen.”

(b) Lisbrick (O.M.), Lios Órlaíc—“Speckled Lios.”

CARRIGROE, Caithlais Ruad—“Red Rock.” Area, 149 acres.

CASTLEQUARTER, Caisleán Cuanaí—“Cooney’s Castle”; more commonly now called “Four Mile Water”; this latter name I find in a document dated 1787, but its origin I have failed to discover. No remains of the castle survive though the site is well known. The stronghold was reduced to ruin in the Williamite wars. “Caislean Cuanach” is the title and subject of an Irish song well known in Waterford. Its composition is attributed to James Power of Graig-nangower, better known by his nickname of Seamus na Sroinse.

At close of a litany of his iniquities this precious scamp thus proclaims some of his multitudinous accomplishments.

“I am a blacksmith, expert and ready,
“Can forge a horse nail or slashing spade;
“I’d plough a furrow both straight and steady,
“Build stacks in harvest—the finest made.
“I’d hoop an ale-cask or keg for brandy,
“To fife or fiddle dance jig or reel;
“I’d teach two bumpkins, with shiners handy
“How tricksy gamesters can cheat and steal.”

It must, of course be understood that much of the humour of the original is lost in the translation. Close to the present bridge is a ford in which the Earl of Cork’s coach was once upset, on which occasion the Earl’s son, Robert, narrowly escaped drowning. Boyle ordered one John Lodden a “free mason” of Bandon to build a bridge here at a cost of £100, but a few months later he dolefully records in his diary:—“Said my new bridge wh. John Lodden deceitfully built carried away by flood.” By his will the Earl bequeathed £120 for rebuilding the structure with an expression of hope that the Mayor and Corporation of Clonmel would undertake the carriage of materials. Area, 73 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Contaoir. Meaning unknown; a stream which flows into the Nire from the north.

(b) Póil a Seapáin—“Murmuring Hole”; a part of the river which, in certain winds, emits a moaning sound locally regarded as a sign of rain.

(c) póll na Úarraighe—“The Barrel Hole”; the name is applied to a little glen.

(d) Eanac—“Swamp”; a well-known sub-division.

(e) Óstair na Móna Óurðe—“Yellow Bog Road.” On the boundary of this townland with Toorala the O.M. records—“Battle Field.” It almost certainly is only a coincidence that the “Wars of the Gaedhil with the Gall” (d) chronicles under date 853 the overthrow of the Deisi, with slaughter of all their chieftains, at Cluain Daimh. The editor, Dr. Todd, adds that Cluain Daimh is now unknown, and is probably in Meath. But it is more likely in Munster, for the next recorded incident happened in Tipperary.

COOLNABEASOON, Cúl na bPéasán — “Corner of the Pheasants.” Area, 248 acres.

S.DD. I. Inland:—(a) Cnocán na nGeannicac—"Hillock of the Unfledged Things (Chickens?)"

(b) Réid Óán—"White Mountain Plain"; a sub-division.

(c) Cnocán Dub—"Little Black Hill"; a sub-division, all mountain.

KILCREGGANE, Cill Chreagán—“Church of the Rocky Place.”

This is an old graveyard still occasionally used, but there is no trace of a church. Area, 106 acres.

KILGREANY, Cill Ghreine—apparently “Greine’s Church.” I could find neither trace nor tradition of the eponymous church. It is possible that this and the neighbouring Kilcreggane formed a single original townland, and that the ancient church is represented by the graveyard yet remaining on the latter. Area, 256 acres.

S.D. Áit a Sáorúde—“Ford of the Robber”

KILMANAHAN, Cill Mainchín—“Munchin’s Church.” Kilmanahan, which formed portion of the immense Desmond estate, was forfeited with its twenty carucates (e) on the attainder of the Great Earl—26th Eliz. In the Record Office is a “Survey of the Honors, Lordships &c. forfeited”; this enumerates:—“Kilmanahyn lying in the County of Cosherye (Coir nUisce)”; it also refers in detail to “divers parcels of land to the said manor belonging,” scil:—Russelstowne (1 carucate), Kyronan (½),

(e) A carucate is a measure of land, reputed at about 120 acres.

(i) Scil:—In a poem on the death of John Power of Ballyriocal. This poem—attributed there to Ignatius O'Donnell—is copied into a vol. of Ordnance Survey Extracts, R.I.A. Library.

WHITESFORT, Infe Caoit—“Narrow River Holm.” The English name is almost certainly derived from a famous family of the Whites, which gave to the Church in the 16th and 17th centuries the celebrated Thomas White, S.J., founder of Irish Missionary Colleges in Spain, James White, Vicar-Apostolic of Waterford (j) and their still more celebrated brother, Stephen White, S.J. (“Polyhistor”), one of the three or four most learned men that Ireland ever produced. Area, 322 acres.

TOWNLANDS.

COUMNAGAPPLE, Com na gCapall—“The Horses’ Hollow.”
Area, 303 acres.

KILKEANY, Cill Cianá—“Cian’s Church.” The site of the early church is well known ; it is still marked by its circular fence of earth. The identity of Cian is as uncertain as that of our early church founders generally. (k) Area (in two divisions), 480 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Þáirc a tSeiréil—“Field of the Chapel,” in which stood a church of the Penal Days.

(d) Þeárla Cill Cianá—“Kilkeany Gap.”

(e) Þárra na hUisíre—“Nire River Summit”; a sub-denomination of rather elastic and indefinite application.

KNOCKAUNBRANDAUN, Cnocán Órlannodain—“Brendan’s Little Hill.” Area, 694 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Aughnaree (O.M.), Át na Rioğ (O’D.)—“Ford of the Kings.” I have heard it however called Át na hUisíre—“Ford of the Dun Cow.”

(j) Cill—Site of early church on Galvan’s Farm, Lyre West.

SHANBALLYANNE, Seana Úaire Anna—“Ana’s Old Village.”

This Ana is locally believed (volksetymologie) to have been sister to Cian of Kilkeany, Brendan of Knockaunbrandaun, and MacCairbre of Ballymacarbry. At any rate the lady here commemorated does not appear to be identical with the legendary Áine of early Irish story. On Wall’s farm in this townland there was found, some 40 years since, a small cross, resembling the pectoral cross of a Bishop. Unfortunately, the Kerry labourer, who found it, disposed of it to a dealer, and no trace of it is discoverable. Wall himself found, a few years ago, a bronze spear head, which he gave to the late Rev. D. B. Mulcahy, P.P., M.R.I.A. Area, 389 acres.

S.DD. (a) Pöll Car—“Curling (Whirling) Hole.”

(i) Na Sceicíníde—“The Little Bushes”; a sub-division.

St. Mary’s Parish.

THIS is the ancient parish of Clonmel, embracing the town and suburbs of the capital of Tipperary on the north side of the Suir, and a considerable area of unclaimed mountain country on the south, or Waterford, side. The ancient parish church—St. Mary’s—still stands within the town, its cemetery bounded on two sides by the old town wall. We are immediately concerned here with the Waterford portion of the parish only; this, which is largely Irish-speaking, is rich in mountain names.

GLENDALOUGH, Gleann Dá Lácan—“Two Ducks’ Glen.” One might be inclined to doubt the accuracy of the strange Irish form; as a matter of fact the name has been written G. Dá Lóic, which seems to be the original of the Anglicised, or official, name. That, however, the name is derived from ducks, not lakes, is proved by the popular local náinn:—“Gleann Dá Lácan, gá lácaim gán dárthair.” Area, 2,902 acres.

BARONY OF IFFA AND OFFA EAST.

IFFA and Offa are Anglicised forms of the ancient tribe name (Ui-Eathach) of southern Tipperary. (a) The compound name, "Iffa and Offa," is used at present to designate two large baronies distinguished respectively as East and West, and containing some of the most fertile land in Ireland—the southerly continuation of the far-famed Golden Vale. Neither the physical character of the region nor its history has been favourable to the preservation of its ancient names. Its history, since the invasion, has been a long record of planting and confiscations, while—Naboth's vineyard like—its smiling plains have attracted the covetous stranger and brought destruction on the ancient proprietors. It is only in the 5th century that, on the expulsion of the Ossorians—its original occupiers, Mag Fennin became portion of the Decies; thenceforth we find it called "Northern Decies" as distinguished from the "Southern Decies" of the Co. Waterford.

Iffa and Offa East occupies the south-east angle of Tipperary Co., adjoining Waterford on the south and Kilkenny on the east. It is drained by two considerable rivers—the Anner (root aṇṇa, a river), flowing through its centre, and the Lingaun (derivation uncertain) dividing it from Ossory. To these are to be added the Suir into which fall both the rivers mentioned and a few small named streams which will be noticed as we proceed. The only elevation of note is Slievenamon (Sliab na mBan Feimhin)—“ Mountain of the Women of Feimhin ”), a mountain cone remarkable no less for its appearance than for its history and the legends that centre round it. Slievenamon, with the ridge extending from it in a north westerly direction, was anciently known as Sliabh-Dile through which communication between Decies and Ossory was maintained in Celtic times by three “gaps” or mountain passes, scil:—Deárlna Cúill a Údealais (“Wood-Roadway Gap”) on the west, and Deárlna Cille Cair (“Kilcash Gap”) and Deárlna Rath-Cláir (“Rathclarish Gap”) on the east. (b) Irish is practically extinct throughout the barony—hence its names are rather below average interest. The number of parishes is fifteen, with small portion of two others. Of this number no fewer than six embody in their name the word Cúll and four additional incorporate some other ecclesiastical term, v.g. Teampull, Dornac &c.

(a) The Bollandists give Eatach as the name of a chieftain of the Decies in the 7th century. See Vita S. Mochromoci, March 13th.

Cahir Parish.

SEE under Iffa and Offa West. Only a single townland of the parish, or rather portion of a townland, lies in the present barony, scil:—

MOORTOWN, Daire na Móna—“ Homestead of (in) the Bog.” Moor in the Anglicised form is not a personal but a common name =fen or bog. Greater portion of the townland lies in the adjoining Par. of Inislounaught. Area, 133 acres.

Carrick-on-Suir Parish.

THIS is, comparatively speaking, a small parish—containing only seven townlands. It embraces the town of Carrick with a square mile or thereabout of the extreme south-east angle of the County. A comparatively modern successor occupies the site of the ancient parish church, and in the graveyard attached are some tombstones and inscriptions of interest. Within the present church are monuments to the memory of John and James Power, last Earls of Tyrone in the direct Power line.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINDERRY, Bealac an Doire—“Pass of the Oak-Wood.”

Area, 293 acres.

BALLYLYNCH, Baile Uí Loinnigh—“O’Lynch’s Homestead.”

Area, 314 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Móin a Óairne—“Milk Bog.”

(b) “The Cunnawarras”—a group of fields in which are situated some gravel pits. The curious name seems a corruption of Coney-Warrens.

(c) Poll Dearg—“Little Hole”; a place in the river.

(d) An Scáirbeac—“The Scour (or Rough Gravelly Ford)”; this is also in the river.

BALLYNAGRANA, Baile na gCraonach—“Homestead of the Sows.” This townland is of very irregular shape. Area, 279 acres.

S.D.D. (a) “The Figgery” (presumably for “Piggery”); a field.

(b) Craann na Rata—“The Rath Tree.”

BALLYRICHARD, Baile Ríarteirvo—“Richard’s Homestead.” Area, 234 acres.

“Ballyrickard coiter voce Lisnesonlemoy” (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Wilmar Mill (O.M.).

DEERPARK, Páirc na Ófiaidh—“Field of the Deer (plural),” not of the Deer (singular), as in other places called “Deerpark.” Area, in two divisions, 725 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Seana Baile—“Old Village;” a sub-division.

(b) Dotairín a Capaill—“The Horse’s Road.” This is properly the road running down to the river immediately to north of “Cottage,” and not the place on Townparks now sometimes so named.

(c) Naomhán Óuirde—“Little Yellow Road”; forms western boundary of the townland.

(d) Córa a Chreacáin—“Weir of the Booty (?)”; in the river.

(e) Scambeac na Páirc—“The Park Shallow”; also in river.

(f) Córa mhór—“Great Weir”; likewise in river.

(g) Páirc a Review—“The Review Field.”

KNOCKNACONNERY, Cnoc na Conaire—“Hill of the Beaten Path.” Area, 163 acres.

TINVANE, Tig an Meadóin—“House of the Middle Place.” Area, 161 acres.

TOWNPARKS, Carrraig na Siuire—“Rock of (in) the Suir.” The name comes from a rock in mid-stream, uncovered only at lowest tides in a dry summer, when the boatmen celebrate the occasion by a bonfire on its surface. The town was, half-a-century or so since, the seat of an extensive woollen industry, of which hardly a trace survives. The Castle of Carrick is one of the finest specimens of feudal architecture in Ireland. Originally erected in the 14th century, it was considerably extended in the 16th century by Black Thomas Butler, 10th Earl of Ormond. This Tudor addition is still in a fair state of repair and habitable. In the banqueting hall are medallions in fresco of Black Thomas and his royal mistress. Anne Boleyn is popularly supposed to have been born in this castle. The present townland includes two islands in the Suir. Carrick-on-Suir was founded by Griffin, brother of Raymond le Gros—hence the name Carrick-mac-Griffin (c). In 1242 Matthew Fitzgriffin obtained a grant of a fair in his Manor of Karrec (d). Area, 222 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cláirín—“Little Board”; named from a rude wooden bridge which spanned the stream.

(b) Córa na mBhrácaí—“The Friars’ Weir.”

Donaghmore Parish.

THIS is a division of very limited extent indeed; it contains in all only three townlands, of which two lie in the adjacent barony of Middlethird. The parish derives its name from the great church founded here at a very early date—possibly, nay probably, by the national apostle himself. Foranan of Donaghmore of Magh Feimhin is given in the Donegal Martyrology under April 30th. His life is given by Colgan under the same date, and by Mabillon in his "Saints of the Benedictine Order." The Martyrology quoted also commemorates, under May 27th,—"Ethern, Bishop of Donaghmore."

TOWNLAND.

DONAGHMORE, Dorhnac Mór—"Great Church." Only the most famous churches—usually indeed only churches established by St. Patrick—were styled Dorhnac. The church ruin of Donaghmore is of highest antiquarian interest. Standing on an elevated ridge it is, with its high-pitched gable, a striking object in the landscape, and is visible for miles on almost every side; I have been able to distinguish it with the naked eye from the northern slopes of the Comeragh Mountains in Co. Waterford, as well as from the highlands of S.W. Ossory. The church consists of nave and chancel united by what was once a very beautiful Hiberno-Romanesque arch of three orders. Above the chancel is an over-croft similar to that with which Cormac's Chapel is furnished. The doorway, also of several orders, is highly ornate. Both chancel arch and doorway are, however, much defaced. A barbarian farmer of the vicinity carried off the carved stones as material for building a piggery. The patrician however was no more reverent than the peasant; at any rate, a nobleman of the neighbourhood is credited with the abstraction and abduction of the curiously carved tympanum. Fortunately the ruin, now vested in the Board of Works, is preserved from further injury by the National Monuments' Act. The windows are all beautifully and characteristically plain, with round heads and a very wide inward splay. Taking it as a whole the church is perhaps, after Cormac's Chapel, the most complete specimen of later Celtic work remaining (e). Area 652 acres.

"Donaghmore" (Down Survey).

Garrangibbon Parish.

THIS parish, which occupies the summit and side of a plateau, is of moderate extent. Greater portion of the parish lies in the adjoining barony of Slieveardagh (which see). Only slight remains of the ancient church survive; these will be found, surrounded by a few modern tombstones, within the grounds of South Lodge. The place names are neither numerous nor specially interesting.

TOWNLANDS.

TOLLOHEA, Tulaç Aoða—"Hugh's Hill-Summit." Area, 587 acres.

(b) "Paw-rc"—presumably páirc, "a field"; the name is applied in the present instance to a spring.

(c) Rath na Reithre—"Rath of the Rams."

GARRYDUFF, Sapparade Dub—"Black Garden." On it are marked no fewer than four lioses (O.M.). Area, 536 acres.

Inishlounaght Parish.

THIS parish was monastic—dependent upon the famous Cistercian Abbey, "De Surio." It is of great extent and includes a detached area of four townlands. Yet another portion, which is cut off by the river, has been treated of under Glenahiry Barony. See under this latter for derivation &c. Within the Tipperary portion of the parish there is, besides the abbey site at Marlfield (on which, presumably, was the parish church), a ruin at Garryntemple marked "Old Church" on ordnance sheet. This building, which is a plain oblong of considerable height, is in a good state of preservation and looks more like a barn than a church. If a church it must have been a chapel of ease to Inishlounaght. There is likewise a small but very interesting church ruin very close to St. Patrick's Well on the townland of the same name. Neither this however nor the Garrantemple edifice is of any great antiquity. In addition, there is within the parish a ruined church with a graveyard on Moorstown, as well as (at least) two other early church sites, scil:—Kilmolash and Decoy. The Cistercian Abbey of Inishlounaght was founded in 1187 by King Donald O'Brien and Malachy O'Faolan, Prince of Desii. From a reference in Colgan (f) it is however evident that there had been a religious house at Inishlounaght in the 7th century.

TOWNLANDS.

"Ballygarran" (Inq. Chas. I.).

(f) "Acta Sanctorum"—Vita S. Mochoemoci, p. 595.

BARN, Óireasgós. The name is a derivative from Óireas—"A Lie." It is used in a variety of senses—most frequently perhaps to designate an eminence crowned by a pillar-stone which in the distance appears a human figure (compare Peair Óireige &c.), but its exact force in place names is not always easy to determine (g).

S.D. An tSeana Stripper—"The Old Stripper"; a field name the origin of which is forgotten. A "stripper," it may be necessary to explain, is a cow—not in-calf—which continues to give milk during the winter.

BLACKCASTLE, Cárteán Dubh. Idem. A castle, no remains of which are now visible, formerly stood here. On the townland is also a ruined church of little architectural but much historic interest. In the graveyard, now known simply as Kyle (Cill), are several tombstones all, curiously enough, commemorating persons of the name—Slattery. Kyle was a very important and early church, allusion to which will be found in the 10th century life of St. Declan at present in preparation for publication. Area, 53 acres.

"Castlemoell als Blackcastle contiñ decem acre" (Inq. Chas. I.).

CARRICKCONEEN, Cárraig Coimín—Rabbits' Rock." On this townland there are no fewer than five fine lioses; two of them (the largest) are commandingly situated on the brow of a high ridge. Area, 338 acres.

CLASHAVADDRA, Cláir a mhaorá—"The Dog's (or Wolf's) Trench." This townland forms portion of an isolated fragment of Lismore diocese, surrounded on all sides by Cashel. Area, 42 acres.

CLONMORE, Cluain Mhór—"Great Meadow." Area, 95 acres.

"Clonmore" (Inq. Chas. I.).

COOLE, An Cúl—"The Ridge-Back." Area, 147 acres.

CURRENSTOWN, Baile Uí Cúirín. Idem. Area, 211 acres.

"Currenstown" (Inq. Chas. I.).

DECoy, Cláir Ciaraín—"Ciaran's Trench." The official name—very modern, by the way,—owes its origin to a contrivance for entrapping wild duck which was set up in a bog, now drained. The bog in question formerly occupied greater part of the townland. The "trench" was a natural depression, opening into a well and pond. In a field adjacent to the trench is a cill, or early church site, known as Teampull Mocuana—"Mocuana's (or My Cuana's) Church." The circular embankment which protected the church is now barely traceable; it enclosed a space of about an acre, most of which has been used as a gravel pit. Here were found three gold pins, which were sold to a Clonmel silversmith for 4/6, also a "stone chalice" (h) and a cross inscribed plummet or bell-tongue of stone, now in the writer's possession. Cuana as a personal name was not uncommon amongst the Nan-Desii : a chieftain of the name, resident somewhere in this neighbourhood, is referred to in the Irish Life of Mochoemoc of Liath. (i) Area, 90 acres.

DEERPARK. No Irish name. Area, 54 acres.

GARRYNTEMPLE, Garraide an Teampaill—"Garden of the Church." On this townland is the ruin (church or barn) referred to above. In its east gable—too high up to be of any use to light an altar—is a plain square-headed window of domestic type. There is no cemetery or trace of internal interments, nor indeed anything but the name to suggest a church. Area, 294 acres.

GARRYSHANE, Garraide Seagáin—"John's Garden." Area, 52 acres.

"Garrysane" (Inq. Chas. I.).

"Gortmore" (Inq. Chas. I.).

(d) " Petty Bone Field " (Old Lease)—present holding of Chas. Jackson; the name is perhaps a corruption of " Petty Bawns."

KILMOLASH, Cill Molaise—" Molaise's Church." This is the second ancient church in the diocese so named. See Kilmolash, Barony of Decies Without Drum. Site of the early church was discovered with difficulty on Mr. Kiely's farm and some few perches to north of a now disused road. Area (in two divisions), 352 acres.

" Knockan als Kilmolashe " (Visitation Book, Eliz.).

LOUGHTALLY, Gleann Dán—" White Glen." Origin of the official name, which appears to be modern, is uncertain. My informant—an aged native—stated he heard the name Loughtally for the first time only about fifty years ago. Area, 536 acres.

MARLFIELD, Mainistir—" Abbey." Area, 436 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Úतáinín na hAbhann—" Little Road of (to) the River."

(b) Cláir na gCóirn—" Trench of the Goblets."

(c) Seana Úaire—" Old Village."

(d) Gort a Óroma—" Garden of the Ridge."

(e) " Malcolm's Rock," on the river bank. This, according to the late Rev. D. B. Mulcahy, M.R.I.A., (j) was known to Irish speakers as Dún Uí Phéilim—" O'Phelan's Stronghold."

MONKSGRANGE, An Spáinreac—" The Grange." Area, 415 acres.

MONKSTOWN, Úaire na Manach. Idem. Area, 94 acres.

MOORSTOWN, Úaire na Móna—" Homestead of (in) the Bog." See under Cahir, in which Par. portion of the townland lies. The castle (with bawn and courtyard) is a fine specimen of a later feudal stronghold. Area, 507 acres.

" Moorestown " (Inq. Chas. I.).

PATRICKSWELL, Teampall Phádraig—" St. Patrick's Church." Beside the ruined chapel already alluded to is a renowned holy well, a deep circular basin of great size, ever filled with bubbling water clear as crystal. The well is alluded to in the 10th century Life of St. Declan already quoted. There is also (half hidden in water and water weeds) a rude Celtic cross. Within the ruined church stands an elaborate monument (originally, I believe, erected in St. Mary's Church, Clonmel,) to the memory of Nicholas White of Clonmel. Reformation intolerance caused removal of the cenotaph to its present position. The inscription, decipherable with difficulty, reads:—

“ Hic Jacet D. Nicholaus White
 Armiger, vir pietate, constantia, mansuetudine
 Et integritate morū conspicuus et amabilis.

 et Haeres.”

Area, 330 acres.

SHANBALLYARD, Seana Óaile Árto—“ Old High Homestead”; another of the townlands constituting the isolated portion of Lismore diocese already referred to. Area, 322 acres.

TOBERAHEENA, Tóbaí na hAoíne—“ Friday Well ”; a holy well at which “ rounds ” were made on Fridays. Compare “ Sunday Well.” Compare also Tóbaí Tíx hAoíne, Glendine, Dungarvan Par. Area, 115 acres.

S.DD. (a) “ Moore's Island ” (O.M.); an island in the river bed—only partly, however, in this townland.

(b) “ Spital (Hospital) Field ”; the triangular field at junction of two roads on north side of the townland, and on Inishlounaught boundary.

WOODROOF, Coimtear—“ Odd Lios.” Area, 611 acres, all demesne land.

Kilcash Parish.

LIKE most parishes of the present barony Kilcash is of comparatively small extent. It contains only eight townlands. The ancient church—on the townland from which the parish is named—possesses much archaeological interest as one of the few Irish-Romanesque churches surviving in the Decies. The present edifice was modified by the addition of a chancel &c. in or about the 14th century. Beside the ruin is the vault wherein rest the mortal remains of Lady 'Veagh, celebrated in southern story and song. In the same tomb reposes her illustrious kinsman by marriage—Archbishop Butler of Cashel:—

“ ’S ar teabhar na marbh do leasctar

The leaden mitre which decorated the tomb of the Bishop was removed to be converted into bullets during the '48 or the Fenian period.

Castlehaven wrote his memoirs, and here, according to the 1704 list of registered priests, a large number of Waterford and Ossory secular clergy were ordained by Bishops Brennan and Phelan. The historic residence was dismantled about a century since. Area, 1,115 acres.

KYLANOREASHY, Coill an Fionnáirig—" Forrest's Wood." Area, 382 acres.

LISBALTING, Lios Dealtaine—" May Lios," from Mayday sports held beside, or within, a lios now partly destroyed. Area, 144 acres.

MAYLADSTOWN; popularly now Moylerstown. There appears to be no Irish name—at least I failed to find it. Considerable portion of the townland is mountain. Area, 576 acres.

" Maylordstown " (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.DD. (a) Δρo na Cuaille—" Eminence of the Pole."

(b) tocán—" Little Pond "; a field.

(f) Ceatharna an Achrainn—"Quarter of the Contention"; a sub-division.

(g) Ceatharna Siar—"Western Quarter"; a sub-division.

(h) Darrna Gleanna—"Top of the Glen"; another sub-division.

(j) Duille Clarbinn—"Sword Stroke"; a glen or ravine down the mountain side resembling a gigantic sword cut.

(k) Com na Seirce—"Hollow of the Coarse Mountain Grass"; yet another sub-division.

(l) Sean Acaó—"Old Field." The present, strange to say, is almost the only instance of use of the word acaó in a place-name within the Decies.

(m) Gleann an Fharaid—"Glen of the Wild Vegetation."

Kilgrant Parish.

As the parish name is proper to no townland it has fallen into desuetude locally—with the consequence that its Irish form is difficult to discover. It is, I think, Cill Cronnach-tan—"Cronnachtan's Church." The parish, bounded on the east by the Anner, and on the south by the Suir, is large, level, and very fertile.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINVOHER, Baile an Bóthair—"Homestead of the Road."
Area, 208 acres.

"Ballynvoher" (Inq. Chas. I.).

BALLYVAUGHAN, Baile Uí Óeacháin—"O'Behan's Homestead."

"The Behans are beginning to Anglicise their name to Vaughan which is as ugly as their own" (O'Donovan—note in Field Name Book, Mountjoy Barracks). Compare, Ballyvaughan, Co. Clare. Area, 355 acres.

S.DD. (a) Δt Óub—“Black Ford.”

(b) Óctar na Ceárochan—“Road of the Forge”; a subdivision.

(c) Óán Sgeite nÁiré. Meaning uncertain.

CROANE (popularly also Croane-Walsh), Craoathán—“Hard Place.” Area, 190 acres.

“Croan” (Inq. Chas. II.).

DOON, Dún—“Fort.” The “Dun” here is an artificial “fort” or lios which crowns the summit of a small limestone bluff. The builders found a natural rath-shaped mound ready to their hand, and with the minimum of labour they transformed it into a formal Dun.

FERRYHOUSE, Tíg an Cailí. Idem. Area, 47 acres.

GLENALEMY, Gleann na Leime—“Glen of the Leap.” Leim, in toponomy, may signify either a cataract or a gorge, glen or defile across which some legendary hero of antiquity is believed to have jumped. Area, 48 acres.

GORTNAFLEUR, Goirt na Fleur. Goirt is “a garden” but meaning of the last term I cannot determine. Goirt na bpileáin has been suggested as the correct form. Area, 71 acres.

HORSEPASTURE, Óctarín na Páile—“Little Road of the Pavement.” This place acquired an unenviable reputation, half a century since, on the score of bad treatment meted to agricultural labourers employed there. A spailfin who “put in” a week at Horsepasture was considered fit to stand anything anywhere. Area, 129 acres.

S.DD. (a) Goirt na bpobal—“Garden of the Congregations (or Gatherings).”

(b) Seimearn a Reacataipe—“The Dairymen’s Sandpit.”

(c) Sórt a Tuircá. (?)

MOANGARIFF, Mónín Sárb—“Rough Bog.” In a gravel pit on this townland a labourer recently found a large stone hammer (neolithic), now in possession of the writer. The exact locality of this remarkable find was several feet beneath the surface and a quarter of a mile or more from the river bank. Area, 125 acres.

MOANMEHILL, Mónín Mhícheál—“Michael’s Bog.” Area, 72 acres.

MOORSTOWN, Baile na Móna—“Homestead of (in) the Bog.” Compare Moortown, Inishlounaght Par., &c. The place is sometimes styled popularly—Moortown-Walsh. Area, 108 acres.

“Ballynemony, als Mooretown” (Inq. Chas. I.).

MYLERSTOWN, Baile Mhileáir. Idem. On this townland is a ruined castle and, close to the latter, the insignificant remains of Kilgrant Church. The church ruin stands in a large cemetery, wherein are some monumental inscriptions of interest. Area, 185 acres.

POWERSTOWN, Baile an Phaoilais. Idem. There are some remains of an old castle of the Powers. Area, 133 acres.

“Powerstown” (Inq. Eliz.).

(b) Sárraibe Séoiríre—“George’s Garden.”

TWO-MILE BRIDGE. No Irish name obtainable. Area, 185 acres.

Killaloan Parish.

THE present parish is divided into two nearly equal parts by the River Suir. It contains in all fifteen townlands, of which eight are in Waterford (see under Barony of Upperthird). The church remains, on the townland from which the parish is named, are insignificant ; they consist of portion of the side walls and gables of a small rectangular building. In the surrounding cemetery are many old tombstones, but there is no inscription of very special interest. The name—ecclesiastical in origin—seems to signify “Church of Luan’s Ford,” though the Field Books of the Ordnance Survey render it “O’Loan’s Church.”

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYNAVIN, Baile Uí Čnáinin—“O’Cnavin’s Homestead.” Area, “Ballenavin” (Inq. Eliz.).

FARRANJORDAN, Feárlann Siúrfhadaí—“Jordan’s Land.” Area, 52 acres.

INCHNAMBRAHER, Inre na mBhráthar—“The Friars’ River Holm.” Area, 30 acres.

KILHEFFERNAN, Cill Uí Iffearnáin—“O’Heffernan’s Church.” O’Donovan, however, suggests Cill Eitearna (“Ehearan’s Church.”) The Martyr. Donegal, gives—“Ethern, Bishop of Donaghmore,” under May 27th. Area, 209 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobair a Cúrraig—“Well of the Marsh.”

(b) Tobair an Íme—“Well of the Butter.”

(c) Tobair Caílin—“Kathleen’s Well.”

KILLALOAN, Cill Uí Luain—“O’Loans’ Church ” (Survey Field Books). I however got Cill Átha Luain (“Church of Luain’s Ford”) from local Irish speakers. Area, 282 acres.

“Killaloan” (Inq. Henry VIII.).

NEWTOWN, Baile Nuad. Idem. Area, 156 acres.

“Newtowne” (Inq. Chas. I.).

PRIORSTOWN, Baile an Phriú. Idem. Area, 217 acres.
 "Priorestown" (Inq. Henry VIII.).

Kilmurray Parish.

LIKE the parish last treated and, like the next, the present division is extensive, and very fertile. It embraces all level country lying along the north bank of the Suir. The ruined church, on the townland of Ballyneill, is a rather large plain rectangular building with no remaining architectural feature of special interest. Some of the tombs within the church and in the surrounding graveyard are of more than usual interest. Lying flat on the surface within the ruin is a slab marking the burial place of the O'Neills (or Neills as they preferred to sign themselves) of Ballyneill. It bears the following inscription in large raised Roman capitals, which run round the outer edge and across face of the stone:—

" Hic Jacet generosi Coniu—

Stantinus Neale et Honora Purcel de Ballyneale. Ille obyt 12

victoribus ejus."

Besides the ruined parish church there are church remains (apparently Celtic) at Macreary, and a small fragment of a church ruin at Curraghdobbin. There is moreover a ruined church on Ballynoran; this is now called "Dovehill," a literal rendering of the old name—Ardcolum, under which it is listed as a parish church in the Visitation Books. The parish name is of course ecclesiastical—Cill Mhuire i.e. "Mary's Church." There is now no townland of the name, though there formerly appears to have been such—from which, as the church stood on it, the parish drew its title. The place names of the parish are scarcely up to the average in interest or importance.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINAMONA, Baile na Móna—“Homestead of (in) the Bog.”
Area, 555 acres.

“Ballinamoney” (B.S.D.).

S.DD. (a) An t-Áit na Cuaile—“Height of the Stake.”

(b) Glebe (O.M.).

BALLYCURKEEN, Baile Uí Čúirceín—“O’Curkeen’s Homestead.” Area, 310 acres.

“Ballyquirken” (B.S.D.).

S.D. Lóic Leíne—“(Washing) Pond of the Linen.”

BALLYDINE, Baile Uí Óidhne—“O’Dyne’s Homestead.” Since Irish died out in the locality the latter (qualifying) part of the name has been popularly mistaken for Geádha—“Geese,” and its application explained, by volksetymologie, as follows:—The geese of the district all took to wing one day, and flying away were never afterwards heard of; hence the imprecation—“Imteacht gan earradh cordche oírt, ar nár gseanná Baile Geádha.” A man still living remembers to have counted in the bad old times thirteen public-houses between Carrick and Kilsheelan along the main public road which runs through this townland. He also remembers to have met here a funeral—a woman carrying on her back a three-gallon jar of whiskey in its wake. The “refreshment” was intended to drown the grief of the mourners when the graveyard was reached!

Area, 445 acres.

“Ballideyne” (B.S.D.).

S.DD. (a) Gloragh (O.M.), Glospac—“Noisy”; the name is attached to a well, and to the stream flowing from it into the Suir.

(b) An Caol—“The Narrow (Strip of Land)”; a sub-division.

(c) Gort na Luaité—“Garden of the Ashes”; another sub-division.

(d) Gort na Sceapán—“Garden of the Crablice”; yet another sub-division.

BALLYNACLOONA, Baile na Cluana—“Homestead of the Meadow.” Area, 400 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cnoc a Muillinn—“The Mill Hill.”

(b) Τοβάρ a τΣαδαμίτ—“The Priest’s Well.”

(c) Glenbower (O.M.), Σ्लέαν Τοβάρ—“Deafening Glen”; in allusion to the noise of falling water therein.

(d) Κλαιρ Σόρμ—“Blue-Black Trench”; a well known and important sub-division, probably once an independent townland.

BALLYNEILL, Βαϊλε οι Νέιλ—“O’Neill’s Homestead”; so named from a family of the O’Neills settled here before the troubles of the 17th century. See account of Kilmurray Church above. The last holder of the property lived a fugitive at Rome, and the present representatives of the family (O’Neills of Lisronagh) show a Rosary beads of amber and silver presented to him by Pope Innocent X. There are some remains (O.M.) of the castle (residence of the O’Neills aforesaid), and in a field by the roadside stands a fine pillar stone. Area, 825 acres.

“Ballineale and Kilmurry” (B.S. & D.).

BALLYNORAN, Βαϊλε αν Φυράν—“Homestead of the Cold Spring.” There is a fine ruined castle (presumably of the Mandevilles) and the ruined church already referred to. Area, 607 acres.

“Ballinorane” (B.S.D.).

BRITTAS, Βριόταρ, perhaps “Speckled Land.” Βριτ means speckled and the suffix ατ adds little, if anything, to the meaning (m). More probably however βριόταρ is the equivalent of the Norman-French Bretche, a stockaded dwelling of the invaders (n). Area 324 acres.

BUTLERSTOWN, Βαϊλε μθυιτέαρας—“The Butlers’ Homestead.” Area, 409 acres.

“Butlerstown” (B.S.D.).

S.D. Κλαιρ αν Αι[α]μα—“Trench of the Alms (?)”

CURRAGHDOBBIN, Κυρράς a Τοβάν—“Dobbyn’s Morass.” There are some remains of an old church (St. Bride’s) standing in its ancient cemetery but, strangely enough, neither church nor graveyard is marked on the 6 in. ordnance sheet. At one time I thought this might be the unidentified church of "Tibragh," mentioned in the Visitation Book of Elizabeth (o). Now, however, I know for certain the latter was Tybroughney, which at one period belonged to the Diocese of Lismore (p). Area, 682 acres.

"Curraghdobben" (B.S.D.).

S.DD. (a) Daile na Gailtrige—"The Foreign Woman's Homestead"; a sub-division of some sixty acres.

(b) Cúrraig a Dubhaig—"Dooley's Swamp."

(c) Coramás. Meaning unknown. The name is applied to two fields separated by a public road.

(d) Cearc Uirge—"Water Hen"; a field.

(e) Teampuinlin—"The Little Church"; the church ruin above referred to. In addition to this there is on the townland another early church site, scil:—

(f) Þáircín na Cille—on O'Donnell's farm.

(g) Tobair na Caillíre—"The Chalice Well," beside last.

FIGLASH, Fionn Glaise—"Wood of the Stream." Area, 763 acres.

"Finglass" (B.S.D.).

S.DD. (a) Na Locha Únuoe—"The Yellow Ponds"; a commonage of perhaps an acre in extent.

(b) "Manning's Hole"; an apparently natural well-like cavity in a field. Similar pits, but less deep and wide, are not unfrequent locally and are called "tubs." Compare Tobac, Tobacé, in Gortnadeihe (Ringagoona Par.) &c.

(c) Tobair an Doirroe—"Well of the Elevation." It is at the base of a hillock beside a stream.

(d) Seana Þuill—"Old Holes"; name of a field.

(e) Þáircín na gCoc—"Little Field of the (Hay) Stacks."

(f) Þáirc a Coiteara—"Field of the Quarry."

LISADOBBER, Lior a Tobair (Tobair)—"Lios of the Well." Area, 375 acres.

(o) MS., T.C.D. E. 3, 14, fol. 92.

(p) MS. Liber Regalis Visitationis, (Reeve's Collection) T.C.D.

"Lissadober" (B.S.D.).

MACREARY, Maç Creáirí—“Pit-Abounding Plain.” Names derived from presence of pits are common in this neighbourhood. Compare “Manning’s Hole” and “Seana Úill,” above. On the townland are some remains (in a crumbling condition) of a church; the masonry was fine ashlar and looks like Celtic work. The Ordnance Map also shows a graveyard but the latter is not now enclosed. Area, 809 acres.

“Makrine” (B.S.D.); “Both Maikryras”—(Vallancey’s Map).

MULLAGH, Muillach—“Summit.” The eminence is hardly noticeable but, in place names, height, size &c. are to be understood relatively, or by comparison only.

S.D.D. (a) Þairic a Óirfe—“Field of the Oak Wood.” This was originally the name of Deady’s farm and was transferred, in its Anglicised form—Derrypark, to the neighbouring cottage and grounds by a former owner. The date 1747 appears on a stone set high up in the wall of Deady’s farm house; this house, by the way, was the residence of a gentleman, named Shaw.

(b) Na Duacailíre. Literally, “The Cowboys”; the name is applied to a couple of fields.

(c) Póll Íreat—“Lower Pond”; by roadside.

RATHCLARISH, Rát Clárísh—“Clarus’ (Clare’s?) Rath.” Area, 314 acres.

“Rathclaris” (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) Gléann na Boite—“Glen of the Hut”; a sub-division of about 70 acres.

(b) Bán a Botáin—“Field of the Hut”; the difference in gender between the diminutive and its positive is exceedingly curious.

Kilsheelan Parish.

THIS is a division of considerable extent, embracing seventeen townlands. The number of sub-denominations is, however, comparatively small. The parish name—purely ecclesiastical—is derived from the name of the townland on which the ancient church stood. This last, or rather its ruin, is highly interesting. Its north doorway is Irish-Romanesque in style, rather ornate, but the ornament is much defaced; it might be set down as early 12th century work—contemporaneous with the doorway of Kilcash. Kilsheelan was formerly (16th century) the head of a Deanery, and was no doubt, at a still earlier period, the seat of a bishop. The place names of the parish possess no special interest. Within the parish is a second ruined church; see under Ballinaraha, below. An Inquisition (1279) at Clonmel finds that the following who used to render suit at the Court of Kilsilan have been withdrawn:—Balibothy (Ballybo), tenement of Achnyre (see under Knocknaree), Istelkoran (Ballyoran).

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINAMORE (popularly—Ballinaha), Beal an Aca Moir—“Mouth (Gap) of the Big Ford”; the ford in question was (and is) the unbridged crossing place of the Anner through which the present public road runs. Area, 312 acres.

“Ballyanaheymore” (B.S.D.).

BALLYDINE. See under Kilmurray Parish, above. Area, 311 acres.

“The towns and land of Ballydine” (Inq. Cromwell).
“Ballydreyne” (B.S.D.).

BALLYGLASHEEN, Baile ui Ghlaighin—“O'Glassin's Homestead.” There is a fine 16th century castle in a good state of preservation. Area (in two divisions), 332 acres.

“Ballyglissinbeg” (Inq. Chas. I.).

BALLYNARAHAGH, Baile na Rata—“Homestead of the Rath.” Area, 713 acres.

“Ballinarghy” (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) “Burntchurch,” Teampull Loigse. Idem. Here is portion of a church ruin standing in a small cemetery still occasionally used. I also got for it the name Cill Peardair (“St. Peter's Church”). On the other hand, the Ordnance Survey correspondence (q) gives Teampull Bríge ("St. Brigid's Church"). This is almost certainly the church recorded as "Tahinny als Templehinny" in the Visitation Books.

(b) Τοβάρ Ναούν Μαρανάν (Mo Forannan)—"St. Forannan's Well"; close by last. This was doubtless Forannan of Donoghmore Maighe Feimhin. (r)

(c) Cappa Bridge (O.M.), Seapac—"Tillage Plot."

CLOGHCARRIGEEN, Cloch Carrraigín—"Stone of the Little Rock." Area (including two acres of disjointed fragment), 234 acres.

"Cloghargine" (Inq. temp. Cromwell).

CURTISTOWN, Daile Curtiséirig—"Curtis's Homestead." Area, 52 acres.

"Curtestowne" (B.S.D.).

EUSTACELAND, Feadann Ustcalair. Idem. Area, 40 acres.

"Eustacelend" (B.S.D.).

GAMBONSFIELD, Gort a Gambúnaig—"Gambon's Garden." Area, 22 acres.

"Gortambone" (B.S.D.).

GORTBRACK, Gort Órlaig—"Speckled Garden." Area, 46 acres.

"Gortbreage" (Inq. Chas. I.).

GREENSLAND, Árta Giar—"Green Height." Area, 37 acres.

KILSHEELAN, Cill tSiotalán—"Sillan's Church." This may have been Sillan, Abbot of Bangor (Feb. 28th) (s), but more probably it is another Sillan, v.g., Sillan of Sept. 11. The Book of Leinster (p. 353) refers to a Silan—one of a group of seven bishops—whose church is on the Munster Blackwater. (t) An Inq. of 1279 finds that a half carucate of land in Kylsylan als Kynsinan belonged to the Priory of St. John, Waterford. (u) Area, 92 acres.

"Kilshellan" (Inq. Jas. I.).

MAUGHANSTOWN, Daile Magún—"Magin's Homestead." Area, 292 acres.

(q) Library, Royal Irish Academy.

“ Ballynoeannragh als Newtowannor ” (Inq. Chas. I.).

POULAKERRY, Poll a Chóipe—“ Pool of the Cauldron (Whirlpool); from a deep hole in the river underneath the castle. The castle, in plan and structure, closely resembles the Castle of Ballyglasheen described above. Area, 291 acres.

“ Poulekirrye ” (Inq. Chas. I.).

SESKIN, Seircéann—“ Marsh.” Area, 975 acres.

“ Seskine ” (Inq. Chas. I.).

(b) Þairc a Þpor—“ Field of the Marl (?).” “ Þpor ” was some substance quarried or dug from a pit for manure.

(c) Clair na Stáile—“ Trench of the Stallion.” Strangely enough the Irish word for a stud horse, as above, is feminine.

(d) Clair a Connairí—“ Trench of the Firewood.”

(e) Lag a Magairí—“ Hollow of the Mocking ”; probably so called from an echo.

SKEHANAGH, Sceacánach—“ Place Abounding in Whitethorn.” Area, 21 acres.

“ Scehannagh ” (B.S.D.).

Kiltegan Parish.

THIS contains ten small townlands adjacent to the town of Clonmel. Owing largely to the propinquity in question the sub-names were difficult to recover, and are few in number as recovered. Some slight remains of the ancient church survive. These are surrounded by a small cemetery still occasionally used and known locally as Seana Úininn—“ Old Steeple.” The Irish name of the parish is Cill Tagáin (“ Church of Tagán ”), no doubt from its original founder. Shearman (v) endeavours to identify the founder with Tagan or Tecce, who was one of the seven companions of St. Fiacc of Sletty, and whom the "Martyrology of Donegal" commemorates under Sept. 9th.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYGARRANE, Baile an Sárráin—"Homestead of the Grove." Greater portion of this townland lies in the neighbouring parish of Inishlounaght. Area, 216 acres.

"Ballygarrane" (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Deer Park (O.M.).

(b) Tobair a' Dúirnín—"Well of the Little Handful."

GARRYROE, Gárraróibh Ruadh—"Red Garden." Area, 61 acres.

S.D. Ráirc a tSuic—"Field of the Ploughshare," probably from its shape.

GLENCONNOR, Gleann Uí Concháin—"O'Connor's Glen." Area, 148 acres.

KILTEGAN, Cill Tadhgáin—"Tagan's Church." Area, 116 acres.

"Kiltigan" (Inq. Eliz.). "Kiltagan als Garryroe" (Inq. Chas. I.).

LAWLESTOWN, Baile an Laigléireig. Idem. Portion of this townland lies in the adjoining (Rathronan) parish. I also got Ballinrilea (Baile an Ráirilé) as an alternative name. Ráirilead I was informed locally is the name of a species of wild rye (Lolium Temulentum) (w). Area, 226 acres.

S.D. Bóthairín Góinn—"Going's (a local family name) Little Road."

MONKSTOWN, Baile na Manach. Area, 13 acres.

"Monkestowne" (Inq. Chas. I.).

PARKNASCADDANE, Ráirc na Scaodaín—"Field of the Herrings"; perhaps it was once manured with fish which had become unsaleable. Area, 16 acres.

RATHNASLIGEEN, Rát na Sligín—"Rath of the Little Slates"; so called from the shaley character of the soil. Prospectors bored

(v) "Loca Patriciana," p. 227.

(w) Rev. Dr. Hogan ("Luibheadán") renders the word "Darnel Grass."

here for coal some years since. "Boolack" is another (popular) name for this place; sometimes it is applied to the district, at other times and more properly to the stream which flows through it. Boolack=Deal-Leac—"Mouth (Opening) of the Flagstones," or (less probably)=Búilic a modification of Buaille—"Milking Place."

SUMMERHILL. No Irish; a modern fancy name. Area, 64 acres.

TOBERAHEENA, Tobair na hAoine—"Friday Well"; because devotional visits were made to the well on Fridays. Compare Sunday's Well, &c. The present townland is to be distinguished from the place of same name in Inishlounaght parish. No doubt the present townland once formed portion of the larger and neighbouring, though not adjoining, Toberaheena. Area, 83 acres.

"Tobberahaney" (Inq. Chas. I.).

Lisronagh Parish.

THIS is a small parish of but little importance from our present point of view. It contains only seven townlands all told, and there are but few sub-denominations. Some remains of the ancient church stand in a graveyard beside the small, square, and well-preserved castle ruin of Lisronagh.

TOWNLANDS.

CAHERCLOGH, Cathaoirn Cloic—"Stone Chair." So called from a seat of stone which formerly crowned an eminence on the holding of Michael Purcell. Intelligent tradition of the locality connects the monument with inauguration of the local chieftain. Area, 614 acres.

"Cahirclough" (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D. "Half-penny Well"; a well-known holy well formerly much resorted to and still occasionally visited devotionally. The name is due, presumably, to the number of halfpenny votive offerings.

CARRIGAWILLAN, Carrairg a mhuillinn—"Rock of the Mill." Area, 43 acres.

KILMORE, Cill Mór—"Great Church." The early church site was found, after a long search, near the eastern extremity of the townland where the boundary is bisected by the main Clonmel to Thorney Bridge road. Area, 683 acres.

"Kilmore O'Russine" (Inq. Chas. I.).

LISRONAGH, Lior Ruaidh-Eanaig (?)—"Lios of the Red Morass." Lior Ruainneac—"Feathery Lios" has also been suggested. The name-giving lios lies on the east side of the main road. "Lisronagh" is however more probably a corruption of Lisroraigh which appears in Calendar of State Papers (1405) and is no doubt identical with the Four Masters' "Leas-Ruadhrach (Rory's Lios)" of 939. The proper Irish name is therefore—Lior Ruadhras and it has been pointed out to me by a distinguished member of the Clann O'Phelan how the name Ruadhraighe figures in the family pedigree, thus:—Mothla O'Felan (slain at Clontarf) was son of Domhnal, son of Felan, son of Cormac, son of Ruadhraighe. Area, 537 acres.

"Lisronagh" (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D. Glebe (O.M.).

MOANROE, Móin Ruaidh—"Red Bog." Area, 191 acres.

MULLENARANKY, Muillean a Rinne—"Mill of the Dancing"; named from a tuck mill which stood here, on the west bank of the Aner. Area, 438 acres.

SHANBALLY, Seana Dáile—"Old Homestead." Area, 510 acres.

Newtown Lennon Parish.

THE present name is—as itself suggests—comparatively modern; unfortunately the older name is undiscoverable. Dáile Nua Luingeán—from the Lingaun stream forming the eastern boundary of the parish—is the full modern Irish form. The parish is of greater than average extent and some of its townland names are very unusual. The ruined church, standing in its graveyard and in a fair state of preservation, is well worth study as it illustrates more than one phase of Irish Church Architecture. The masonry, in part at least, is of fine sandstone and resembles early Irish work. There is, in the parish, a second and still more interesting church ruin—Ahenna (Kilklispeen). In the graveyard adjoining this second ruin stand two early Celtic crosses of great beauty, and portion of a third partly buried in mould and coarse vegetation. The two perfect crosses have been drawn in detail and lithographed by Henry O'Neill (x). Portion of the parish, it ought be added, lies within the adjoining Barony of Slieveardagh—which see.

TOWNLANDS.

AHENNY, ÁT TEINE—“Fire Ford (or Kiln).” Area, 655 acres.
“Agheeney” (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) Kilklispeen Church &c. (O.M.), Cill Clíspín—“Clispin’s Church.”

(b) Tinnakilly, Tíg na Coille—“House of the Wood”; a considerable sub-division.

(c) Somp a Piobáin—“Garden of the Little Pipe.”

(d) Somp na bPraeáin—“Garden of the Crows.”

(e) Sceac a Cúrrait—“Whitethorn Bush of (by, or in,) the Marsh”; this is now the name of a laneway but formerly it would appear to have designated a sub-division of the townland.

(f) “The Tobbers” (Torbheáca)—“The Wells”; a group of three or four wells separated from one another by width of a field or thereabout.

(g) “St. Klispeen’s Well”; I found no Irish equivalent, whence I should conclude against the antiquity of the name.

(h) Tobair a tSámarlaidh—“Summer Well”; because it does not run dry in summer.

(i) Oileán a Chipt—“Island of the Justice”; perhaps because, at one time, the object of a legal decision.

(j) Seana Óaire—“Old Village.”

(k) Coodaloaka. I took this name down phonetically from a non-Irish speaker; as pronounced I could make nothing of it.

(l) Báirín a Stocraig—“Little Road of the Pole.” Observe the Ossory pronunciation of slender n, which = r.

(x) “The Most Interesting of the Ancient Crosses of Ireland,” London: Ackermann & Co.

(m) Peamán—“Alder Abounding Place”; a sub-division.

(n) “Lingaun River,” Luingeán. Meaning unknown. The name appears in the form Lainnen in the curious tract on the Expulsion of the Dessi, edited by Prof. Kuno Meyer. The Lingaun, for the last few miles of its course, forms the boundary between Tipperary and Kilkenny. Thither the victorious men of Decies pursued the Ossorians after the battle which lost the district of Magh Feimhin to the latter.

BALLINURRA, Baile an Óigraig (?)—“Norris’ Homestead.”

“Ballinorry” (B.S.D.).

S.DD. (a) Carrigadoon (O.M.), Carrraig a 'Dúin—“Rock of the Fort”; a monster meeting was held here in 1848.

(b) Tobernascarta, Tobair na Scáirbhe—“Well of the Spurting.”

(c) Cooan’s Well (O.M.). It does not however appear to be now known locally by this name.

(d) Póil na nGáidheal—“Goats’ Pool.”

(e) Baile Uí Ceardaill—“O’Carroll’s Homestead”; a subdivision of some eighty acres.

BALLYNAGRANA, Baile na gCraínaí—“Homestead of the Sows.” See under Carrick, in which parish portion of the townland lies. Area, 253 acres.

“Ballinagranagh” (B.S.D.).

BALLYRICHARD. See under Carrick. Area, 222 acres.

S.D. Cnocán Baile Ríteáinró—“Little Hill of Ballyrichard”; a couple of fields in which St. Brigid’s Cow (Glár gÁthnac perhaps) depastured once on a time.

“Richardstowne” (B.S.D.).

CLOGHAPISTOLE, Cloc a Piortait—“Pistole’s Rock.” Dr. Reeves (y) gives pistil here as a British adoption of the Latin fistula, a pipe, channel or stream. Portions of the Pistoles’ mansion survived till recently. Area, 112 acres.

“Cloghastley” (B.S.D.).

CREGG, Craic—“Rock.” Area, 707 acres.

(y) R.I.A. Proceedings, Apr. 1861.

"Crig als Craige" (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) "Cromwell's Road"; a by-road running east and west.

(b) Dáile na Súirtí—"Town of the Flails"; said to be so called from a battle fought here in which the combatants on one side were armed only with the agricultural implements named.

(c) Gob Ráinne—"Spade Beak"; a sub-division, so called from its shape.

(d) Cnoc Ruad—"Red Hill"; another sub-division.

(e) Cnocán na Caillige—"Little Hill of the Hag."

(f) Tobair Réadmain—"Raymond's (or Redmond's) Well."

MAINSTOWN, Dáile Tharóne—"Mayne's Homestead." Area, 297 acres.

"Maynestowne" (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) Tobberessay, Tobair Iora—"Jesus' Well"; a well-known sub-division, locally regarded as a separate townland. The name is derived from a remarkable well of great size and volume, at which "rounds" and votive offerings were formerly made. The offerings here took the peculiar form of tufts of hair cut from the pilgrims' heads.

(b) Dóthairín na bPóill—"Little Road of the Holes."

NEWTOWN, Dáile Nuá. Idem. Area (in two divisions), 657 acres.

"Newtowne Lennan" (B.S.D.).

S.D.D. (a) Loughaniska (O.M.), Cloch an Uirge—"Stone of the Water."

(b) Fáitcin—"Little Hurling (or 'Fair') Green"; a sub-division. Formerly this was Fáitcin na Dáinriogna ("The Queen's Green.")

(c) Carras an Fiochair—"The Eagle's Rock"; a name of frequent application.

OLDCASTLE, Seán Caireán. Idem. The site (no remains) of the castle is still pointed out. Area, 77 acres.

POULMALEEN, Poll Molin—"Moling's Pit." Area, 380 acres.

S.D. (a) Cloch a Phréasán—"The Crow's Rock."

(b) Piocán. Meaning uncertain; possibly for Piocán "Wheezing"; more probably however for Uiitheacán something yellow like the yolk of an egg or a primrose. The name is applied to a marl pit, now a large pond by the roadside; possibly this is the pit from which the townland is named. Opposite "Piocán" and separated from it by the public road is a field wherein a heap of stones marks the site of a church.

(c) Clairín an Áirinn—"Little Trench of the Mass"; a quarry-like depression within which Mass was celebrated in the penal times.

(d) Uisceapin a Muillinn—"Little Road of the Mill."

Tiroe, Tíg Ruad—"Red House." Area, 77 acres.

Rathronan Parish.

THIS is a frontier parish of moderate extent containing ten townlands and deriving its name from the townland on which its ancient church stood. The parish is completely bisected by a wedged-in portion of Newchapel Parish (Diocese of Cashel). A large and picturesquely situated graveyard with a Protestant Church indicates the site of the ancient parish church, of which no traces remain. Mention of Rathronan church will suggest memory of the famous Arbuthnot abduction, of which it was the scene.

TOWNLANDS.

ARDGEEHA, Ártho Gaorte—"High Place of the Wind." Area (in two divisions), 231 acres.

S.D. Ártho Cianain—"Kyran's Height."

BOHERDUFF, Uiscear Duib—"Black Road." Area, 121 acres.

"Boerinduffe" (Inq. temp. Chas. I.).

CLASHANISKA, Clair an Uisce—"Water Trench." Area (in two divisions), 240 acres.

S.DD. (a) poll an lme—"Pit of the Butter."

(b) poll a Muirthead—"The Murder Pit."

CLEAR'S LAND. No Irish name; apparently a rather modern sub-denomination; it designates an area of twelve acres forming as it were an island of very peculiar shape, within Clashaniska townland. Clear is, of course, a family name.

GIANT'S GRAVE, Cloch Phaoa—"Long Stone"; from a remarkable pillar stone standing on a hill-top and visible in every direction for miles. Of course there is the old familiar legend—that it was flung here by Fionn McCumhail from the summit of Slievenamon. A curious tradition existed some eighty years since, lesse the late Felix O'Neill of Lismore, namely, that this monument was erected to mark the grave of some Ulstermen who fell in a sortie during the siege of Clonmel. The remarkable monument however appears rather to be early Christian in character, or, if originally pagan—consecrated later to Christian signification. Close examination of the pillar will show that it is cross-inscribed and that the type of cross is early Irish. Area, 256 acres.

S.D. Faill na Peire—"Cliff of the Pease."

JAMESTOWN, Dáil Séamúir. Idem. On this townland is a very fine lios in an excellent state of preservation. Area, 310 acres.

LAWLESSTOWN. See under Kiltegan Par. Area, 179 acres.

S.D. "The Mile Tree," Craann a Mile. Idem. A well-known land mark on the old mail coach road to Cashel. Compare "Mile Post" near Waterford, "Mile End," &c.

PARKVILLE, Cláir an Uirge—"Water Trench"; formerly a sub-division of Clashaniska townland. Area, 70 acres.

RATHDUFF, Ráth Dubh—"Black Rath." Area (in two divisions), 72 acres.

RATHKEEVAN, Ráth Coeinín—"Kevin's Rath"; also Ráth Caírcin, according to Ordnance Survey (2). Area, 481 acres.

"Rathcaskeen alias Rathkeevan" (B.S.D.).

(b) Liaigán—"Pillar Stone"; the name is applied to the field in which the pillar stands.

RATHRONAN, Ráth Ronáin—"Ronan's Rath." Area (in two divisions), 651 acres.

"Rathronane" (Inq. temp. Eliz.).

(2) Survey Field Books, Ordnance Office, Mountjoy Barracks.

S.DD. (a) Áit a Óaradán (Órádán)—"Ford of the Salmon."

(b) Cúirt Dán—"White Mansion"; this, according to Felix O'Neill, already quoted, was the Irish name for Rathronan demesne.

(c) Gleann Sceac a Caire—"Glen of the Cat's Bushes."

St. Mary's (or Clonmel) Parish.

ST. MARY'S the most important parish of the barony, extends, as we have already seen (aa), into the adjoining Co. of Waterford. The present portion, lying mainly within the Municipality of Clonmel, has not preserved many of its Irish sub-denominations. At the same time nearly all the small townlands immediately around Clonmel bear purely Irish names. In fact, except Burgery-Lands and Haywood (of which the original Irish forms also survive), the official names of all are Irish. Although the derivation appears fanciful, Clonmel (Cluain Meala) probably signifies—"Meadow of Honey." The name appears frequently in the Four Masters, in the formula—Triall Cluana Meala (bb). Clonmel stood two sieges; one in 1516, at the hands of the Earl of Kildare, the second in 1650 when it was defended with distinguished bravery against Cromwell. In the first assault during the latter siege two thousand of the attackers were slain. The town was at a later period, for a time a great centre of Irish woollen manufacture; the Duke of Ormond in 1665 introduced from Canterbury 500 families of Walloons to initiate the industry. The ancient parish church, which is of much interest architecturally, is still in use as the Protestant church of Clonmel. Ballyadam Castle was demised to this church as a charity endowment by Lady Elena Butler. In the Co. Tipperary portion of the parish there was, besides the parish church and the friaries (cc) a chapel of ease the walls of which still stand in its ancient cemetery. This last was outside the town walls to the west, and was dedicated to St. Stephen. Another similar chapel (St. Nicholas'), on the south side, served the Co. Waterford suburbs, as we have already seen (dd). Portion (some perches) of the town walls and two or three small towers stand along the north side of St. Mary's cemetery.

TOWNLANDS.

BORHEENDUFF. See also under Kiltegan Par. Area, 17 acres.

BURGERY-LAND, CLUAN MEALA—“Meadow of Honey (or Mil’s Meadow ?).” Most of the street &c. names seem to have had no Irish equivalents or designations. Area (in two divisions), 855 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Gallows Hill (O.M.), Cnoc na Cnoice. Idem; the place of public execution in former times. The name is now applied to a sub-division, or district.

(b) “Johnson Street,” Sráid Mhic Seagáin. Idem.

(c) “Kerry Road,” Bóthar na gCiarparóideach. “Road of the Kerrymen”; named from the number of Kerry labourers who settled down here in the old potato-digging days.

(d) Túroicéad na nGáthair—“Bridge of the Goats.” It was over this that Hugh Duff and his Ulster men retreated during the siege of Clonmel.

(e) Moore’s Island (O.M.); partly in Inishlounaght Parish.

(f) Castle (O.M.) = “The West Gate”; one (the only survivor) of the four old town gates.

(g) “Main Guard.”

(h) “Silver Spring.”

(i) Bótharín Caoc—“Blind (Dark) Little Road”; called also B. Dub (“Black Little Road”).

(j) Páirc na Fola—“Field of the Blood.” This and the last are close to the extreme south-east boundary of the townland.

S.D. Elmville (O.M.), LÁG AN IUBHAIL—“Hollow of the Yew Tree.”

(dd) Barony of Glenahier, antea.

GORTMALOGE, Gort Maloig—“Mallock’s Garden.” Area, 67 acres.

HAYWOOD, Baile Lice (modification of Buaile)—“Dairy Place”; from bó, a cow. Béal Lice (“Mouth of the Flagstones”) is, however, more likely. Portion of this townland is in Rathronan Parish. Area, 68 acres.

S.D. Tobar Áctam—“Well of the Little Ford.”

KNOCKAUNCOURT, Cnocán na Cúinte—“Little Hill of the Mansion.” The name is not in general local use. Area, 26 acres.

POWERSTOWN. See under Kilgrant Parish, within which the townland chiefly lies. Area, 141 acres.

Templetney Parish.

THIS parish is of perhaps slightly over medium size and its sub-denominations of about average interest. Its own name (“Eithne’s Church”) is ecclesiastical in origin—derived immediately from designation of the townland on which the ancient church stood. The Martyrology of Donegal enumerates three Eithnes. Besides the Teampall there were two other ancient churches in the parish—one at Killurney, where portion of the ruin may be seen close to the residence of Mr. St. John, and the second at Ballypatrick. The physical character of the parish is somewhat peculiar; from rich alluvial gravel flats rise a series of small dome-shaped and mound-like hills many of them crowned with ancient earthworks and lioses.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYBO, Baile Uí Óbaird—“O’Boy’s Homestead.” Dr. Reeves, however, derives (ee) the name from bailebó, an old Irish land division, approximately equal to a ploughland; he points out moreover that, though there are twelve places so named in Ulster, there is but one (the present) in the remainder of Ireland. Area, 615 acres.

(ee) Townland Distribution of Ireland, supra cit.

BALLYKNOCKANE, Baile Chnocáin—“Homestead of the Little Hill.” Area, 1562 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Gleann Buillán—“Glen of the Bullock (or, of the Round-Hollowed Stone).”

(b) Cnoc Cárta—“Easter Hill”; portion of hill side.

BALLYNEVIN, Baile Uí Chnáimin—“O’Nevin’s Homestead.” Area, 230 acres.

BALLYPATRICK, Baile Phádraig—“Patrick’s Homestead.” Area, 825 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Ráipe na Cille—“Field of the Early Church Site”; this church was situated by the west side of a little stream, on the holding of a farmer named Denny and was, according to local tradition, sacred to a St. Bearachan (Berchan). On the site of the primitive ecclesiastical buildings some quern stones were unearthed also portion of a stone cross and an object of stone, in shape resembling a chalice, and long venerated locally as such. The “chalice” may now be seen in the Waterford Museum.

(b) Strut Óearcán—“Bearchan’s Stream.”

COOLORAN, Cúil Odhráin—“Odran’s (or Oran’s) Corner.” I also heard Cúil Uainín—“Little Verdant Corner.” Area, 148 acres.

(d) Dean Ruad—“Red Woman”; a point near the summit of Slievenamon.

(e) Coill Óearg—“Little Wood”; a sub-division.

(f) A small Cromlech, not recorded on Ordnance Map; it will be found a few perches to east of the ruined church.

(g) Sliab na mBán—“Mountain of the Women”; portion of the mountain specially so named and so recorded by Ordnance authorities. On the summit is a cairn 80 yards in circumference, erected as a sepulchral monument to one of the sons of Ugony the Great (ff).

(i) Móinfeadair Suibe Fínn—“Meadow of Fionn’s Sitting Place”; a level space near the summit, on which turf was formerly cut.

KNOCKNACLASH, Cnocán na Cláiré—“Little Hill of the Trench.” Area, 354 acres.

LISNATUBRID, Lios na nUisíobhar—“Lios of the Wells.” The lios from which the place gets its name can be traced on the south side of the bothairín which runs north and south through the townland. Area, 540 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobair na Ráta—“Wall of the Rath”; this name is frequently used by Irish speakers to designate the whole townland. I suppose it is, more strictly, the name of a subdivision.

(b) Anner River (O.M.); probably Anraíonn Féar—“Cold-water River.” The name appears Annúir in Keating’s Poems (gg), and Anraobhar in the ancient tract on the “Expulsion of the Dessi” published by Professor Kuno Meyer.

(c) Oileán na mBánta—“Island of the Fields”; now a ford in the Anner River.

(d) An Ráitín—“The Little Lios.”

(f) Carrraigín na bPiac—“Little Rock of the Ravens”; this stands on the mountain portion of the townland.

(g) Carrraigín a Chaochtáin—“Little Rock of the Quicken Tree.”

(ff) Ordnance Correspondence, Library, R.I.A.

(gg) “Dánta &c., Seanchúim Céitinn,” Rev. J. MacErlean, S.J., p. 64.

(h) Lag a tSeana Óstair—“The Old Road Hollow.”

(i) Órluighe. Meaning somewhat uncertain; the name is applied to a stream which forms the western boundary of the townland. Probably the name is a form of órluig, the debris of underwood, rushes &c. left on a river-bank after floods.

SHANBALLY, Seana Óstair—“Old Homestead.” Area, 510 acres.

S.D. Surðe Finn—“Sitting Place of Fionn”; a cairn.

TEMPLETNEY, Teampull Eitinne—“Eithne’s Church.” There are some slight remains of the church standing in a cemetery still occasionally used. The “pattern” was held about September 25th and the particular day on which it fell was observed as a holiday; unfortunately the exact date is forgotten.

BARONY OF IFFA AND OFFA WEST.

THE Barony of West Iffa and Offa, which is the immediate subject of the present section, is practically the only corner of Tipperary in which Irish is still spoken. It contains, in all, fifteen parishes and it is very remarkable that, of these, not one embodies in its name the word cill, of such frequent occurrence in parish names elsewhere. This latter fact points perhaps to a comparatively late redistribution or formation of parishes. The planters found the land fitted for grazing and fattening; hence they eschewed tillage—a policy which resulted in driving the poor, Celtic, labouring, landless element of the population back to the mountain slopes, north and south. The American War of Independence however and the consequent high price of wheat brought the land again under cultivation and drew portion of the ancient Celtic stock down from the hillsides to hew and carry, reap and sow for the sons and grandsons of those whom they regarded their fathers' despoilers.

Ardfinnan Parish.

THE name Árvo Fionán ("Finnian's Height") recalls St. Finnian the Leper who, it is claimed, founded the church of Ardfinnan about the middle of the seventh century. No traces of the ancient Celtic church survive but a series of grass-grown mounds on the hill top mark the site of a once considerable ecclesiastical establishment. The parish—of small extent—is bisected by the Suir; the townlands are mostly of small extent and hence very many sub-denominations are not to be expected. Archdall gives Drumabhrach as an ancient name of Ardfinnan. The free tenants of the towne of Ardfinane paid yearly to the Bishop 6/8 besides other services ; in addition, the Manor of Ardfinane (80 acres with a mill) belonged to the Bishopric of Waterford. (a)

TOWNLANDS.

ARDFINNAN. See above. The castle, built here (1185) by King John, survives, and is still used as a residence. An Earl of Desmond (John, son of Garrett,) was drowned in the ford of the Suir beneath the castle, 1399 (A.F.M.). Area, 267 acres.

BALLINDONEY, Baile an Dóna (tSonnaró)—"Homestead of the Stockade." The name is reminiscent of the time (probably 13th century) when isolated settlers protected their newly formed ballies and bawns by a stout palisading of sharp pointed stakes. Most of the townland is in Derrygrath Parish. Area, 130 acres.

BALLYNEETY, Baile an Faoitig—"White's Homestead." Greater portion of the townland lies within Neddan's Parish. Area, 63 acres.

TOULOURE, Toll Órbair—"Dun-Coloured Pond." Area, 110 acres.

S.D. RIAN ÓR PHÁRMAIS—"Track of (St.) Patrick's Cow"; it corresponds roughly with present old road (N. & S.) through centre of the townland. See under Feemore, above.

Ballybacon Parish.

THE parish, which is of somewhat more than average extent, includes a considerable area of mountain. One of its townlands—Kildanoge—yields no fewer than forty-two sub-denominations, most of them mountain names and some of them highly interesting. The Irish form of the parish name is Baile Uí Phéacáin ("O'Peakin's Homestead"); this is neither borrowed from nor shared with a townland. With the exception of the Kildanoge names alluded to the sub-denominations are of only average interest.

TOWNLANDS.

(w) Món Meannán—“Bog of the Kid (?)”; perhaps Meannán here = mBeannán (e). Meannán may possibly mean the jack-snipe; at any rate I have grave doubt as to the rendering “Kid.”

(y) Roche’s Hill (O.M.), Cnoc a Róicis. Idem.

(z) Carrair na Muc—“The Pigs’ Rock.”

- (pp) Cill Brigoe—“Bride’s Church”; between last and bottom of the glen.
- KILGROGY, Cill Gruaige—“Gruaige’s Church.” Neither trace nor tradition of church site could be found. A solitary aged whitethorn bush on summit of a gentle height is regarded with so much veneration that no one will interfere with it. This may possibly mark the church site, but it more probably indicates the former scene of an execution. Area (in two divisions—Móri and Deag respectively), 208 acres.
- S.D. Crann an Iubaġi—“The Yew Tree (Site).”
- KILMANEEN, Cill Mainċin (or Mo Fингин)—“Mainin’s (My Finghin’s) Church.” Area, 119 acres.

- KNOCKBALLINIRY, Cnoc Baile an Oisne—“Hill of the Heir’s Homestead.” Area, 741 acres.
- LACKANABRICKANE, Leaca na bBriċċaċan—“Glen Slope of the Crows.” This appears to have been originally a sub-division of Garryduff, to which its present name was given—derisively. Area, 32 acres.

(f) See Journal R.S.A.I., Vol. XV. (Fifth Series), p. 117.

LADY'S ABBEY, Máinistirín Muire—“Abbey of Mary.” On this diminutive townland stands the ruin of a small Carmelite Monastery. The remains consist of little more than nave and choir of the conventional church, in a fair state of preservation. There is also a tower springing, in the usual way, from junction of nave and choir, and a highly ornate east window (later Gothic). Neither Archdall nor Stephens makes reference to this house, which is evidently a comparatively late foundation. Area, 16 acres.

LISHEENANOUL, Lírin na nUiball—“Little Lios of the Apples.”
Area, 185 acres.

LISHEENPOWER, Lírin a Pháoraig—“Power's Little Lios.”
Area, 142 acres.

LODGE, Cill na bPílaosán—“Ancient Church of Freehans”; this is presumably a former sub-division of Freehan's townland, from which it was nominally cut off on erection of the house from which it derives its present name. The house in question, which is still occupied, was the residence of Buck Sheehy, who was hanged in Clogheen, 1766. Some distance to south-west of the house is a holy well and the cill (early church site) from which comes the Irish name. Area, 155 acres.

S.DD. (a) Lios na gCearc—“Lios of the (Heath) Hens”; also Dótarún Leatha na gCearc.

(b) Old Deer Park (O.M.).

TULLOW, Tulaig—“Hill Summit.” Area, 328 acres.

S.D. Póil a tSeaphras—“Hole of the Colt”; a well. See under Poulatar supra.

(g) See legend of the “Rian bó pháoraig”—Journal R.S.A.I., Vol. XV. (Fifth Series), p. 110.

Caher Parish.

THE parish, which is of large extent, takes its name from a stone fort (Cáitar) which occupied the site of the present castle—on an island in the Suir. This place is constantly referred to in the Annals as Cáitar-Túin-1aṛs (h). Caher castle, now carefully preserved, has, ever since its erection, been bound up with the history and fortunes of the Butler family. It was besieged in turn and captured by Essex, Inchiquin and Cromwell. Col. Thos. Pigott writing in 1647 to Sir Philip Percival describes it as “the strongest castle I know of in the kingdom.” (i) Within the parish are the town of Caher, a ruined abbey of the Augustinians, the ancient parish church—also in ruins, as well as the remains of three other churches. In addition the writer has verified five early church sites. Owing to the non-use of Irish the parish is not rich in place names, nor in traditions to illustrate the names surviving. A few of the last are however of exceptional interest.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINGEARY, Baile an Sgoiptair (?)—“Homestead of the Wooded Glen.” Ballingeary West, which is over a mile in length, is only about one twenty-fourth part of a mile wide. Area (in two divisions), 679 acres.

“Ballyalovoe alias Barnora” (A.S.E.).

BALLYBRADDA, Baile Órlaois—“Thief’s Homestead.” Area, 341 acres.

S.DD. (a) Site of Church (O.M.). I think the Ordnance Map is incorrect here. There was no church; the graveyard adjoining (h) Vid. “Book of Lecain,” fol. 237, p. b. col. a; also A.F.M. 1559, &c. alleged site is a comparatively modern burial ground of the Society of Friends.

(b) Úán a Lóca—“Field of the Pond.”

(c) Ústairín a Thadra—“ Little Road of the Wolf (or Dog).”

(d) Gárrairde na Leathóib—“Garden of the Rags (or Pieces).”

(e) Súil Úán—“ White Eye”; a hole in the river.

BALLYHENEBERY, Baile Henebry—“ Henebery's Homestead.”

Area, 157 acres.

“ Ballyhenebery alias Barnora ” (A.S.E.).

BALLYLEGAN, Baile Liagán—“ Homestead of the Pillar Stone. There is the site and some remains of a church. Area, 262 acres.

“ Ballylegan alias Barnora ” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. Knockfeagh Hill (O.M.), Cnoc Fiaidh—“ Stag Hill.”

BALLYMACADAM, Baile Mac Ádam—“MacAdam's Homestead.” Here are the ruins of a plain rectangular church of considerable size—formerly a dependency of the Abbey of Caher. In the Acts of Settlement &c. Ballymacadam appears as the equivalent of five present day independent townlands. Area (in three divisions), 514 acres.

S.D. puill Úana—“White Holes”; pits from which pipe clay was procured; the clay was used in the military barracks at Caher till recently.

BALLYNAMONA, Baile na n-Uaitne—“ Homestead of the Green Places (or of the Greenes).” The Ordnance Map is certainly wrong in its Anglicisation and spelling of this name. Area, 206 acres.

“ Ballynnoonach ” (Mid. 18th Cent. Baptismal Reg. of Caher).

S.DD. (a) Coill a Cluig—“ Wood of the Bell.”

(b) “Riasge Road” (Riarsc, a marsh) forms the boundary with Clonmore.”

(c) Gléann na Fionnóig—“Glen of the Scald Crow”; a well-known sub-division—formerly an independent townland.”

BARNORA, Bailearna Fuaireadh—“ Cooling Gap.” Like Ballymacadam (above) this townland was formerly much larger. According to the Acts of Settlement &c. five of the present townlands of the parish are merely aliases for portions of the original Barnora. Area, 264 acres.

S.DD. (a) Claír Toub—“Black Trench”; a sort of Glen.

(b) Tobair na gCuirgeáin—“Well of the Churns”; water for domestic use was drawn hence in the vessels mentioned.

CAHER ABBEY, CATHAIR—“Stone Fort.” Area (in two divisions), 1055 acres.

S.DD (a) Lady's Well (O.M.).

(b) “Holy Well” (O.M.). This is always known as Tobair Iosa—“Jesus' Well.” Sixty five years since the well was surrounded by a patch of swamp now drained. “Rounds” had nevertheless been made here from time immemorial. The masonry covering the well is modern, though some of the carved stones inserted are of unknown antiquity. One of the latter, with a small inscribed cross in a circle, was found many years ago together with the smaller rude cross, in a bog close to the Bansha road, a full half mile from the well. This information I had from the actual finder, Roger Sheehy, aged eighty years at date of my interview. The rudely inscribed stone by the gate was cut and placed there by Sheehy himself. A description of the well with an illustration, is given in Journal R.S.A.I. Vol. IX. (Fifth Series) p. 258.

(c) Sceac a Leacta—“Bush of the Monumental Pile.”

(d) An Leaca Deargta—“The Shorn Glen Slope”; a large sub-division.

(e) Lag Satalc—“Dirty Hollow.”

(f) An Scáirbeac. This seems to signify a rough shrub-overgrown place. The place so named though now wild mountain, was populated a century ago.

(g) Lag Mór—“Great Hollow.”

(h) Coill Dearg—“Little Wood.”

CLONMORE, CLUAIN MÓR—“Great Meadow.” Area (in two divisions), 1,011 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cill Gobnaic—“Gobnet's Church.” This is a little known, early church site on the farm of Pat Mullany. Inserted in the fence close by is a round, dressed block of conglomerate four feet in diameter by about a foot in thickness; it is either a millstone or (more probably) the plinth of an ancient cross. One face of the stone is smooth the other rough and in the centre is a hole $4\frac{1}{2}$ " in diameter and carried right through, while close to the edge on the smooth face are two bullan like depressions of the usual character.

- (b) Móin Ruad—“Red Bog”; a sub-division.
- (c) Cláir a Óainne—“Milk Trench”; a small sub-division.
- (d) An Ríarcaé—“The Moory Place.”

COOLACLAMPER, Cúl a Clamraí—“Corner of the Contention.”

Disputed land is often styled—clamraí. Area, 171 acres.

EDENMORE, Éadóan Mór—“Great Brow.” The name is perhaps derived in the present instance from a large lios with high ramparts. Area, 78 acres.

“Adammore alias Loughloch” (A.S.E.).

FARRANLAHASSERY, Féarann Leit-Seirpse—“Farm of the Half Plow-Land.” Compare place of similar name, Kilbarrymaiden Parish, also Ballynalaheasary, Dungarvan Parish. Area, 105 acres.

“Farnlahasey alias Barnora” (A.S.E.).

FARRANNAGARK, Féarann na gCeapc—“Land of the (Heath) Hens.” Area, 57 acres.”

“Farnagark alias Ballymacadam” (A.S.E.).

GARNAVILLA, Gárrán a Óile—“Grove of the Old Tree.” Here lived “Lovely Kate” immortalised by Lysagh. There is a small portion of the townland in Derrygrath Parish. Area, 849 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Cnoc an Fuaðais—“Hill of the Plundering (or Carrying-off by Force).” The plunderer in the present instance appears to be the wind, sweeping away corn &c. from an exposed ridge.

(b) Seana Óaire—“The Old Village”; applied to an area of a couple of fields.

(c) “The Kylógs”; “Caológs” is a little narrow thing. The name is here applied to a couple of fields.

(d) Cnoc a Láipín—“Hill of the Little Mare.”

(e) Cnoc Ráthair—“Thick (Stumpy) Hill.”

GARRYCLOHER, Garraíde Clutman—“Sheltered Garden.”

(b) Dán a Chnochair—“Field of the Collection of Hills.”

(c) Gort na Saoite—“Garden of the Wind.”

(d) Loc a Ceoil—“Pond of the Music”; from sound of a subterranean (or subaqueous) fiddle often heard here.

(e) Gleannán a Cloiginn—“Little Glen of the Skull.”

GRANGEBUG, Grainreach Úsag—“Little Monastic Out-Farm”; belonging, in the present instance, presumably, to Cahir Abbey.
Area, 61 acres.

“Grangebeg alias Ballymacadam” (A.S.E.).

GRANGEMORE, Grainreach Mór—“Great Grange.” Area, 105 acres.

“Grangemore alias Ballymacadam” (A.S.E.).

S.D. “St. Patrick’s Stone”; a roadside boulder of limestone locally regarded with veneration and believed to have been used as a cushion by the National Apostle, marks of whose knees local credulity sees in a couple of circular indentations on the face of the stone.

HUSSEYSTOWN, Baile Uí Easára. Idem. Area, 188 acres.

KEYLONG, Caoilte—“Narrow Strip”; this is a townland of extraordinary shape; about four miles in length it is at no point wider than thirteen perches! In the neighbourhood of Dungarvan it would, I imagine, be called a “Staing.” Area, 84 acres.

S.D. Loc Gruaigín—“Pond of the Little Turf Rick.”

KILCOMMON, Cill Comáin—“Cummian’s Church.” The site of the early church is within the Glengall demesne and quite close to the Swiss cottage. On the erection of the latter and the laying out of the ornamental grounds which surround it the ancient graveyard was disturbed and the bones of the dead, in many cases, removed. Area (in three divisions), 1,514 acres. .

S.DD. (a) Varra na hÁrdóle, apparently—“Summit of the Adze”; a sub-division. From the repeated occurrence however of the word áitíle in such connections I am strongly inclined to doubt the rendering—adze.

(b) Dán a Locha—“Field of the Pond”; a small sub-division of about 40 acres.

(c) Loc na Dó—“Pond of the Cow” also Croíairne Locha na Dó (“Cross-Roads of the Cow Pond”), a very well known name.

(d) Gleann Riabac—“Grey Glen.”

(e) Loc Eilír—“Elizabeth’s Pond.”

(f) Cloc a Stainge—“Rock of the Staing.” A staing is a measure of land (a perch), but it is applied in the neighbourhood of Dungarvan to peculiarly long and very narrow fields or strips of land; see Keylong, above. This present sub-division, on which are now the military barracks, appears also to have been called Clashdooney (probably Clair Dúna).

(g) Rath a Dáin—“Rath of the Plain.”

KILLEENBUTLER, Cillín Buitléir—“Butler’s Little Church.” The site of the early church is close to the Railway on east side of latter. Area, 249 acres.

KILLEIGH, Cill Liat—“Grey Church.” There are within the Decies at least four ancient church sites so named. Area, 150 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Páirc na Cille—“Field of the Early Church”; on north side of old Clonmel-Cahir road.

(b) Leact Sean—“White Monumental Cairn”; applied to a slight elevation on the road just alluded to.

KILLEMLY, Cill Eimlig (or Imilig)—“Church of the Lough Brink.” The site was discovered, with difficulty, by east side (i) of the Cahir-Cashel road. Area, 206 acres.

“Kilmelach” (Close Rolls, 8. Hen. III.).

KNOCKAGH, Cnocád—“Hilly Place.” This is alluded to in the Leabhar-Gabhala as Ard-Feirchis i.e. height of Feirchis, the poet. The large lios on east of the direct north-and-south road was probably the poet’s residence. Feirchis it was who killed

(i) “The Prior of Kather to have seisin of the lands of Rathmor. Geoffrey de Camville bought this land of Thomas FitzMaurice and conferred it on the Prior, as it extended from the ford of Kilmeloch to Gleinelech als Glimecloch.” Close Roll, 8. Hen. III.

Lughaidh MacConn, King of Ireland, as the latter was distributing gifts of gold and silver to the poets of Ireland near Derrygrath, in this neighbourhood (j). A house stood, till recently, within the lios. Area, 311 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobair a Stairse—“Well of the Stairs (Steps).”

(b) Þáirc a Tíseartha—“The Lord’s (Landlord’s ?) Field.”

(c) Þáirc a Leit-Tíl. Meaning uncertain. Possibly the compound should be Leit-til—“Of the Thin Seeding (Half-Crop).”

(d) Þáirc an Óir—“Field of the Gold.”

KNOCKMORRIS, Cnoc Mhuirír — “Maurice’s Hill.” Area, 147 acres.

LISSAKYLE, Lior a Cille. Meaning doubtful. Area, 70 acres.

“Lisakei alias Ballymacadam” (A.S.E.). “Lisacoil” (Bapt. Reg., Cahir—Mid. 18th cent.).

LISSAVA, Lior a Meadha—“Lios of the Mead (Metheglin).”

Dineen, however, makes Meadha a fem. noun. Area, 808 acres.

S.DD. (a) Site of Castle (O.M.), Cairstean na Mainistreach—“The Abbey Castle.”

(b) Þear Þréigse — “Man-Simulating Pillar Stone”; on mountain summit.

(c) Cairstean Æorð—“Hugh’s (or Hayes’) Castle”; a pile of stones.

(d) Þinn Sop. Meaning uncertain.

LOUGHHAUN, Locán—“Little Pond.” Some authorities gave Loc Þán. Area, 42 acres.

LOUGHLOHERY, Loc Luachra—“Pond of the Rushes.” There is a ruined church with graveyard, also two ruined castles—“Keating’s Castle” and “Coolbane (Cúl Þán—‘White Corner’) Castle” respectively. Area, 904 acres.

“Loghloghry Keating” (D.S.). “Loghloghry Magan” (Vallancey’s Map).

S.DD. (a) Rian Þe Þáoraig—“Track of St. Patrick’s Cow,” which passed through the townland close to its eastern boundary, and in a north-and-south direction. When writing the account of (j) “Annals of Four Masters,” A.D. 225 &c.

the Rian, which appears in the Journal of the R.S.A. (Ireland) for June, 1905, I had not identified this portion of the route from living tradition of the locality. The memory and local knowledge of Mr. John Heffernan of Cuckoo Hill has, however, enabled me to identify it since.

(b) Þáirc na bPobal—“Field of the Assemblages.”

(c) Monespink Lough (O.M.), Móin a Spuinne—“Bog of the Coltsfoot (Herb).”

(d) Tobairaca—“Wells.”

MONADERREEN, Móin a Toirín—“Bog of the Little Oak-Wood.” Area, 652 acres.

S.D. Slieveanard (O.M.), Stíab an Áirí—“Mountain of the Height (Elevated Point),” 1,437 feet.

MONARAH, Móin a Rath—“Bog of the Rath.” Area, 187 acres.

NEWTOWN ADAM, Baile Nuad—“New Village.” Area, 327 acres.

“Newtown Adam alias Ballymacadam” (A.S.E.).

RAHEEN, Ráthin—“Little Rath.” Area, 563 acres.

(b) Rát an Fhiad—“Rath of the Deer”; a sub-division.

RATHMORE, Rát Mór—“Great Rath.” The name-giving Rath is not that noted on the Ordnance Map and still surviving, but another, the site of which is traceable by north side of main road (k). Area, 120 acres.

SUTTONSRATH, Deárna Íuair—“Cooling Gap.” Area, 204 acres.

“Suttonrath alias Baronora” (A.S.E.).

S.D. Locanna—“Ponds”; a sub-division.

TOWNPARKS, Cáitir—“Stone Fort”; this townland includes practically the whole town of Cahir, including the castle, ruined parish church and cemetery, &c. Area, 358 acres.

(k) See Close Roll 8. Hen. III.

Derrygrath Parish.

ETMOLOGICALLY Derrygrath has nothing to do with oaks or woods as its sound and spelling would suggest; it is simply the irregular Anglicisation of Deangs-Rath—“Red Rath.” The parish is of rather less than average extent and is non-Irish speaking. Its ruined church, crowning a gentle eminence beside the great triple-walled rath from which townland and parish are named, has a beautiful chancel arch of transitional style. All dressings &c. are of fine grained mountain sandstone. Unfortunately only the nave of the venerable edifice survives. Within the demolished chancel is the burial place of the Keatings of the historian's line. There are at least three other early church sites within the parish.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYDONEY, Úaile an Dónaig (*c*Sonndáig)—“Homestead of the Stockade.” There is a fine ruined castle and close by it a large circular cill or early church site which, bearing unfortunately no special name, is not marked at all on the Ordnance Maps.

“Síottcán, riottcán, aifre maotha Úaile phéascán,
“Coigach, coigach, aifre maotha Úaile an Dónaig.”

(Old Rann).

S.D. Markhamtown (O.M.), Úaile phlaicim. Idem.

CARRIGAUN, Cárragán—“Little Rock.” Area, 114 acres.

COMMONS ENTIRE, Cárragán. As last. Area (in two divisions), 83 acres.

CLOGHNACODY, Clocán na Córóe—“Stepping Stones of (by) the Brush-Wood.” Córó is akin to the Latin Salicetum. Compare Welsh “Côid” as in Betys-y-Côid. Area, 84 acres.

CRUTTA, Crotas—“Hump (Hillock)-Abounding.” Area (in two divisions), 70 acres.

CUCKOO HILL, Cnoc na Caille—“The Hag's Hill.” The Anglicisation of this name here suggests the idea that perhaps the ubiquitous “hag” of place names is the cuckoo. Area, 140 acres.

S.DD. (a) Glebe (O.M.), peairinn na hEaglaise—“Land of the Church.” If tradition is to be credited the present is not the original glebe. The latter, on which Mr. Heffernan's homestead now stands, got lost. At any rate the Church was unable to recover it, but got other land (the present "Glebe") of equivalent value instead.

(b) Loc Feárlainn na hEaglaise; a pond on last.

(c) Ráirc na Grove (or, na Sciró)—"Field of the Grove (or 'of the Sheep Pens')."

DERRYGRATH, Dearg-Rath—“Red Rath.” On the townland are the ruins of an interesting church of, probably, early 13th century erection and close by it the great three ringed lios from which comes name of parish and townland. Not many yards from the outer rampart of the lios stood (till a dozen years since), near north-east corner of the field, a tall and slender pillar stone which O'Donovan (note to Four Masters) identifies as the pillar against which Lughaidh, Chief King of Ireland, stood when he was treacherously slain by Feirchis (see Knockagh—Cahir Par. above, see also Keating, under date A.D. 182). A depression in the soil, due to falling in of a small subterranean limestone cave, marks at present the spot where the pillar stood. The latter has been broken up for fence repairing material. O'D. states that the place of the occurrence was called Gort an Óir at date of the Survey. The name, if it existed half a century since, is now unknown. There is however a Ráirc an Óir on the neighbouring townland of Knockagh as well as a Clair an Áirgeá on the present townland. An old road ran from the church due west to make junction with the present road, via Loughloghery, to Cahir. Area (in two divisions), 617 acres.

“Thackerath” (Sweetman's Calendar, 1283).

S.DD. (a) Clair an Áirgeá—“Trench of the Silver.” Through, or beside, this ran—from direction of the ford of Ardfinnan—another ancient road which effected a junction, close to Derrygrath church, with the old east-and-west road to Cahir and continued thence northwards towards Kyle (Woodroofe).

(b) Clair an Órta—“Trench of the Hospitality.”

(c) Rat Óub—“Black Rath.”

(d) Póill Durde—“Yellow Hole.”

(e) Cláir a tSlosgaire—“Swallow-Hole Trench.”

(f) Ráirc na Yeomen—“The Yeomens’ Field.”

(g) Cláir Sainche—“Sand Pit.”

(h) Ctoc na gCeann—“Stone of the Heads,” i.e. for execution by beheading; this is a big block set in a fence by the roadside.

GARNAVILLA. See under Cahir Par. above.

GARRYROE, Gárrairde Ruath—“Red Garden.” Area, 112 acres.

KILMALOGE, Cill Molóis — “Mologe’s Church.” The Ordnance Maps do not indicate the church site. Indeed the latter, which is about 40 perches to east of Kilmaloge pond, was recovered only with much difficulty; it is close to the railway (north side), and bounded on the north by the road running east towards Nicholstown Castle. Portion of this townland lies in Ardfinnan Par. and portion in Rochestown. Area, 559 acres.

S.DD. (a) Lough Ryan (O.M.), Loc Ríam. Idem.

(b) Cnoc an Fuaðais—“Hill of the Blowing About (of Stacks &c. by Wind),” a well known sub-division, Anglicised “Knockaneddy.” See under Garnavilla, above.

(c) Bótharín Cinn Duine—“Little Road of Man’s Head.” This led in an easterly direction from neighbourhood of Garnavilla National School. On the hill was a cill in which human skulls were found, hence the name.

(d) Cnoc Báite Uí lcróe—“Ballyhickey Hill”; though on this, and not on Ballyhickey, townland.

KILMURRY, Cill Muire—“Mary’s Church.” The name seems to be new, as a designation of the townland. The latter is generally and locally regarded as a sub-division of Derrygrath. As in the case of Kilmaloge, there was considerable difficulty in identifying the church site. It is in a small field adjoining the main Cahir-Clonmel road, on south side of the latter and on the farm of a man named Dahill. The foundations of the church were unearthed during farming operations, a few years since. Area, 93 acres.

S.D. Gort Sceite Lin—“Garden of the Flax (Whitethorn) Bush”; a large field in which was a hole for steeping flax.

KNOCKINRICHARD, Cnoicín Rífteachair—“Richard’s Little Hill.” Area, 27 acres.

LISNAMUCK, Lior na Muice—"Lios of the Pig"; probably from some legendary or historic pig. On this townland there are no fewer than six lioses—three of them small and circular, two (a larger and a smaller) irregular in shape, and one partially destroyed. I have not been able to discover which of the six gives name to the townland. Area, 367 acres.

NICHOLASTOWN, Dáile Niccoil—"Nichol's Homestead." The ruined castle of the Keatings on this townland is a very prominent object in the landscape.

S.D. "The Croughtas"—i.e. The Crofts—some small fields.

THOMASTOWN, Dáile Tomáir. Idem. Area, 174 acres.

Molough Parish.

THE Parish derives its name (Mas Locha, Castrum Stagni, or "Plain of the Pool") from the townland on which the primitive church and nunnery stood. Some remains of the ancient buildings survive, but they are neither interesting nor extensive. Though the church is an extremely early foundation, its parish is of but very limited extent. In the Irish Life of St. Declan the nunnery of Molough is alluded to as existing in the 5th century. A noted ford in the Suir, close to the ancient religious foundation, gave some importance to the place in early and mediæval times.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYNAMONA, Dáile na Móna—"Homestead of the Bog." There is no trace of a turf-bog now; on the contrary, the land is of first-class fattening quality. Area, 156 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cárraig a Stáinpharóid (pr. stauray). Meaning unknown.

(b) Úairia Rinne—"Headland Summit."

(c) "St. Bridget's (sic) Well" (O.M.), Tobair Brigit—"Brigid's Well."

BURGESSLAND, Feárainn a Úrbisgeara (Úrbisgeara). Idem. Area, 214 acres.

S.DD. (a) Páirc a Ráip—“The Race Field.”

(b) Na Ráitíníoe—“The Little Raths”; two small circular lioses.

(c) Páirc na Snaigé—“Field of the Village.”

FLEMINGSTOWN, Barle an Phéimion. Idem. Area, 95 acres.

GARRANCASEY, Seapán Úi Catairais—“O’Casey’s Grove.”

The present does not appear to have been the original name; the latter is locally believed to have been Cúl Ruád—“Red Corner.” Area, 118 acres.

GREENMOUNT, Carrraig a Sáibhir—“Rock of the Goat.” An island in the Suir, adjoining Greenmount, is half in this townland and half in Co. Waterford (Bar. Glenahiry). A ford joined the present townland with Suirmount, on the opposite side of the river. Area, 268 acres.

S.D. Leaca an Tobaír—“Glen Slope of the Well.”

MOLOUGH ABBEY, Mainistir Brigid—“St. Brigid’s Nunnery” (also, commonly, Moláca Brigid). The crossing of the river here by the Co. Waterford boundary line argues a change in the course of the Suir. A ford (in use half a century ago) connected Molough Abbey with Ballymakee, on the Waterford side. The fair and pattern of Molough were held on February 1st (St. Brigid’s Day). Area, 292 acres.

S.DD. (a) Carrraig a Tailtíura—“The Tailor’s Rock”; in river.

(b) Póil Núndáin—“Noonan’s Drowning Hole.”

(c) Póil na gCaoineach—“Pool of the Sheep.”

(d) Scolla; name applied to a rock in the river.

(e) Leaba an tSagairt—“The Priest’s Bed”; a rock.

MOLOUGH NEWTOWN, Barle Nuad—“New Town.” At the east side of this townland was the remarkable ford of the Suir, across which was carried the ancient main road to Ardmore (l). Area, 272 acres.

(l) Vid. “Vita S. Declani,” ut supra.

RATHKELLY, Ráth Ó Sceilgais—“O’Kellys’ Rath.” Area, 207 acres.

(b) An Leat-Čnoc—“The Half Hill.”

(c) An Leatanacht—“The Widening (of a Lane).”

Mortlestown Parish.

MORTLESTOWN, a parish of less than average size, derives its name from the townland on which its ancient church stood. The church ruin which survived till a few years since, was vandalically demolished by a late parish priest of Cahir. From our present particular point of view the parish possesses comparatively little interest; sub-denominations are few and the townland names are of no special importance.

TOWNLANDS.

BANNAMORE, Deanna Mór—“Great Peak.” Area, 46 acres.

“Bannamore alias Castlecoyne” (A.S.E.).

CASTLECOYNE, Cairstleán Čaðain—“Coyne’s Castle.” There is a small square (later residential) castle, from which the place is called. On the townland is also a remarkable rath of great size, surrounded by a double rampart. Area, 77 acres.

KEDRAGH, Céad Spota. Meaning uncertain. Locally the name is believed to be Céad Spota—“Hundred Streams,” a derivation to which physical features lend considerable veri-similitude. An obvious objection is however suggested by the fact that céad takes its noun in the singular. Area, 751 acres.

(b) Dothairín a tSgota—“Little Road of the Stream.”

(c) Cúl Riabach—“Grey Corner”; a sub-division in which no fewer than forty families were formerly resident.

(d) Gléann an Fhéir—“Glen of the Hay”; a well known sub-division.

KNOCKNABOHA, Cnoc na Dotta—“Hill of the Boothy.” Area, 258 acres.

S.D. Lough Grogeen (O.M.), Loc Sruasgin—“Pond of (the) Little Turf Rick.”

KNOCKSKAGH, Cnoc na Sceac—“Hill of the Whitethorns.” Area, 150 acres.

MORTLESTOWN, Baile Moirtéalaig—“Mortel’s Homestead.” Area (in two divisions), 380 acres.

RATHARD, Rát Árdo—“High Rath.” Area, 114 acres.

SHORTCASTLE. No Irish name. There are remains of a small square castle similar to that in Castlecoyne. Area, 58 acres.

Neddins Parish.

THE present parish, though somewhat more extensive than either of the two preceding, is still slightly under average area. It lies mainly along east bank of the Suir. Three of its townlands however—Laken, Knockroe and Knockadempsey—are on the west side, whence they communicated with the main area of the parish by a ford, still occasionally used, near south boundary of Lacken. Knockadempsey also communicated directly with Clocully by another ford reached by a laneway at both ends. A third ford joined Rathokelly to Kilmaneen. Little remains of the ancient parish church; in fact, with the exception of a flat arched single doorway, scarcely any architectural feature survives. The parish is by no means rich in place names; those surviving are of no more than average interest.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYNEETY. See Ardfinnan Par. Area, 331 acres.

CLOCARDEEN, Cloc Áirpoín—“Rock of the Little Height.” Area, 257 acres.

S.D. Móta a Chnoicín—“Mote of the Little Hill”; on west boundary.

KNOCKNAKILLARDY, Cnoc na Cilláirne—“Hill of the Church Eminence.” Modern corruption is making it Cill Áirne. Area, 119 acres.

“Killardanny viz.:—Ponsisland” (Inq. April, 1569).

KNOCKROE, Cnoc Ruad—“Red Hill.” Area, 32 acres.

LACKEN, Leacain—“Glen Slope.” Area, 109 acres.

(b) Móta a Campa—“The Camp Road.”

(c) Ráipe na Molt—“Field of the Wethers”; a less known sub-division.

RATHOKELLY. See under Molough Par. Area, 35 acres.

Newcastle Parish.

A CASTLE (now in ruins) of the Prendergasts gave its name to this parish, which is of great extent and embraces a wide tract of mountain. Irish is still a living tongue throughout the whole area; hence the names surviving are of uncommon interest and number. Through the parish ran one of the ancient lines of communication between the Northern and Southern Decies. The remains of the ancient church show the latter to have been more than ordinarily commodious. Popular tradition persists in attributing the destruction of the church to a Prendergast, who set it on fire. Close by the ruined church stands the still more ruinous castle.

TOWNLANDS.

AUGHAVANLOMAN, Át a Úeanntomáin. Meaning somewhat uncertain. Úeanntomáin is probably some species of plant. O'Donovan explains it—Úeann Lomán—“Bare Peak,” but against this is the objection that beann, a peak, is fem., whereas the word in the place-name is clearly masc. Father Maurus O'Phelan, Ord. Cist., suggests that Ú is a kind of dandelion (Serratula tinctoria). Area, 1,827 acres.

S.DD. (a) Coillíníde—“Little Woods”; a well-known sub-division.

(b) Caolán—“Little Narrow Place.”

(c) Tobairín a Chorráta—“Little Well of the Mark.”

(d) Fáobair a Óinne—“Trench of the Torrent.”

BOOLAHALLAGH, Úaile Salac—“Dirty Milking Place.” Some local authorities however consider latter element of the name = a form of the surname—Hally. Area, 1,014 acres.

S.DD. (a) Machana Garracolley (old sub-division, according to lease of 1739), Máca na nGéarín-Cailíde—“The Girls’ Milking Yard.”

(b) An Ruabán—“The Moor”; a large, well-known sub-division.

(c) Úán a Coirín—“Field of the Little Twist (or Shoulder)”; a sub-division.

(d) Úárra na gCíorpóis—“Gap of the Little Sticks”; a sub-division.

(h) Tuair na Laróine—“Cattle Field of the River Fork”; a sub-division.

(i) Cnoc Rámhan—“Thick Hill.”

(j) Cloc Liat—“Grey Rock”; a pillar-stone or boulder (lime-stone) which formerly stood on last; it was broken up for road metal, of which material it yielded several loads.

(k) "The Font Field"; a field belonging to Mrs. Murphy, in which is a sandstone font, roughly circular in shape and about two feet in diameter, with cup about six inches deep. Rev. James Prendergast, of the Newcastle family, while P.P. of Newcastle, built in 1793 a chapel at the place now called Pastoville. This continued in use till the building of a more convenient church at Newcastle.

(l) Folact fiað—"Prehistoric Cooking Place"; name of yet another field.

(m) Móin na mBuinneán—"Bog of the Saplings."

CLASHAVOUGHNA, Clair a mHáca—"Trench of the Milking Place." Area, 238 acres.

S.D.D. (a) An Faitcín—"The Little Hurling Green."

(b) Ústairín na Úfáidhbarac—"Little Road of the Natural Water-Worn Trenches."

(c) Úán na Mainistreach—"The Abbey Field." This is a boggy field in which are some pieces of ancient masonry, popularly believed to be remains of a monastic building.

CLASHGANNY, Clair Samhna—"Sand Trench." A field called the "Quarry Field" has a pit from which was procured the trócair, or sandy marl, which gave its name to the townland. On the townland, close by the ancient roadway which led Ardmore-wards, is a cill, or early church site, indicated by a mound and a small monumental pillar-stone. Area, 1,281 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Barranacullia (O.M.), Úairra na Coille—"Summit of the Wood."

(b) Seana Óaire—"Old Village"; a sub-division.

S.DD. (a) Knockardbounce (O.M.), Cnoc Árta Únnraig—“High Wattle-Abounding Hill”; a prominent peak close to the County boundary.

(b) Knocknascolloge (O.M.), Cnoc na Sciolóige. I am not quite sure of the force of the qualifying term here. It is used ordinarily to signify a small cut-away piece, and this seems to be the purpose in the present instance.

(c) Newcastle (O.M.), Cairteán Nuad. Idem; the village which gives name to the parish, but not to a townland.

(d) Knocknagearach (O.M.), Cnoc na gCaoirne—“Hill of the Sheep”; a sub-division.

ROSSMORE, Ror Mór—“Great Shrubbery.” Area, 383 acres.

Rochestown Parish.

THIS is a very small parish, containing three townlands only and portion of a fourth. It is evident from the Royal Visitation Books (MS. T.CD., E, 3, 14) that anciently it was much larger, and that, being cut in two by the Suir, two churches—one on either side of the river—came in course of time to be erected. Later on the eastern portion became a separate parish under the name of Rochestown, and the other part was eventually swallowed up in the ancient Parish of Tubrid at the west. But scant remains of the ancient church survive; they stand within the old cemetery, wood-overgrown, but still occasionally used. The local names are singularly uninteresting.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYHICKEY, Baile Uí Icroe—“O’Hickey’s Homestead.” The old direct road to Ardfinnan running along west boundary of this townland represents the ancient highway to the South Decies from the Munster Capital (o).

KILMALOGE. See under Ardfinnan and Derrygrath. Area, 127 acres.

(o) See Journal R.S.A.I., Aug., 1905.

ROCHESTOWN, Baile an Róis tíos—“Roche’s Homestead.” There are the remains of an ancient castle under which is a good ford in the Suir. By this pass the Cromwellian army crossed. There was likewise a ford at Reechestown half a mile to the south; this latter was reached by the present lane running down to the river from the east. At Garnavilla was yet another ford, but the best known and the most generally used was doubtless the Rochestown ford. The castle of Rochestown (“Roche’s Castle”) was stormed in 1647 by Inchiquin who put its fifty warders to the sword and burned “much corn and divers towns thereabouts” (p.). Area, 633 acres.

(b) Bótharín an Áiríonn—“Little Road of the Mass.”

(c) Ráth a Óabáin—“Rath of the Mute.”

Shanrahan Parish.

SHANRAHAN is a parish of great extent—stretching from the Co. Waterford boundary line on the south to the ridge of the Galtees on the north. Through it run (east and west) two mountain ranges—the Galtee (Slieve Grot) and Knockmaeldown (Sieve Gua) chains. It is traversed in the same general direction by a couple of small rivers—the Dwag (Dubhaig) and the Tar (An tSeapairc) (q.), tributaries of the Suir. Shanrahan is a place of some historical importance as the possible original see of St. Cataldus, afterwards Bishop of Tarentum in Italy. The ruined church, dating from a period centuries subsequent to the time of Cataldus but occupying doubtless the site of the original foundation, consists of nave and chancel joined by a semi-circular arch. At the west end rises a tower of more modern date, and by the south side wall, on the outside, is the grave and monument of Rev. Nicholas Sheehy, P.P., who was hanged and quartered in Clonmel (1766) to the everlasting disgrace of the Cromwellian gentry of South Tipperary. Shanrahan is, or was till recently, an Irish-speaking parish; hence the names are many and interesting. There is a second ruined church (Ballysheehan) within the parish and the sites beside of some two or three primitive oratories.

TOWNLANDS.

- (e) Cnoicín Tuacóige. Meaning unknown. Perhaps C. Tuacóige—“The Rustic’s Little Hill.”

BURN COURT, Cúirt Óigte. Idem. The townland owes its name to the (late Tudor) castle of the Everards which was destroyed by fire within a few years of its erection, though the limestone walls still stand in an excellent state of preservation. Sir Richard Everard, the builder of the castle and last holder of the barony, played many parts—some of them important and some not too creditable—in the stirring times wherein his lot was cast. A patent, 15, Chas. I. recites the names of lands and manors passed to him that year. The document recites the names of over 160 plowlands of which only about twenty-eight are now capable of identification! Area, 301 acres.

"Cloghine als Everards Castle" (Pat. 15, Chas. I.).

S.D. MULLAC NA CILLE—"Summit of the Ancient Church." The site of this early religious establishment will be found due north—at distance of two fields—from the present church. In process of quarrying limestone for burning in a kiln close at hand greater portion of the church site proper has been cut away.

CARRIGANROE, CARRAGÁN RUAD—"Little Red Rock." Area, 337 acres.

"Corragan" (Everard Patent, 15, Chas. I.).

CARRIGMORE, CARRAIS MÓR—"Great Rock"; from a stony outcrop extending for a considerable distance near south east angle of Shanbally demesne. Area, 354 acres.

(b) SCARTINBARNY—"Shrubbery of the Gap"; a sub-division, formerly an independent townland—"Scartinbarny" in Everard Patent.

CLOGHEEN MARKET, CLOICÍN A MHAIGHAIRD—"Little Rock of the Market." The "Little Rock" upon which the name-giving market was held is in Pound Lane on the north bank of the Dwag. Old Fair dates were April 6th, Whit Monday, October 28th and December 12th. Area, 320 acres.

"Cloghinemonchunige als Everards Markt" (Everard Pat., ul supra).

S.D.D. (a) CLASHLEIGH (O.M.), CLAIR LIAT—"Grey Trench."

(b) Clashaphooka, CLAIR A PHÚCA—"The Pooka's Trench."

CRANNAGH, CRANNACH—"Tree Abounding." Area, 144 acres.

"Cranoghton als Cronaghane als Crenaghtewne" (Everard Patent).

S.D. Ábhainn Beag—"Little River"; the stream which flows along south boundary and enters the Tar at Garryroe.

CULLENAGH, Cuileanac—"Holly Abounding." One particular field is called Páirc a Cuillinn; this it may be which has given the townland its name. The townland is of immense extent and embraces a great area of mountain. Area (in two divisions), 3,073 acres.

S.DD. (a) Galtybeg (O.M.), Gairte Beag. Meaning unknown; compare "Gairte Well" on Raheen, Kilmeadan Par. This is on the extreme north boundary line of the Decies; height 2,586 feet. The name appears as "Galtiebegge" in the Everard Patent.

(b) O'Loughnan's Castle (O.M.), Caisleán Lochnan—"Lochnane's Castle." This is a steep rock, on the north boundary line, and is so called from an outlaw who, once on a time, frequented it.

(c) Greenane (O.M.), Srianan—"Sunny Place"; height, 2,624 feet.

(d) Cúil Dán—"White Corner."

(e) Lás Riabac—"Grey Hollow."

(f) Cnoc Riabac—"Grey Hill"; a sub-division.

(g) Páirc na mBán—"The Women's Field."

(h) Laeth Ruadh, Laeth Mór and Laeth Beag—Red, Great, and Little River-Fork respectively.

(l) Beđenna Dán—"White Gap."

(m) Maċċa Cloice—"Stony Milking Yard."

(n) Siuor na Camraige—"Border of the Rock."

(o) Cnoc Fiadu—"Deer Hill."

(p) Cnoc a Tuair—"Hill of the Cattle Field."

COOLANTALLAGH, Cúinn' a Tulca—"Corner of the Knoll."

I have heard cūnn' almost universally, but cút a few times. O'Donovan writes cút, and that such is the correct word appears from all documents. As, however, the two words differ but slightly in meaning they are used here one for the other without distinction.

Area, 306 acres.

"Cooletallagh" (Everard Patent).

S.DD. (a) Cúil—"Corner"; a sub-division.

(b) Móin na Rucáige—"Bog of the Wrinkling."

CURRAGHSLAGH, Cúrrach Salach—"Dirty Swamp." Area, 79 acres.

DOON, Dún—"Natural Earth Mound of Rounded Outline." Most of the townland is unreclaimed mountain. Till about 70 years since it was entirely unoccupied. The labour of reclamation was terrible, for the first settlers possessed no cattle, not even an ass. Highest point, 1,703 feet. Area, 2,165 acres.

S.DD. (a) Fear Óréigé—"Apparent Man"; a pillar-stone on mountain top.

(b) Gleannán a tSagairt—"The Priest's Little Glen."

(c) Gleannán a Reite—"Little Glen of the Ram."

(d) Gleann a Dúna—"Glen of the Dun."

(e) Fadhbair na Sfáinileós—"Trench of the Swallows."

(f) Fadhbair Ruad—"Red Water-Worn Trench."

(g) Gleannán Grána—"Ugly Little Glen."

FLEMINGSTOWN, Baile Phléimion. Idem. Area, 1,347 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Leacán—"The Little Monumental Pile"; a sub-division of which the chief feature is a bare hill summit.

(b) Móin Mionnán—Apparently "Bog of the Kid," but I am doubtful of this derivation; the word mionnán occurs too frequently in place-names to render foregoing etymology very credible. Probably mionnán in such cases = mbeannán.

(c) Gleannán a Reite—"Little Glen of the Ram."

(d) Cnocán a Cloiginn—"Little Hill of the Skull"; on boundary with Shanrahan.

(e) Doll Dároin—"Dawson's Hole."

GARRANDILLON, Sárrán Dillon—“Dillon’s Grove.” On this townland is Shanbally Castle, the residence of Lord Lismore, erected about 100 years since. Area, 477 acres.

“Garrandillo als Garranbeg” (Everard Patent, supra).

GLENCALLAGHAN, Gleann Uí Ceallaigh—“O’Callaghan’s Glen.” Area, 131 acres.

GLENGARRA, Gleann Garra—“Garra’s Glen.” O’Donovan (Ordnance Survey Correspondence, R.I.A.) identifies this Garra with the chief of the Morna, who is referred to by Keating (r) under date A.D. 254. Area, 1,029 acres.

S.D. Máca na Larópe—“Milking Place of the River Fork.”

HOPKINSREA, Cuileánach—“Holly Abounding.” Area, 460 acres.

INCHNAMUC, Inre na Muc—“Holm of the Pigs.” A noted medical practitioner of Carrick-on-Suir—Dr. Everard, popularly known as Taoctúin na bPiarsaithe—was born here. Area 274 acres.

KILAVENOGE, Cill a Úionóig. Meaning uncertain. O’Donovan suggests Winoc’s Church (s). The early church site is close to the only farm house on the townland. Area, 43 acres.

KILCARRON, Cill Carrún—“Carron’s Church.” Repeated and prolonged enquiries failed to find trace or tradition of church site. Perhaps the latter is represented by the Holy Well, below. Area, 1,634 acres.

“Kylcarrowny als Kielcarrownagh et un Molendin in Kielcarrowngh pradict.” (Everard Patent).

S.DD. (a) Tobair Uí Eacáigéin—“Ahearne’s Well.” This is reputed holy, and “rounds” are still made, as the votive offerings on the overhanging tree branches testify. Locally it is held that the water is specially efficacious for cure of sore eyes.

(b) Cnoc na gCapall—“Hill of the Horses.”

(r) O’Mahony’s Translation, p. 362.

(s) Marianus O’Gorman places the feast of St. Winnocus on November 6th. Winnocus, however, was a Breton. There is a Unniue on Aug. 29th, of whom the glossographer tells us he was bishop of Inis-Cathaig. Stokes—Martyr. Gorm. p. 402, states Unniue = corruption of Uninnoe or Vindoc and refers to Reeves—Eccl. Antiq. Down and Connor pp. 339, 379 &c.

(c) Knocknabrona, Cnoc na Úrón—“Hill of the Quern Stone.”

(d) Cárnaigán a Sílaorí—“Hill of the Calling”; a natural rounded hillock surmounted by an ancient whitethorn bush. The whole is regarded with awe as a haunt of the Munster fairies. This and the last appear as plowlands in the Everard Patent.

(e) An Táirítín—“The Little Place of Oaks.”

(f) Gleann na hÁróile. Meaning unknown. O'Donovan makes the last word “adze,” but its so frequent occurrence in place-names precludes, I should say, any such meaning.

(g) Leacán na Muc—“Glen Slope of the Pigs”; a subdivision.

(h) Lás an Eanaig—“Hollow of the Marsh.”

KILBEG, Coill Deag—“Little Wood.” Area, 230 acres.

S.D. Tóbar Lóro—“Lloyd's Well”; so called from a mid-eighteenth century Bishop of Waterford—Sylvester Lloyd, O.F.M., who blessed it.

KILLEATON, Cill Éitín—“Eitin's Church.” The site of the early church is traceable in a field adjoining (on south side) the Clogheen-Ballyporeen road. Area, 1,198 acres.

(g) Poll na gCaoráic—“(Washing) Hole of the Sheep.”

(h) Lás a Smutain Óigte—“Hollow of the Burned-Tree-Stump.”

(i) “The Griangs (Craicinn—‘Trees’).”

(j) Ráirc a Úaannlomáin. Somewhat uncertain. Compare Át a Ú., Newcastle Par., above.

(k) Ráirc na nDanes—“Field of the Danes,” i.e. containing a souterrain.

KNOCKARUM, Cnoc Áthaum. Meaning uncertain. O'Donovan conjectures Θάσθρομα, but this seems rather far-fetched. An intelligent old man stated he heard Áthaum, but against this is the early 17th century spelling of the Everard Patent—i.e. Knockaharim. Area, 125 acres.

MONALOUGHRA, Móin na Luádra—“Bog of the Rushes.” Area, 156 acres.

MOUNTANGESBY, Bóthar Óuirde—“Yellow Road”; from the glow of the blossoming furze. Area, 971 acres.

S.DD. (a) Gleannán na gCaoirnach—“Little Glen of the Sheep,” an old townland as appears from Everard Patent; now a sub-division.

(b) Cúrrlae—“Wettish Place”; a sub-division.

(c) Óilealac—“Roadway.”

(e) Óeal Óeas—“Little Mouth (Gap)”; otherwise called Gleann a Óeil—“Glen of the Mouth (Gap).”

(f) Cnoc Seana Cuillinn—“Old Holly-Wood Hill.”

(g) Gleann Liat—“Grey Glen.”

PARKADERREEN, Bálraic a Óuirín—“Field of the Little Oak Grove.” Area, 61 acres.

RAHEENROE, Ráitín Ruad—“Little Red Rath”; from a large mote-like rath still entire. Area, 185 acres.

S.DD. (a) An tSphæ—“The Mill Race”; a stream. Compare stream of same name, Kilcartan, Reiske Par.

(b) An Faitce—“The Hurling Green.”

REAROE, Réirí Ruad—“Red Mountain Plain.” This place is now known as—Ronga (Ronga—the rung of a ladder) the origin of which curious name I have been unable to discover. Area, 698 acres.

“Ri roe” (Everard Patent).

S.DD. (a) Lag na Raitníge—“Hollow of the Common Female Fern (Aspidium filix foemina).”

(b) “The Dryings,” aliter Bálraic a Óuirgin—“Field of the Blackthorn (thicket)”; a sub-division.

(c) Cúir na gCáiriníde—“The Cushions’ Portion.” Cushion is a family name distinct from Cashin.

(d) An Sceáca Faois—“The Long Layer”; a field.

(e) Gleann na Maoile Uaire—“Glen of the Green Hill.”

REHIL, Réidh-Conn—“Level Topped (or ‘Open’) Wood.” Portion of the ancient forest survived till quite recently. Keating the historian, hid for a time in the recesses of this wood, according to a local tradition. Part of the townland is in Tubrid Par. Area, 789 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Grave Yard (O.M.). This is a primitive church site. A field close at hand is called Carrasgin an Iubair—“Little Rock of the Yew Tree”; while the cill itself is Cill an Iubair.

(b) Rehill Wood (O.M.).

(c) Site of Rehill Castle (O.M.). “Roghill Castle,” held by some Ulster footmen, was captured, without resistance, by Cromwell in person, February 1st, 1646-50 (t).

(d) Glennyreea River (O.M.), Gleann Áitíneáid—“Crooked (Uneven) Glen.”

SCART, Scairt—“Thicket.” An ancient road, Bóthar na Miobán (see Tubrid Par. below), ran east and west through this townland; it entered the demesne at a place still marked by a pair of gate piers in the boundary wall and emerged on the west side, a few perches to north of Scartnabearna cross roads. Area (in two divisions), 367 acres.

S.D.D. (a) An Seana Séipéal—“The Old Chapel”; this is the site of a church of the Penal Times—the identical church which Father Sheehy served.

(b) Tobair na Cárca—“Easter Well”; a holy well still resorted to. The reputation for sanctity here does not appear to be of ancient date; it probably arose from propinquity of the well to the church aforesaid. The well is also sometimes called Tobair Muillaig Cáरca—“Well of the Mount of Suffering (Calvary).”

(t) Despatch of Cromwell to (Speaker) Lenthal, dated Castletown, same day.

(c) Þáirc na bPilibinidh—“Field of the Plover.”

SHANBALLY, Seana Ùaile—“Old Village.” On this townland are the graveyard and ruined church commonly called Ballysheehan. The church is of considerable size and the cemetery contains a few monuments and inscriptions of age and interest. It does not, however, appear—at least under any recognisable name—in Taxation or Visitation and, as a consequence, the question of its history and origin is, so far, unsolved. Area, 371 acres.

“Shanballypatrick,” “Shanballywillm” (Everard Patent).

SHANRAHAN, Sean Ùairín—“Old Rath”; another townland of immense extent. Area, 3,870 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Foildearg (O.M.), Faill Óearg—“Red Cliff”; a sub-division which probably corresponds with “Insinfillydoreigie” of the Everard Patent.

(b) Cúrrac Caoil—“Narrow Wet Place”; a sub-division.

(c) Cúil na nGàisiread—“The Earwigs’ Corner”; a sub-division.

(d) Gleann a Chlár—“Glen of the Board Bridge”; a sub-division; this was an independent townland (Everard Patent).

(e) Þear Óriéise—“Man-Simulating”; a pillar stone on summit of mountain.

(f) Cnoicín Óub—“Little Black Hill.”

(g) Þótarín Þapráin Coille—“Little Road of the Wood Grove.”

(h) Þótar a Úile—“Road of the Big Tree”; from an aged tree which stood at junction of Ballyporeen-Clogheen main road with north-and-south road through Shanahan.

(i) Knockshanahullion (O.M.), Cnoc Seana Cuillinn—“Old Holly Hill.” This appears in the Everard Patent as an independent townland.

(j) Knockclugga (O.M.).

TOOR, Tuaer (Mór & Beag)—“Cattle Field (Great and Small).” Area (in two divisions), 623 acres.

Templeteyny Parish.

LIKE Shanahan the present is a parish of great extent and embraces a large area of mountain. Like Shanahan too it lies between the Knockmaeldown and Galtee ranges, extending from the summit of the latter to the far base of the former. The townlands are, as a rule, very large and, as Irish is generally spoken, sub-denominations are numerous. The parish name (Teampall Túnne—"Church of the Marsh"), which is not shared with a townland, is evidently derived from the church's situation on an island of dry land in what must have been a bog previous to the present arterial drainage. The church remains are insignificant and the much used graveyard contains no tomb or inscription of special interest. Within the parish are the so called Mitchelstown Caves and the thriving but slovenly village of Ballyporeen.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYPOREEN, Deal Áca Róipín—"Ford Mouth of (the) Little Hole" (or "Of the Indigo"—for Róipín was the local name for the dye, used in quantity in a local tuck mill, long since demolished). (d) “ The Old Altar ”; the name applied to an ancient tree at a cross roads where it is said the altar of a former church stood.

of a mile further west, has been quite overlooked since the accidental discovery in 1833 of its now famous neighbour. The former derives its name from the capture here, in Elizabeth's time, of the Sugan Earl by the White Knight. It is also known locally as Uairí ná Caorac Sláiré—“Cave of the Grey-Green Sheep” (v).

- (g) Uairí ná gCat—“The (Wild) Cats' Cave.”

We find this second form in documents like the Leabhar Óreas, Leabhar ná gCeart, Saints’ “Lives” &c. The north-west angle of the townland forms the extreme limit of Decies in this direction; the point in question is about 30 perches to south-east of Lake Diheen, on the eastern slope of Galtee More.

(f) Gleann Liath, aliter Darrig an Gleanna—“ Grey Glen,” otherwise “ Glen Summit.”

KILNAMONA, Cill na Móna—“ Church of the Bog.” There is neither trace nor tradition of church site. It is probable that the name-giving church was the original foundation on the site of the present Templetenny ruin. In this supposition Kilnamona formerly included portion at least of the neighbouring Knocknagapple townland. Area, 1,146 acres.

KILTANKIN, Cill Tancín—“ Tancin’s Church.” The site of the early church is on the holding of Phil Neill; here, during tillage operations, the present occupier’s father found a “ wedge ” (celt) of bronze, which he disposed of to a marine store dealer in Mitchelstown. Area, 1,188 acres.

The townland was formerly in three divisions, scil:—

SKEHEENARINKY, Sceitín a Rinne—“ The Dancing Bush.” The euponymous bush was not a mere spectator of the dancing, but the actual dancer, borne for years upon a diminutive floating island in Skeheenarinky pool, which, when the surface of the pond was agitated, skipped along in quite a merry fashion. Area, 3,024 acres.

S.DD. (a) Óraec-Óán — “ Speckled Field.” This sub-denomination has quite a history: it is the name of a somewhat loosely-defined sub-division of the townland, and of the small stream which having drained the sub-division falls into the Funshion. Spenser has sung of it under the name of Fanus, and in it he places the bath of Diana:—

“ For first she springs out of two marble rocks
 “ On which a grove of oak high mounted grows,
 “ That as a garland seemed to deck the locks
 “ Of some fayre bride brought forth with pompous shows
 “ Out of her bower that many flowers strew.
 “ So through the flowery dales she tumbling dounie,
 “ Through many woods and shady coverts flows,
 “ That on each side her silver channel crown,
 “ Diana used oft
 “ After her sweatie chase and toilsome play
 “ To bathe herself.”

(b) Δt Tige Črainn—“ Tree-House Ford ”; a sub-division.

(e) Tobair a Činn—“ Well of the Head.”

(f) Úótar Úab—“ Black Road.”

(g) Páirc na Cille—“ Field of the Early Church ”; the site is indicated by a quadrangular mounded, or rather untilled, space, called Cill m̄ic Čairin (or m̄ic Oírin), on the holding of a farmer named Quinlan.

(l) Látharaca—“ River Forks ”; separating the townland from the neighbouring Coolagarranroe.

Tubrid Parish.

THE origin of this parish goes back to the fifth century if we are to believe the "Life" of St. Declan. The Apostle of the Decies baptised the infant Ciaran at the well from which the future church and parish derived its name—Τιοβράτο Κιάραν. The church ruin at Tubrid possesses a peculiar interest; it is one of the very few examples surviving of a 17th century church of the people. It is a small plain rectangular building with a tablet over its only doorway requesting prayers for Father Eugene Duffy and Doctor Geoffrey Keating who caused the chapel to be built. As the burial place of the historian himself as well as of one of the most remarkable Bishops of the Penal times—Archbishop Brennan of Cashel—the little chapel has further claims on our attention. Father Eugene Duffy, above mentioned was a Franciscan and the author of a biting Irish satire (metrical, of course) on Myler McGrath, Archbishop of Cashel. A literal translation of the satire from the pen of John O'Daly was published by John Davis White at Cashel in 1864. The parish is extensive and contains an unusually large number of townlands; sub-denominations are not however proportionately numerous. Within the parish are two further unimportant ruined churches and the sites of at least four other early Christian foundations.

S.DD. (a) Údtairín Óinn-Óathair. The meaning is somewhat doubtful; it may be—“Little Road of the Goats’ Agistment.” More like however, it is—in allusion to its shape—“Little Road of the Goat’s Horn.” Óinn, as a noun, signifies the number of cattle land can maintain. The present lane, which is over a mile in length, is, or rather was, also called Údtairín a Óacair—“The Beggar’s Little Road.”

(b) Áct Solair—“Ford of Brightness.”

(c) Tonnós River; perhaps from tunnós—“a duck” (Dineen), or tunn, a marsh.

BALLYVERASSA, Baile Óriarsa—“Bryce’s Homestead.” Area, 127 acres.

BOHERNARNANE, Údtar an Áirneán—“Road of the Night Work (Spinning, Knitting &c.).” The name is of comparatively recent origin; the district was thickly inhabited by cottiers remarkable for their habits of industry; they laboured in the fields during the day, and “as tseanamh airneán” at home during the evening and night. Area, 1,355 acres.

S.DD. (a) Móin Cuileád—“Gadfly-Abounding Bog.”

(b) Cnoicín Órlait—“Beautiful Little Hill.”

CARRIGATAHA, Carrraig a tSáite—“Rock of the Swarm of Bees.” Area, 291 acres.

CLOGHEENAFISHOGE, Cloicín na Fuirteóige—“Little Rock of the Lark”; fuirteóig is of course a Sky Lark, but it may be and probably is here a lady's name, scil:—Fuirteóis Ni Longáin who built, owned or occupied the castle and whose memory still survives locally. Of course it is possible that the popular history of Fuirteóis Ni L. has been manufactured in later times to suit the place-name. The cloicín, by the way, is a jutting platform of rock upon which the castle stood. Area, 2,077 acres.

S.DD. (a) Clair an Áirgeá—“Trench of the Silver.”

(b) Móin a Lin—“Flax Bog”; from large pond here in which flax was steeped.

(c) Móin a tSpaoille—“Bog of the Clown.”

(d) An Láthairín—“The Little River Fork.”

(e) Fáil Óearg—“Red Cliff”; exact position of this feature—whether on the present, or on neighbouring townland—was not ascertained with certainty.

(w) See O'Hanlon “Life of St. Mochoemoc”—p. 354, and same Life in Bollandists.

CRANNA, Crannac—“Tree-Abounding.” Area, 310 acres.

KILCORAN, Cill Cuarán—“Cuaran’s Church.” The church site is in a field adjoining the road (north-and-south) on its western side. Close to the church site is a holy well, now dried up. The patron is presumably Cuaran the Wise given in the Martyrology of Donegal under February 9th, thus—“Cuarán an Eacna i nDélribh Murhan,” &c. Area, 953 acres.

S.DD. (a) Móin na Meannán—“Bog of the Jacksnipe (?)” Compare Meannán, Faithlegg, &c.

Tullaghortan Parish.

THE designation TULAC ORTAIN (“Ortan's Height”) is of course unecclesiastical in origin, and it is all but unknown locally. The popular name is Cáirleán a GRÁISE (“Grace's Castle”), from a William le Grace, grandson of Raymond le Gros, who, most probably, erected the original castle. Tulloghортan is a rather diminutive, Irish-speaking parish on the Co. Waterford boundary, containing in all only a dozen townlands, the majority of which are of comparatively small extent. Sub-denominations are moderately numerous, but neither they nor the townland names furnish much of special interest. The ivy-clad church ruin is in a fair state of preservation. It shows the sacred edifice to have been in plan a small, plain rectangle, lighted by a pointed east window. There are no tombs or inscriptions of interest. The patronal feast is kept on August 29th (Beheading of St. John the Baptist).

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINHALLA, BAITE A CALARD—“The Ferry Homestead.” A boat was formerly kept on the then unbridged Tar river. Area, 237 acres.

S.DD. (a) Parson’s Green (O.M.), Seata Tucardé—“Tuckey’s Gate.”

S.DD. (a) Baylough (O.M.), Béal Locha—“Mouth (Gap) of the Lake.” The lake, a mountain tarn of great depth, is overhung on the west and south by high rocky cliffs. In its gloomy depths is confined the half-mythic, half real "Petticoat Loose" whose dark deeds every Co. Waterford peasant has heard of and can recount. Some authorities however inform me that not in Baylough, but in the Red Sea, is the prison wherein she awaits the Last Day.

- (b) Doctairín Caoc—"Blind (cul-de-sac) Road."
- (c) Doctairín Siar—"Green (Grass Overgrown) Road."
- (d) Cáros—"The Little Twisted Place"; name of a field.

CASTLEGRACE, Cairleán a Ghraige—"Grace's Castle." The castle, only a comparatively small portion of which survives, was of great size and strength, constructed like the Norman keeps of the time (13th century) for defence rather than domestic convenience or comfort. Nevertheless it continued to be occupied till the beginning of the last century. It passed by marriage from the Graces to the Powers; Lord Arnold le Poer, of witchcraft fame, held it and, on the attainder of his son, it came into the possession of the De Berminghams from whom finally it devolved to the Butlers, Barons of Cahir. It was like Cahir garrisoned in 1647 by Inchiquin (y). An account of this interesting castle—with illustrations, ground plan &c., will be found in that rare and valuable book "Anthologia Tipperariensis" printed at Cashel by John Davis White.

COOLBAUN, Cúil Dán—"White Corner." Area, 79 acres.

"Culemonehuny als Culebantrie" (Everard Patent ut supra).

S.DD. (a) Tobair a Dúinín—"Well of the Hillock."

(y) Egmont Papers (Hist. MSS. Commission), Vol. II. p. 481.

(b) Folact Piad—“Prehistoric Cooking Place.” There are two of these on the townland, both of them very large and composed of small burned stones. One has a special name—Carragán a Riarcáis—“Hillock of the Moory Place.” On the mountain portion of the townland occur the following:—

- (c) Feor Óréigé—“Apparent (Simulating) Man.”
- (d) Gualan—“Shoulder”; a sub-division.
- (e) Eirg—“Quagmire”; a sub-division.
- (f) Carr a Leac—“Pile of the Grave Monument”; a sub-division.

(g) Poll Santeac—“Willow Hole”; a sub-division.
 (h) Gleann Maoilinn—“Glen of (the) Hill Top.”
 (i) Com na Faistee—“Hollow of the Hurling Green.”
 (j) Cloc Finn—“Fionn’s Handstone”; a boulder (in a glen) believed to have been flung from the Galtees by the redoubtable leader of the Fiann himself.

- (k) Carr na Tíallaite—“Stone Pile of the Saddle.”
- (l) Óéal Deag—“Little Mouth (Gap).”
- (m) Gleann an Ámaodáin—“Glen of the Fool.”
- (n) Ráirc na Saigóidí—“The Soldiers’ Field.”

KILBALLYBOY, Cill Baile Uí Óuirde—“Church of O’Boy’s Homestead (or Town).” The church site (unmarked on O.M.) is close by the river bank Area, 1,419 acres.

- S.D.D. (a) Gleann na Ceoíann—“Boundary Glen.”
 (b) Scraibte; a sub-division. See under St. Mary’s Parish, Glenahier Barony.

Tullaghmelan Parish.

THE Parish, which is about average size, lies on the north bank of the Suir—along the Co. Waterford boundary line. Its name—Tulairg Maolan (“Maylon’s Height”)—does not appear ecclesiastical, yet it is the tradition of the locality that Maolan was the founder of the church. In fact, an effigy of stone still preserved in the precincts of the ruin is said to be his. Curiously enough the parish does not appear under this name in the Elizabethan Visitations. These latter mention twice a parish called Tallaghehy, which would correspond approximately with Tullaghmelan, but which church or parish the regal visitators say they were unable to find—"ignota est nobis." The townland names are of less than average interest, while sub-denominations I have hardly been able to find at all.

TOWNLANDS.

S.DD. (a) Deer Park (O.M.) and Glebe (O.M.).

(b) Tobair a Rún—"Well of the Desire (or Vow)."

BALLYNAMADDAGH, Baile na mBócaí—"Homestead of the Churls." Area, 135 acres.

KNOCKEEN, Cnoicín—"Little Hill." Area, 152 acres.

KNOCKLOFTY, Cnoc Locta—"Lofted (Shelving) Hill." Locta is apparently a loan word from English. Area, 399 acres.

(b) Ústáır a Ghláid—“Road of the Tumult.”

GARRANCASEY, Cúil Ruád—“Red Nook,” also Sárrán Uí Catearais—“O’Casey’s Grove.” To Irish speakers the first is the better known name: the other in fact is scarcely known at all, and appears to be merely a sub-denomination. Area, 118 acres.

S.D. Ráipe na Ceáiricán—“The Forge Field.”

GREENMOUNT. No Irish name. Area, 268 acres.

(e) Ústáırín na nAbhlóide (an Ubhall Súirte)—“Little Road of the Orchard.”

(f) “The Laundry”; a field.

Whitechurch Parish.

WHITECHURCH is quite a common parish name throughout Ireland. The Irish form is Tearmann Gear—sometimes also Anglicised—Whitechapel. There is a second Whitechurch parish in this same diocese of Lismore (see under Barony of Decies-Without-Drum). Perhaps the sobriquet has reference to a figurative whiteness, scil:—fame. More likely however the quality was physically perceptible—the effect of whitewash possibly, or, as I am more inclined to think—the result of decoration with glistening quartz pebbles or crystals. The present parish is small and Irish is generally understood, if not spoken. On the townland from which the parish derives its name stands the ruined church, a plain rectangular building which presents no architectural feature of special interest.

TOWNLANDS.

GARRYROAN, Gárraerde an Ruadáin—“Garden of the Moor.” On this townland are no fewer than seven lioses, five of which are circular and one each, oval and angular. Area, 448 acres.

LOUGHACUTTEEN, Loc a Coitín—“The Commonage Pond.” Area, 147 acres.

S.D. “Kildermody.” This is sometimes used as an alias for the townland name. It is given more particularly however to the chief farm in the division and appears to be a mere modern name, applied for some reason which is not very evident, by a former tenant; at any rate I could find no Irish form.

PEAHILL, Cnocán na Píre. Idem. Part of the townland—the name unanglicised—is in the adjoining Par. of Tubrid, which see. Area, 73 acres.

POULACULLEARE, Póll a Chúileara—“Quarry Hole.” Area, 395 acres.

S.D. Brookfield Old Factory (O.M.), used as an auxiliary poorhouse in 1847 &c.

SCARTANA, Scáirt Anna—“Anne’s Thicket.” Area, 337 acres.

SCARTNAGLORANE, Scairt na gCleáin—“Thicket of the Pignuts (Bunium Flexuosum)”; or perhaps—“of the Small Potatoes,” for these latter are sometimes locally and contemptuously called cleáin. Area, 1,700 acres.

(b) Tobair a tSáoranaidh—“The Englishman’s Well.”

TINCURRY, Tig an Chúrraist—“House of the Marsh.” Area, 401 acres.

WHITECHURCH, Teamhrach Gear. Idem. The shape of the townland is somewhat peculiar—long and narrow. Area, 296 acres.

BARONY OF MIDDLETHIRD

(CO. TIPPERARY).

OR origin of the Barony name, see Middlethird, Co. Waterford. The following parishes of the present barony belong to the Diocese of Lismore, and—in the theory that present Diocese and ancient territory are co-extensive—to the former territory of Decies:—Baptist Grange (part of), Donoghmore (part of), Outeragh and Mora. In the case of the first three each parish forms a peninsula, while Mora is portion of a perfect island, within the adjoining Diocese of Cashel.

Baptist Grange Parish.

INVESTIGATION locally failed to bring to light the original Irish name. The later Irish form was Seánraeac Eóin Óairte—“John the Baptist’s Grange.” The parish did not share its designation with a townland. Neither does the name appear—at any rate, under this or any recognisable form—in the Visitation Books, though as early as the 13th century it is—“De Grangia” (a). Dependence of the church and parish upon a religious house is however suggested by the second term of the official title, as above. The church ruin is unusually interesting; it shows that the church was of comparatively large size and of rather ambitious design architecturally. An extraordinary feature is the triple chancel arch and the diminutive character of each of the latter’s three members.

(a) Taxation of Pope Nicholas.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYGAMBON, Baile Ghambúna—“Gambon’s Homestead.” Compare Gambonsfield, Kilsheelan Par. On the townland are remains of no fewer than four circular lioses. Area, 451 acres.

“Killedmond, Corbally and Ballygambon” (D.S.M.).

S.D. “Killedmond”; an early church site.

CARRIGEENSHARRAGH, Carrigín Seárraig—“The Foal’s Little Rock.” The present townland constitutes, with Tooren and Miltown Britton, a detached portion of the parish. Though but a comparatively small townland it contains, beside the castle and church site below enumerated, three lioses. Area, 291 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Site of Carrigeen Castle (O.M.).

(b) Site of Graveyard (O.M.); an early church site.

(c) Moyle Stream (O.M.), Maoatal—“Soft Spongey Land.”

(d) Tobernagloghderg, Tobair na gCloc n'Dearg—“The Red-Rocks Well.”

CLONACODY, Cloc na Córóe—“Stone of the Brushwood.” Compare same name, Ardfinnan Par. Area, 266 acres.

“Cloghnocody” (D.S.).

DRUMDEEL, Drom Óil—“Dil’s Ridge.” Dil (a blind Druid) is a rather remarkable personage in Irish legend. Under the mistaken notion that the qualifying word here is óil (“payment”), the name has been locally Anglicised “Market Hill.” In fact the name Drumdeel is now practically unknown locally. A very strange thing appears to have happened here, i.e. loss to the modern diocese of part of this townland. How, when or by what authority the schism was effected it is difficult now to determine, though, of course, local legends in explanation are not wanting. Area, 292 acres.

MILTON BRITTON, Baile an Muillinn—“The Mill Homestead”; the qualifying term (name of a one-time owner) was added to distinguish it from another Miltown in Mora Parish. Area, 736 acres.

(b) "The Mote"; a field by Moyle Stream, in which is a now nearly levelled earthwork.

(c) "Graveyard" (O.M.); an early church site, with its circular fence still standing. This is known locally as Templeea (Teampall Aoi—“Hugh’s Church”), and is so marked on O.M.

(d) Gníomh; a well-known sub-division. A gníomh was an ancient division of land.

NEWTOWN, Baile Nua. Idem. Area, 107 acres.

SLADAGH, Sladach—“Glen”; the word is now obsolete in this sense. Area, 171 acres.

“Sladaghbeg” (D.S.R.).

S.D. An Stógaíre—“The Swallow Hole”; entrance to a subterranean cavity into which surface water disappears.

TOOREEN, Tuairín—“Little Cattle Field.” Area, 112 acres.

Donaghmore Parish.

FOR explanation of Parish name see under Barony of Iffa and Offa East. The name appears as “Dofnamore” in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas.

TOWNLANDS.

KILLERK, Cill Eirc—“Erc’s Church.” Erc, the best known bearer of the name, was a disciple of St. Patrick, by whom he was made bishop and placed over the Church of Slane. The present Erc is, however, more probably Erc of Domnach Mór, whose name occurs on the 27th October in the Calendar of Oengus (b). With much difficulty position of the early church was located, close to the castle site (south side) on Michael Slattery’s farm. Area (in two divisions), 473 acres.

S.DD. (a) Castle (O.M.); traces practically obliterated.

(b) Rathroad (O.M.); name of a rath, of which I failed to find the Irish form.

(c) An Stógaíre—“The Swallow Hole”; see under Sladagh antea.

(b) “Ercc Domnaig moir. i. immuig luadat hituascert hua faelan”—Erc of Domnach Mór, i.e. in Mag-Laudat in the north of Uí Faelan.

- (d) Cnoc Dubh—“ Black Hill ”; name of a field.
 - (e) An Crlaoðán—“ Place of Branches ”; a field name.
 - (f) Seana Croft—“ Old Croft ”; another field.
 - (g) Gort a Tríorcláis (?)—“ Garden of the Brewers’ Grains ”; a field.
 - (h) The “ Mugga,” mBogairge (loc. case)—“ The Soft, Boggy Place ”; applied to a well in the present instance.
- JOSSESTOWN. I failed to find the Irish name. Area, 671 acres.
 “ Josinstowne ” (D.S.R.). “ Johnstowne ” (D.S.M.).

Mora Parish.

THIS Parish is completely disjoined from the body of the Diocese, and, as has been already stated, forms, with a few small townlands of Inishlounaght, an island within the Diocese of Cashel. The origin or significance of the name is not quite plain; the Irish form has not been preserved in the locality where, by the way, Irish is entirely unknown. According to Joyce(c) Mora would = Margne, the cumulative for mag, plain; at any rate, the name was written six centuries since exactly as it is to-day. The parish is of somewhat greater than average extent, but owing to the generally large size of the holdings, population is rather sparse. Remains of the ancient church with its square tower stand in low land on the townland of Moorstown (Ballinamona), whence the parish is sometimes called Moortownkirke. The kirke here is not, it is to be noted, the Scotch word for church, but the Irish ceanc, a heath hen. The poultry flavour of many of the townland and other names of the parish cannot fail to strike the reader, e.g. Acrenakirka, Leacanadrake, Claishnalachan &c.

TOWNLANDS.

- ACRENAKIRKA, Acpa na Cipce—“ The Hen’s Acre.” Area, 51 acres.
 “ Acaranykirky ” (D.S.).

(c) “ Irish Names of Places,” 2nd Series, p. II.

BALLYNATTIN, Baile an Aitinn—“Homestead of the Furze.” “Jeffrey Mockeler of Ballynatten” was imprisoned (1612) and fined £40 for refusing to present recusants (d). Area (in two divisions), 545 acres.

“Ballymattin” (D.S.).

S.D. Cill; early church site, now occupied by a farm-house. For this church I got locally the name Kilfern.

CASTLEBLAKE, Uairín na Sceíche—“Cave of the Whitethorn Bush.” From the existence here during the later period of the penal times and up to, perhaps, seventy years since, of a thatched chapel this whole district came to be popularly known as the “Parish of Castle Blake.” A chalice bearing the latter inscription is in fact still in use in Lisronagh Church. Area, 533 acres.

“Oneskeagh” (D.S.R.).

S.D. Pott Lin—“Flax Hole”; a pit in a field.

GARRAUN, Garraún—“Grove.” The by-road which now starts from the south-east angle of the townland and runs thence via Rathcookera is portion of the ancient road from New Inn and the west to Fethard, through Red City. It cannot now be traced across Ballinamona bog, but it reappears at the west side of the latter, and continues thence in the direction of the Graigue road. Area, 343 acres.

“Garranedrahy” and “Garranewisty” (D.S.).

S.D. Rathacookera (O.M.), Rath a Cúcaire—“The Cook’s Rath.” Cooke may possibly be a personal name in the present instance.

GRAIGUE, Gráig—“Village.” Area, 577 acres.

“Graige alias Grangenambrenagh” (D.S.).

S.D.D. (a) Longhanaspick (O.M.), Loc an Earpois—“The Bishop’s Pond.”

(b) “The Shambles”; name applied to a large field—because, my informed assured me, the Danes slaughtered cattle &c. therein.

MAGINSTOWN, Baile Maigín—“Magin’s Homestead.” On the townland are remains of a castle, presumably the residence of the former lord of the soil who gave it its present name. There is also—thirty perches or so to south of the last—a church ruin in a rather poor state of preservation. Area, 475 acres.

(d) Egmont MSS. (Hist. MSS. Comm.), Vol. I., p. 41.

"Magonstowne" (D.S.).

MILTOWN, Baile an Muillinn—“Homestead of the Mill.” Area (in two divisions), 455 acres.

S.D. Cnoc an Áir—“Hill of the Plague”; a sub-division.

MOORSTOWN, Baile na Móna—“Homestead of the Bog (Moor).” “Moor” in the name must not be mistaken for a proper noun. Compare, Moorstown, Kilgrant and St. Mary’s Parishes. Area, 632 acres.

“Mooretownekirke” (D.S.).

S.D.D. (a) Leaca na Dráke—“The Drakes’ Glen Slope.”

(b) “Drake’s Acre.”

(c) Cláir na Lácan—“The Ducks’ Trench.” This, and the two foregoing, are now field names, known only to the occupier and his employees, and it is a striking proof of the tenacity of tradition that the three (two of them at least) were small townland names in the mid-seventeenth century (e). The modern fields are actually in these cases townlands of three hundred years ago!

(d) Ráistín Glár—“Little Green Rath.”

(e) Tóbar na Óifíannacá—“The Frenchmen’s (or the ‘Rats’) Well.”

(f) Móinfein Sceardáinn—“Strong’s (?) Meadow.”

(g) St. Nicholas’ Well (O.M.); stations were made here on Good Friday. The well is close to the church ruin.

STILLIMITTY, An Sciath—“The Stripe,” i.e. long, narrow piece of land. The townland exceeds half a mile in length and for more than half that distance its width does not exceed one-twentieth of a mile. Area, 37 acres.

“Pt. of Mooretownekirk called Stealamitty” (D.S.).

(e) Down Survey Map, Irish Record Office, Dublin.

Outeragh Parish.

THIS embraces only three townlands and is, therefore, the smallest parish in Northern Decies. Its church ruin, so covered with ivy that examination of its architectural features is impossible, stands in a small, well fenced graveyard beside the Cahir-Cashel road.

TOWNLANDS.

CHAMBERLAINSTOWN, Baile an tSeanchairnóra. Idem. Area, 294 acres.

“Chamberlinstowne” (D.S.).

OUTERAGH, Uaictar Acaidh—“Upper Field.” The word acaidh, so frequent in place names in other parts of Ireland, occurs within the Decies only this once in a townland designation. On the townland are the site and some remains (detached pieces of masonry evidently submitted to the action of gunpowder) of a strong castle, also ruins of the ancient church of the parish and traces or remains of no fewer than eight or nine lioses. Area, 1,033 acres.

“Oughteragh” (D.S.).

S.DD (a) “Camp Ground”; a sub-division, comprising three farms and locally regarded as almost an independent townland.

(b) “The Bleach.”

(c) Deárrna Tearna—“Red Gap”; a cross-roads and sub-division, adjoining Chamberlainstown, on the east side of the townland.

WHITELAND, Feárlann Faoitig—“White’s Land”; the official Anglicised form is therefore incorrect and conveys a false meaning. Area, 220 acres.

“Farrenwitagh” (D.S.R.).

BARONY OF MIDDLETHIRD

(CO. WATERFORD).

THE "Third" was an old Irish land division of variable extent. Existence of a Middlethird pre-supposes corresponding upper and lower divisions. We have the "Upper-third" in the barony of that name and the "Lower-third" was doubtless, Gaultier, the Cantred of the Danes. Middlethird being a maritime and (till recently at any rate) Irish-speaking barony is fairly rich in sub-denominations. We find the name written Treana Meathanac in Keating's poems. Our barony contains in all eleven parishes with greater part of a twelfth.

Drumcannon Parish.

THE name is scarcely ecclesiastical. Of course, it may be that Conan was the original founder of the church, as he or a namesake was founder of two other ancient churches in the county. Locally however he is believed to have been anything but an early Irish saint—the pagan warrior, companion of Fionn MacCumhail, noted for his boasting and his bald head. For a description &c. of the ruined church see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., p. 134.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYKNOCK, Baile an Cnuic—"Homestead of the Hill."
Area, 322 acres.

S.D. Tobair Maolruine (Maol-mhuire)—"Myler's (or Miles') Well."

BALLYCARNANE, Baile an Cárnaí—“ Homestead of (by) the Heap.” Area, 225 acres.

“ Ballycarnan ” (A.S.E.).

BALLYDRISLANE, Baile Uí Ó'Drisláin—“ O'Drislane's Home-stead.” O'Donovan writes it Baile Ó'Drisleán. Area, 270 acres.

S.D. Tobbersaggart (O.M.), Tóbar Sagairt—“ Priest's Well.”

BALLYKINSELLA, Baile Uí Cinnsealaig—“ O'Kinsella's Home-stead.” Area, 408 acres.

S.D. Tobernameel (O.M.), Tóbar na Miol—apparently “ Well of the Lice.”

BALLYNATTIN, Baile an Aitinn—“ Furze Abounding (or Sur-rounded) Homestead.” Area, 297 acres.

CARRIGLONG, Carrraig Longa—“ Long's Rock.” Longa was a giant, according to local belief. Remains of his house (a small earthfast cromlech with stone circle, not marked on the Ordnance Map) survive. Area, 266 acres.

(b) Tóbar a Cáraill Cáoic—“ Road of the Blind Horse ”; an ancient highway which ran from Gaultier indefinitely westwards; it has various names according to its various sections.

CASTLETOWN, Baile an Cairsteáin. Idem. Area, 585 acres.

S.D. Seana Coill—“ Old Wood ”; name of a field.

COOLNAGOPPOGE, Cúl na gCopógs—“ Ridge-back of the Docks.” Area, 434 acres.

“ Coolenegopoge ” (A.S.E.).

S.D. Toberclovagh (O.M.), Tóbar Clúimhac—“ Mossy Well.”

CROBALLY, Cruaibh Baile—“ Hard (Stiff-soiled) Townland.” Area (in two divisions), 520 acres.

“ Garrancrobally ” (D.S.R.).

DRUMCANNON, Órlom Conáin—“ Conan's Ridge.” Conan was a giant according to local story; between him and a brother giant, Longa of Carriglong, there subsisted a feud or rivalry. At any rate they indulged occasionally in interchange of compliments expressed by the flinging at one another, across the valley which separated their respective ridges, of great sandstone boulders. Sure enough some of the identical stones, weighing many hundreds each, are still to be seen in the valley below and on the hillside of Carriglong to witness that popular tradition does not lie! Area, 293 acres.

"Drumcronan" (Tax. Pope Nich.).

S.D. (a) An Leact—"The Monumental Cairn." The word is used to designate the pile of stones occasionally erected by the roadside &c. to commemorate a murder or fatal accident which occurred on the spot. Formerly the passer-by added a stone to the pile but the custom has fallen into disuse; not many such monuments now survive. In the present instance the name designates the grass covered vacant patch at junction of the lane to Drumcannon graveyard with Old Tramore—Waterford road. The cairn itself has been "improved" off the face of the earth.

(b) Dán an Ultais—"Field of the Wise ('Knowledgeable') Man." Ultais is literally an Ulsterman, but the word in Waterford has come to signify one learned in fairy or occult lore. Expatriated Ulstermen, who settled at various places in the south during the 18th century, formed little colonies and practised such arts as tinworking &c., to which, it is to be presumed, from the latter day meaning of the word Ultais, they often added fortunetelling, making of charms &c. See under Caher, Islandkane Par., below, also under Ballinaspog, Lismore Par.; Kildanoge, Ballybacon Par. &c.

(c) Cloch Conáin—"The Practice-Stone of Conan"; a boulder lying on the inside of a fence by the road and marked on the Ordnance Map.

(d) Bóthar na Leact—"Road of the Leacht."

(e) Páirc a Pháistíon—"Pattern Field"; here was held the annual festive gathering on the occasion of the patronal feast (September 14th, Exaltation of the Holy Cross).

(f) An Meathraic (mbraicraig)—"The Fallow"; the name of a field.

DUAGH, Óuad, most probably Óub-Át—"Black Ford." An ancient roadway, now obliterated, entered the townland at south-east angle across a shoulder of black bog. Area, 404 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Þoirt—"Embankment"; a curious square mound, evidently site of an encampment; it is close to the north boundary of the townland. This place, O'Donovan asserts, was used "as a battery" in 1798. The mound is, however, much older. Cannon balls &c. have been found on the site, and tradition has it that a barracks stood here in the time of Elizabeth.

(b) Úaile and Tobair na Croíre—"Homestead" and "Well" (respectively) "of the Cross-Roads."

GARRARUS, Garb-Rur—"Rough Shrubbery." Area, 324 acres.

"Garracusse" (A.S.E.).

S.D.D. I. Coastwise, E. to W.:—

(a) Carrasig Úarrasig—"Barry's Rock"; on east side of Garrarus Strand. See place of same name, under Dromina, Crooke Par.

(b) Dóirir Óub—"Black Door"; a frowning cliff.

(c) Oileán Coite—"Island of the Skiff"; a headland with a very narrow neck, across which a double entrenchment of earth is thrown. The earthen embankments are about 30 yards in length by 6 feet high and 12 feet broad. A space of 8 yards separates the walls, which enclose, roughly, an area of an acre. O'Donovan states that the foundation of a stone and mortar fort was visible here at the date of the survey. Unfortunately the enclosing fence is at present in a very ruinous condition.

(d) Cuan na mBán n-Uáirt—"The Ladies' Cove."

(e) Rinn Caol—"Narrow Headland."

(f) Cuaínín a Mháin.—"Little Haven of the Putrid Water."

II. Inland:—

(g) Carrasig Uateir—"Walter's Rock."

(h) Fáil a Stílpa—"Cliff of the Stile."

(i) "Hurley's Field"; on which stood the mansion &c. of a Captain Hurley, whose name lives only in this field name.

(j) Tobair na Dánóige—"Well of the Little Green Field."

(k) Dótar Óeanriogain Anna—"Queen Anne's Road"; no longer in use.

KILLUNE, Cill Eogáin—"Owen's Church." The name Eogáin was equated with John, in later times. The site of the cill or cillín is close to, and slightly to the north-east of, the moat near Mr. Power's farm-house. Area, 353 acres.

" Killowen " (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. páirc an lápla — " The Earl's Field "; origin of the name is not remembered. This field is so fertile that the Stíl Gháidneac did not think it beneath her to patronise it for a couple of nights. The Stíl Gháidneac was a legendary cow which pastured on only the richest spots in Munster. She yielded as much milk as filled whatever vessel was used by the milker, till an evil-minded woman from the neighbourhood of Ballylaneen attempted to milk her dry by using a sieve, whereupon the animal in disgust walked away out to sea, and has never since been seen by mortal eyes.

S.D. Ան Տպանցին—“The High Projecting Cliff”; this is the stretch of strand extending from the men's bathing place to the Lady's Cove.

TRAMORE BURROW, Ան Վայծ—“The Sandhill.” Վայծ is a variant of Վահած; we have its genitive in Հորտ նա Վայծ; name of a townland in Ringagoonach Par.; “Reel նա Վայծ” is the tune played by the phantom band of the “Seahorse,” still occasionally heard on the Burrow. The “Seahorse” transport was wrecked in the Bay, with enormous loss of life (363 persons), on January 30th, 1816. The “Burrow” bears traces of occupation by a prehistoric race (probably paleolithic). Kitchen middens are sometimes exposed after storms, and cores and flakes, as well as fragments of red-deer antlers &c., are found from time to time. Area, 217 acres.

S.DD. (a) The Cush (O.M.), Ան Կոր—“The Place Lying-adjacent-to (the Sandhill).” Կոր is the locative of շոր, a foot, and is applied in toponomy to a level tract at base of a slope.

(f) Traig Ronán—"Ronayne's Strand."

(i) "Waterspout."

(j) Traig na hEasdale—"Strand of the Treasure Trove (from Wrecks)."

(k) Þort—"Embankment"; an entrenched headland with an earthen fence 50 yards long and about 10 feet high thrown across its neck. On the land side of the embankment is a trench some 15 feet wide. The face of the rampart has been almost entirely cut away at one side (a).

(l) Poll na Cínce—"Deep Place of the Hen"; a small bay practically inaccessible from the land side. It is possible that the "Hen" was a ship or fishing boat which met her doom here.

(m) Poll a Rón—"Hole of the Seal."

(n) Poll a Raca—"Hole of the Wreck"; a ship was lost here some 35 or 40 years since.

(o) Ilaunglas (O.M.), Oileán Glar—"Gray-Green Island."

(a) See Westropp, "Promontory Forts of Co. Waterford," in Journal R.S.A.I., for September, 1906.

On the Ordnance Map the following additional names occur:—Great Island (poirt), Hanrahan’s Rock (so called from a man who while gathering sea fowls’ eggs was killed by a fall down the cliff), Twelve Birds, Little Island, The Stags, Oyen (Uairín?) Rock, &c., &c.

Dunhill Parish.

It is hardly necessary to state that the parish-name is not of ecclesiastical origin. The ancient parish church, erected almost contemporaneously with the castle, was to a certain extent an appendage to the latter, under the shadow of which it stood. It dates therefore from the first period of Anglo-Norman occupation, when it was founded to replace the small Celtic churches of Killowen, Kilcannon, Killsteague &c. For a description of the church ruins &c. see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., p. 139 &c. The parish, which is maritime and more or less Irish-speaking, belongs not to the Waterford, but to the Lismore Diocese.

TOWNLANDS.

ANNESTOWN, Dún Ábá—“River Mouth”; in allusion to the Dunhill stream, which here discharges itself into the sea. Area, 120 acres.

S.D. Carrickadurish (O.M.), Cárraigh a Dóraí—“Rock of the Door”; it stands on west side of the strand and is uncovered at low water.

BALLYCRADDOCK, Baile Cradóg—“Craddock’s Homestead.” Area, 348 acres.

S.D. Gort a Ghéill—“Forfeited (?) Garden”; also, Móin a Ghéill; a small sub-division.

"Ballynegrecough" (A.S.E.).

BALLYHEADON, Baile Uí hEirion—"O'Headon's Homestead."

Area, 212 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cnoc a Cinn—“Hill of the Head”; from a fancied resemblance to a human skull; the name is Anglicised—Knockahead, by which name in fact the whole townland is, or was, till recently, more commonly known.

(b) Dán na Cruitse—“Field of the Heap (of Turf?).”

BENVOY, Deinn (Loc. for Nom.) Uiroe—“Yellow Peak.” I got Cnocán Ruad as an older name of this place. Probably one of the two names is a sub-denomination of the other. Area, 193 acres.

S.DD. I.—Coastwise:—

(a) Morageeha (O.M.), Μόραθ Σάοτε. Meaning unknown: possibly—“Increasing (rising) of Wind”; portion of beach on west side of Benvoy strand.

(b) Carrignamusly Rocks (O.M.), Κάρηταις να Μυρραιτού—“Rock of the Mussels”; it is four chains in width and lies under low water mark at south east corner of the strand.

(c) Κάρηταις Φάσα—“Long Rock” (O.M.).

(d) An Rinn—“The Headland”; applied here to a cliff.

(e) Faill an Διτίνν—“Cliff of the Furze.”

(f) Τράϊς Λεαταν—“Wide Strand.”

II.—Inland:—

(g) Tobair na ΓCocán—“Well of the Straws.”

(h) Νεδρίνα 'n Κλαμπαίρ—“Gap of the Dispute.”

(i) Βάιρις να Μαοταλακάιν—“Field of the Curds”; so called perhaps from little hills or ridges.

(j) Ζορτ Σπαριν—“Garden of the Heavy (Wet) Sod.”

(k) Δán a Φιοραίρ—“The Piper's Field.”

CASTLECRADDOCK, Καίρελάν Σραθοίς—“Craddock's Castle.” David Craddock lodged a petition (1290) against Maurice Russell, Sheriff of Waterford for having “broke open gates and doors of his castle &c.” (Records of Ireland—Sweetman's Calendar). Area, 361 acres.

“Castlecroddock” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.DD. (a) St. Martin's Well (O.M.), does not appear to be known locally, although O'Donovan states on authority of tradition that a “pattern” was formerly held here.

(b) Tobar Óaile Míc Éadmoir — “ Well of FitzEdmond’s Homestead.”

COOLRATTIN, Cúil Raitin—“ Corner of (the) Ratteen.” “ Ratteen” was a kind of homespun, for manufacture of which—presumably from its name—the place was once noted. I have been furnished with the suspiciously poetic “ ancient ” name of Cumha Tuinn—(“ Fragrant Bog Place ”) for the townland or perhaps for part of it. Area, 72 acres.

“ Coolerettin ” (D.S.R.).

CRINALISK, Crin Álaisc. Meaning unknown. The Down Survey Reference makes the name “ Clonalisk,” while the Acts of Settlement &c. write it “ Clonaliskey.” From these two forms one might conclude that the first element of the name is cluan, a meadow. The second word may be aill-uisce, “ of the water (emitting) rock.” Area, 246 acres.

CROUGH, An Chruach—“ The Heap (i.e. Conical Hill).” Area, 81 acres.

DUNHILL, Dún-Aill—“ Fort of the Rock”; from the prehistoric earthen fortress which crowned the cliff on which the castle now stands. The remarkably situated feudal fortress, now in ruin, was the chief seat of the Barons of Dunhill. John Power, the last Baron, was alive in 1652, and the present representative of the line is unknown, but should probably be found somewhere in West Waterford—say in the neighbourhood of Clashmore. Giles, daughter of Lord Decies, and wife of John Power aforesaid, defended Dunhill against the Parliamentarians. On its capitulation the magnificent pile, worthy of a better fate, was blown up by gunpowder, the Baron, with eighteen of his followers, transplanted into Connaught, his estates declared forfeited, and granted—the Dunhill portion—to an ancestor of the present Earl of Enniskillen. On the townland is an earthfast cromlech built into a boundary fence and not recorded on the Ordnance Map.

JOHNSTOWN, Óaile Seagáin. Idem. Area, 226 acres.

“ Johnstowne ” (Inq. Jas. I.).

KILLONE, Cill Eogain—“Eoghan’s Church.” This is one of four early churches, within the county, which bear the same name. Area, 295 acres.

“Killowen” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) An Cillineac—“The Little Burial Ground” (lit. the little church site); the name of a field in which is a circular, primitive-church enclosure.

(b) An Ruadán—“The Moory Tract.”

(c) Cárraig and Dán na fáille—“Rock” and “Field” respectively, “of the Cliff.”

(d) Tobair na Lápmac Dáine—“Well of the White Mare.”

KILLSTEAGE, Cill Sterig. I have heard it pronounced thus, though O’Donovan writes it C. Stáige. Sterig means a measure of land (compare Staigue fort, Co. Kerry &c.); it is more probable however that it is, in the present instance, a personal name—the name of the early church founder. Area, 302 acres.

“Killstage” (D.S.R.). “Kilsteogy” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.DD. (a) Reiligín—“Little Graveyard”; site of the early church from which the townland is named. The site in question was discovered with great difficulty—near verge of a bog on the farm of Robert Mooney. Fence &c. and almost the very memory of the sacred place have disappeared. Close by is a standing pillar-stone.

(b) Gort a Fuaileais—“Garden by (of) the Weedy Marsh-Edge.”

(c) Dán na Sphároe—“Field of the Street (Village).” The field and name remain, but the street survives only in the field name.

(d) Dán na Mucán—“Field of the Chimneys.” Mucán is also a disease from which horses suffer.

(e) Púna na Lady—“The (Land) Lady’s Pound”; a field in which formerly stood a castle.

(f) Tobair thic Céim—“Son of Cian’s Well.”

KILCANNON, Cill Conán—“Conan’s Church”; the second of three early churches in the county commemorating this otherwise forgotten church builder. The church site, identified with difficulty, is close to the extreme northern angle of the townland. No remains of the church survive. Compare Drumcannon, also Kilcannon, Whitechurch Par. Area, 240 acres.

S.DD. (a) An tSeana Spáis—“The Old Village.”

(b) Úán a tSagairt—“The Priest’s Field.”

(c) Úannra—“Glebe”; the word appears to be a corruption of manse.

KNOCANE, Cnocán—“Little Hill”; adjoins a townland of same name in the neighbouring barony of Decies. Area, 182 acres.

“Knockan-Corbally” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) Stooken Rock, (O.M.), Carras Stuaicín—“Rock of the Stook (Pyramid).”

(b) Trais a Cnoicín—“Knockane Strand.”

LISAVIRON, Lios a Óigráin—“Lios of the Pin (Brooch, or Small Pointed Stake).” Area, 257 acres.

“Lyshvurrane” (Inq. Jas. I.).

SMOOR (in two divisions—more and beg), Smúr—“Rubbish” or “Embers”; a name probably derived from a pile or mound of stones—remains of a dismantled or burned building. This place was the seat of a branch of the Power family deriving descent from the Dunhill house. Area, 370 acres.

SHANACLONE, Seana Cluain—“Old Meadow.” Area, 361 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Ceapac—“The Tillage Plot.” Ceapac was better known, half a century ago, than the townland name proper. The eighteenth century thatched church of the parish stood here, and the site for a while and, in fact, till quite recently, gave its popular name to the parish.

(b) Carras a Clois—“Rock of the Bell”; so named from its shape.

(c) Gleann Táis—“Teige’s Glen.”

(d) Úán a Fuaileas—“Field of the Weedy Marsh-Edge.”

(e) An Leac—“The Monument”; it marks the spot whereon one of the old Powers of this place was accidentally killed.

(f) Gárrairde a tSailgíomha—“The Soldier’s Garden.”

(g) Dán a Liagán—“Field of the Pillar Stone.”

SAVAGETOWN, Baile an Óisibhíte (tSábhíte)—“Savage’s Homestead.” Area, 201 acres.

Islandkane Parish.

THIS Parish derives its name from the townland on which stood the ancient church, as the townland in turn took its title from an entrenched headland which violence of the ocean has wrested from the mainland within modern times. Church and parish were inappropriate in the Commandery (Knights Templars) of Killure, and passed at the suppression into the hands of Sir Richard Aylward. An early church at Killfarry probably preceded the Islandkane foundation and served the spiritual wants of the district previous to the Invasion. For a description of the church ruins see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., pp. 136 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYGARRAN, Baile an Gárráin—“Homestead of the Grove.” Area, 224 acres.

BALLYSCANLAN, Baile Uí Scannláin—“O’Scanlon’s Homestead.” Area, 881 acres.

S.D. Tobair a Chomhártá—“Well of the Mark.”

CAHER, Caisleán—“Stone Fort.” No trace of the structure remains. In fact, with perhaps a single exception, no cathair now survives in Co. Waterford, though the occurrence of the word in place names proves that stone forts were once fairly common therein. Area, 168 acres.

S.DD. (a) Dán an Ulsterig—“The Ulsterman’s Field.” See under Drumcannon townland, Par. of the same name.

(b) Úan a Leárá—“The Lios Field.” This lios it was which probably gave the townland its name. The name is of extremely frequent occurrence, and has not, as a rule, been noted.

(c) Carrig-Úearra Úeag—“Barri’s Little Rock.”

CARRICKAVRANTRY, Carrigais a Úroinnteorais—“Rock of the Quern-Stone Maker.” Mill stone material in inexhaustible quantity abounds. There is a cromlech (not recorded on Ordnance Map) with small stone circle, on the townland. The greater portion of this townland—in two sub-divisions—is in Kilbride Parish. Area, 407 acres.

“Carrigbrontore” (Inq. Eliz.).

S.DD. (a) An Tócaír—“The Causeway”; a bog-crossing now transformed into a regular road.

(b) Na Cuaír—“The Cattle Fields.” The word cuaír in place name derivation is generally rendered “a bleach green”; in the Decies however it hardly ever carries that meaning.

FENOR, Fionnbar & Fionnbaras. Meaning uncertain—probably, “White Plain.” Area, 411 acres.

ISLANDKANE, Oileán Uí Céin—“O’Kane’s Island.” O’Kane was one of the minor families of the Decies. The present is one of the couple of instances in Co. Waterford wherein the name oileán is applied to a portion of the mainland. The second is in Stradbally parish. In both instances the townland has an entrenched headland—which was doubtless the name-giving oileán. Islandkane and Islandtarsney are almost certainly sub-divisions of one original oileán townland. Area, 613 acres.

S.DD. (a) Black Door (O.M.), Tóirur Túib. Idem.

(b) Boat Strand (O.M.), Tírlis na mBád.

(c) Eagle Rock (O.M.), Carrig an Iolair. Idem.

(d) Sheep Island (O.M.). This is now really two islands; the innermost is Oileán na gCaorac—“Island of the Sheep (pl.),” and the other Oileán na Óifíannacá—“Island of the Rats..” Up to about sixty-five years ago they were joined to the mainland. On the islets, as well as on the mainland immediately adjoining, are some foundations of cloghans, or primitive stone houses of beehive type—the only remains of the kind so far discovered in Waterford—and site of the clochans is surrounded by a strong earthen fence of the lios type. The enclosed space, of which the now detached island was part, constituted the O'Kane Island.

(e) Poill a Tobac—“Tobacco Hole”; reminiscent of the days of smuggling.

(f) Site of “Telegraph Station” erected nearly a century ago when rumours of a French invasion filled the air.

(g) Craic a Córtha—“Strand of the Large Box.”

(h) Oileán Úr Óigca—“Burke's Island.” Mr. J. H. Lloyd, in his notes to a poem (“Cóic Murhain,” R.I.A. MS., 23, N. 10.) which he contributes to “Eriu,” Vol. II. p. 49, has fallen into a serious mistake regarding this island. Emanating from so capable a scholar, Mr. Lloyd's error is doubly calculated to mislead and correction is doubly necessary. Mr. Lloyd states that Burke's Island, off the coast of Middlethird, — Oileán Uí Óigic, and upon the alleged identity he builds the theory that the ancient O'Brics of Decies are represented by the modern Burkes of Waterford. It is not our province here to account for disappearance of the O'Brics from their ancient patrimony but, be the explanation what it may, the Burke-ex-O'Bric theory as based upon the argument from the name of Burke's Island cannot stand: (1) Oileán Úr Óigca and Oileán Uí Óigic are not at all identical; as a matter of fact the two islands are separated by two or three miles of coast and tons of salt water innumerable; one (the former) is off the coast of Middlethird and the other off Decies. (2) Oileán Úr Óigca has never been called Oileán Uí Óigic, nor Oileán Uí Óigic, “Burke's Island.”

ISLANDTARSNEY, Oileán Tárrna — “Island Across (over against).” Area, 492 acres.

“Ilanetarsney” (Inq. Jac. I.). “Iland Carsney” (D.S.R.).

(c) Sráidín—“Little Village.”

(d) Cárraig na Dollars—“Rock of the Dollars.”

(e) Cárraig a tSálann—“The Salt Rock.”

KILFARRASSY, Cill Féarngusa—“Church of Fergus.” The Mart. Dungal. enumerates no fewer than ten individuals of the name Fergus. Area, 258 acres.

S.DD. (a) Yellow Rock (O.M.), Cárraig Úrde. Idem.

(b) Cill; site of early church.

(c) Gleann Liat—“Grey Glen”; on boundary with Whitefield.

(d) Fólaict Fiað; a prehistoric cooking place, by side of stream which forms eastern boundary of townland.

MONAMELAGH, Móin na Meallac. Meaning doubtful. Area, 219 acres.

NEWTOWN, Dáile Nuá. Area, 208 acres.

(d) Tráig Larry Gabán—“Strand of Larry-the-Goats.”

WOODSTOWN, Dáile na Coille—“Homestead of the Wood.”

The “wood” can hardly have been a very formidable thing. Timber will not grow here now. Area, 414 acres.

“Ballinkeely als Woodtown” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) Cnocrua (O.M.), Cnoc Ruad—“Red Hill.”

(b) Faill an Óstairín—“Cliff of the Little Road.”

Kilburne Parish.

THE small parish does not share its name (of ecclesiastical origin) with a townland as the vast majority of parishes do. Consequently the name (Cill Boiríunn) is not in popular use. Neither is meaning of the name, by any means, clear. O’Donovan renders it —Church of the Rocky Place. Dineen gives boiríne as the genitive of Boiríeann. Apparently there is a double genitive. The parish is referred to as:—"Kilburren als Churche Burrin" in an Inquisition of James I., "Kilburne" in the Regal Visitation Books of the early 17th century, and "Boryn" and "Breyne" in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas (1302-6). For an account of the ruined church &c. see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., p. 165.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYCASHIN, Baile Uí Cáirín—“O’Cashen’s Homestead.”

O’Cashen is not a Waterford or southern but an Ulster name. An Inquisition of 1263 finds the lands of “Ballycoshyn” ($\frac{1}{2}$ carucate) are held by William of London (De Londres, now Landers) from the Prior of Connell. Area, 609 acres.

S.DD. (a) Þealac na mBuiniú—“Roadway of the Springs.”

(b) An Rótaíac—“Foundations of Ancient Buildings”; the name of a field.

(c) Þáirc na Ófísearðir—“The Weavers’ Field.”

BAWNFUNE, Bán Fionn—“White Field.” Area, 285 acres.

BUTLERSTOWN, Baile Ónústeapais—“Butler’s Homestead.”

Musketry practice formerly took place in the vicinity.

(b) Tobair Uí Óuirb—“O’Duff’s Well”; on boundary with Lismore.

KNOCKEEN, An Cnoicín—“The Little Hill.” Area, 876 acres.

S.DD. (a) Móim na bPáistí—“Bog of the Flowers”; old name of, perhaps, the whole townland.

(b) Sugar Loaf Hill (O.M.), Cárraig Corrá—“Round Rock”; a very remarkable rocky bluff of conical shape.

(c) Cromlech (O.M.), embedded in surrounding fence of the ancient graveyard. This monument is of great size, and in an excellent state of preservation.

(b) Sweetman’s Calendar under date June 12th, 1247.

(d) Tig Faoi Cálam—“House under the Earth”; this is name of a field in which is a soulterraine, the entrance to which has been closed up.

(e) Loc Dán—“White Pond”; name applied to cross-roads near (b), above, where there is no pond now.

LISDUGGAN, Lior Óubagáin—“Dugan’s Lios.” Area, 58 acres.

MUNMAHOGE, Muín (also sometimes Dun) Mucóige—“Wild Vetch Neck (or Flat).” Near the north-east angle of the townland stands a cromlech which has never hitherto been noted. Only the cist remains, and this is much mutilated. It measures some 12’ x 7’. Dun, in the second form, is a corruption of muín, a neck of land. As bun could, and frequently did, become mbun in the mouth of the illiterate Irish speaker, muín might become bun as m has actually become b in Kilbunny, Guilcagh Par. Portion of the townland is in Kilbride Parish. Area, 288 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobar Gearl—“White (Clear) Well.”

(b) Ústáir a Thuillinn—“Road of the Mill”; a section of the ancient highway known elsewhere in its course as Ústáir a Cárail Caoic &c. The mill in the present instance was wind driven.

ORCHARDSTOWN, Baile na hAbhéime—“Orchard Homestead.” The genitive in e here is irregular, but such is the Waterford usage. Area, 206 acres.

S.D. Carrraig Caitill—“Caitill’s Rock”; Caitill was a Danish chieftain whose destruction is related in “Wars of the Gaedhil and the Gall.”

TOWERGARE, Tuair Gearr or Tuair Gairriú—“Short Cattle-Field.” Area, 409 acres.

(b) Dán a hÓstá—“Field of the Ford.”

(c) Sceacánas—“(White) Thorn Abounding.”

(d) Ceathramha Láir—“Middle Quarter.”

(e) Cúil Úrð—“Millstone Corner.” There was formerly a mill here.

(f) Ceathramha na nGéadána—“Geese Quarter”; this and the three immediately preceding are names of sub-divisions.

(g) Maoil Láir—“Middle Hill.”

(h) Tobair Uí Crottais—“O’Crotty’s Well.” The individual here commemorated appears to have followed the profession of his more famous namesake of “Crotty’s Lake” connection.

(i) Dán a Lóca—“Pond Field”; there is no pond—only a well—now.

(j) Dán a Chnoicín Ruáin—“Field of the Red Hillock.”

Kilbride Parish.

LIKE Islandkane this church and parish were dependencies of the Preceptory of Killure. Unfortunately there is no evidence (beyond tradition of a worthless character) to show whether the Brigid commemorated be the patroness of Ireland, or whether—if she be—St. Brigid herself visited and founded this church. A description of the church remains will be found in Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., p. 137. The parish contains only three townlands, with portion of two others.

TOWNLANDS.

CARRIGAVANTRY. See under “Islandkane Parish.” Area, 415 acres.

CULLEN CASTLE, Cairleán Cuillinn—“Castle of (the) Holly, (i.e. holly surrounded).” The castle, which is small and square, stands on an outcrop of rock. From its locality &c. it would appear to have been an out castle of the Powers of Dunhill. Area, 390 acres.

“Two Villages of Quillans” (Inq. 32 Eliz.).

S.DD. (a) Sruhna bannaght (O.M.), Sput na mBeannach—“Stream of the Blessings”; it runs through the centre of the townland.

(b) Cairnais a Cáit—“Rock of the (Wild) Cat.”

KILBRIDE, Cill Óigthe—“Brigid’s Church.” Area (in two divisions), 462 acres.

“Kilbryde” (Inq. 32 Eliz.).

S.DD. (a) Cnoc a tSagairt—“Priest’s Hill.”

(b) Mansion House (O.M.); in ruins, since the "Transplantation" period. According to popular account this was the residence of a branch of the Powers. Of the 79 land owners transplanted from Co. Waterford in 1653-4 no fewer than 19 (24 %) were Powers.

(c) Cárraig a tSíora—"Rock of the Silk."

(d) Tobar Naoimh Brigitte—"St. Brigid's Well."

(e) Clair—"Trench"; a field.

(f) Dán a tSrota—"Field of the Stream."

(g) Gárrairde Seagáin a tSúráin—"John-of-the-Blanket's Garden."

MUNMAHOGE. See under "Kilburne Parish." Area, 191 acres.

SPOIRTHOUSE, Tig na Spóirt. Area, 339 acres.

S.D. Hill of Sport (O.M.).

Killotteran Parish.

THE Parish derives its name from the townland on which stood the ancient church, and the name itself is ecclesiastical—signifying the Church of Odran, or Otteran as it is more commonly Anglicised. Oran was adopted as patron of their new diocese by the Ostmen of Waterford on the consecration of their first bishop in 1096. There has been much unnecessary discussion as to the identity of this Otteran. The Irish martyrologies tell plainly enough that the saint of that name honoured on October 27th was a monk of Hy, a kinsman of St. Columba, and the first person to be buried in the monastic cemetery (called from him Reilis Odrain) on the holy islet. Tradition and practice of the Church of Waterford assume Oran to have been a bishop. When we come to enquire the connection of Oran with the Ostman city and diocese we find ourselves on less certain ground. The present writer's theory is—that as Relig-Odhrain was the great cemetery of the Norsemen, whither they carried their dead chieftains and great men for burial from all parts of northern Europe, the Ostmen of Waterford chose for their patron the titular guardian of their ancestors' ashes. (c) See Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. I., pp. 171 &c., for description &c. of the ancient church.

(c) See "Breviarium Romanum," Irish Supplement, Feast of St. Otteran.

TOWNLANDS.

BAWNDAW, BÁN DÁIT—“David’s Field.” O’Donovan writes the personal name, Deagán, which might be rendered—“Dea’s.” Area, 63 acres.

BALLINAMONA. See Ballinamona in “Kilbarry Parish.” Area, 33 acres.

CARRIGPHEIRISH, Cárpaig Phíaraidh—“Pierce’s Rock”; an eminence to rear of Carrigpheirish House. This rock is referred to in Keating’s Poems (d) and was at one time known as “Full View.” Area, 140 acres.

GRACEDIEU, Sgráir Óé—“Grace of God.” The local Irish name is merely a translation of the Norman-French, semi-monastic name given by the 12th century settlers. Area, 623 acres.

“Gracedue” (D.S. Map &c.).

S.DD. (a) Grannagh Ferry (O.M.); the place from which the ferry-boat plied to Grannagh Castle, on the Ossory site. This ferry service ceased with the erection of the present bridge.

(b) “Eeltahan’s Field.”

(c) “Old House Field,” wherein are some traces of a camp.

(d) “Long Lane.”

(e) “Long Reach”; in the river.

KILLOTTERAN, Cill Óránain—“Oran’s Church.” Area, 282 acres.

KNOCKHOUSE, Tíg an Čnuic—“House of the Hill.” On the townland, near its north-west angle, is a fine well, the water of which is believed to be efficacious in curing headache. Area, 643 acres.

S.DD. (a) Bóthairín a Siúrmáire—“Little Road of the Fir-Tree Screen.” The name is now canis a non canendo, for the trees have disappeared.

(b) An Cláirín—“The Little-Plank (Bridge); the name is applied to the stream dividing this townland from Woodstown.

LISMORE, Lior Mór—“Great Lios.” Area, 155 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobair a Phúicín—"The Little Pooka's Well." The "pooka" appears to be a borrowed sprite; there is no trace of him in Celtic literature.

(b) An Lior Mór; the field from which the townland is named. All that remains is the circular outline of the great fort, traceable in a field by side (south) of main road.

(c) Tobair Uí Óuibh—"O'Duff's Well."

SKIBBEREEN, An Sgíobáin. Meaning undetermined; a local speaker of Irish explains it—a collection of small stones. Area, 110 acres.

WOODSTOWN, Baile na Coille—"Homestead of the Wood." Area, 437 acres.

S.DD. (a) Old Court (O.M.), Seana-Cúirt. Idem.

(b) "The Long Reach"; portion of River Suir.

(c) Sean Dún—"Old Fort"; name of a field in which stood a mound, demolished during building of the railway, and found to contain a large quantity of bones.

(d) Cloc a Ceannúigé—"The Merchant's Rock."

(e) Cloc an Óir—"Stone of the Gold"; a large rock on the river bank beside which, the story goes, merchants of Waterford buried a quantity of treasure on the approach of Cromwell.

Kilmeadan Parish.

THIS is a parish of large extent, embracing no fewer than twenty-three townlands. Within its area are the identified sites of at least five early church foundations, and there possibly remain others undiscovered. Portion of the parish, scil:—three townlands, lies within the Barony of Upperthird. For a description &c. of the ancient church see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., pp. 170 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

ADAMSTOWN, Baile Ádmait. Idem. From a document given by Theiner (d), it is evident that Poltomartyn (Póil Tíge Mártain?) was another name for this place. It was apparently church land—perhaps a grange—and on it stood a castle. Area, 247 acres.

(d) "Vet. Monumenta"—Pius II., A.D. 1459.

"Poltomartyн als Ballyadam" (apud Theiner, ut supra). Ballyadam and Adamstowne (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) "St. Martin's Well" (O.M.). It is close by site of the ancient castle. "Rounds" were made here up to sixty years ago and the well was reputed specially efficacious in cure of headache. Inserted in the masonry of the well is a curious carved stone of which a duplicate will be found beneath a thorn bush in adjoining field. Of the castle not a stone remains. In another field—separated by a road from the last—stands a remarkable pillar stone, about 7 feet in height and uninscribed.

(b) "The Sweep"; a sub-division.

(c) Site of church and cemetery, to rere of forge, at junction of three roads.

(d) Óán a Chaitleán—"The Castle Field."

AMBERHILL, Gleann a Rórair—"Glen of the Amber." Area, 448 acres.

S.DD. (a) Cárraigín a Muclaisg—"Little Rock of the Pig-fold."

(b) Muilean Óán—"White Mill."

BALLYDUFF, Baile Uí Óuib—"O'Duff's Homestead." Contrast with Ballyduff, Lismore and Mocollop Par.; latter is Baile Óub—"Black Homestead." Area, (in two divisions), 870 acres.

"Ballyduff" (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.DD. (a) Tobair Caoic—"Blind (dried up) Well."

(b) Dochtairín Slac—"Dirty Little Road"; now nearly obliterated."

BLACKNOCK, An Cnoc Óub—"The Black Hill." Area, 288 acres.

S.D. Páirc na Glaise Gabhnaige—"Field of the Legendary Cow." (See Killune, Drumcannon Par. &c.). The tracks (peculiarly shaped natural markings) of the cow are shown on a flat rock, also the circular impression of the milking pail. This Glair Gabhneac legend smacks of hoary Indo-European antiquity. It is to be noted that Celtic legends in which, as in the present instance, a colour represents an animal or man, are generally of great age—nature myths, in fact.

CARRICKADUSTRA, Carras a Dórtáin—“Rock of the Swaggerer.” Area, 226 acres.

S.DD. (a) Át na Sac—“Ford of the Bags.”

(b) Át Óile Liam—“Williamstown Ford.”

COOLAGADDEN, Cúil an Fheáin—“Corner of the Streamlet.”

Area, 115 acres.

CULLINAGH, An Cuilleannach—“The Holly-Abounding Place.”

Area, 365 acres.

“Cullinaghe” (Inq. Eliz.).

DARRIGLE, An Tseargail. Meaning not quite clear. The present appears to be one of a class of archaic names into which the Indo-European root arg (silver) enters. Compare Araglen, Dargle &c. In each case there is a stream, from the silvery colour of which is borrowed the idea which underlies the name. At Darrigle lived the famous duellist, called from his residence “Þaoisach na Tseargail.” No trace of the house survives and it was only with difficulty that the site was ascertained—midway, on the hillslope, between the new and old Kilmeadan—Portlaw roads. Many stories of the fire-eater are current in the locality. Area, 795 acres.

“Dargil” (D.S.R.). “Darrigall” (Egmont MSS. Vol. I., p. 118).

S.DD. (a) An tSeana Spáro—“The Old Village.”

(b) “The Camp Field”; wherein—so popular story has it—Cromwell encamped.

(c) An Cillín—“The Little Church”; site of an early church, on Quinn’s farm.

DOONEEN, An Duinin—“The Little Fort.” O’Donovan writes it tounán, but I have heard it as above. The townland, which is entirely included in Whitfield demesne, is only partially in this parish. Nicholas Madden of “Downeing” was proceeded against for arrears of tithes in 1653. Area, 72 acres.

GORTACLADE, Goirt a Tochair—“Garden of the Dug-out Pit.” “James Power was seised of ‘Gorteslyade’” (Inq. apud Clonmel, July 1640). Area, 500 acres.

S.DD. (a) Baile na gCuaic—“Homestead of the Cuckoos.” This sub-denomination is better known than the townland name and is not unfrequently used for the latter. Rev. Dr. Henebry makes it—“Homestead of the Bowls,” basing his rendering on the presence in the townland of a large boulder with four or five artificial basins of bullán character (f).

(b) Baile an Scáilín—“Homestead of the Little Shadow.” The shadow is thrown by a high hill, behind the east shoulder of which lie the two farms which were formerly known exclusively by this name. Both B. Scáilín and B. na gCuaic may be regarded as submerged townland names—both older probably than the present official name.

(c) Póil Drew—“Drew’s Pool”; a hole in the river wherein the person from whom it is called was drowned.

(d) An Cillineac—“The Early Church Site”; a field beside the old Waterford road on the south side of the townland. In this field lies the large stone with basin-like cavities already alluded to.

(e) Tobair Eilir Gába—“Alice (Wife) of the Smith’s Well”; close to last.

(f) Bán a Mhácaín—“Field of the Souterrain (lit. Chimney).” The Souterrain has been dug up and “improved” away by the occupying tenant.

(g) “The Tobacco Fields”; about ten acres in extent, wherein seventy years since, or thereabout, heavy crops of the “weed” were grown.

(h) Cárraig a Óireagáin—“Rock of the Toy (or Doll)”; so called, presumably, from a pillar-stone or cairn on summit which in the distance resembled a man. Such stones or piles on Co. Waterford mountains are generally called “Fír Óireise,” i.e., apparent men, but sometimes Óireagáin, as in the present instance.

KILMEADAN, Cill Miadán—“Maidan’s (My Ita’s) Church.” Miadán resolves into mo-iœ-an. The mo and an are merely particles of endearment. In 1285 Walter De La Hays received (f) “Waterford Star” newspaper (Irish column), some date in 1903.

grant of a free warren and of a weekly market on Monday at his manor of "Kilmidan" (Chart. 13, Edward I.). Area, 170 acres.

S.DD. (a) Whelan's Bridge (O.M.), Óróiseáin Uí Fhadaíain.

(b) An Leaca Stearnnúigte—"The Slipping Glen Slope."

(c) "Old Court," An tSeana Cúirt. Idem. This is a sub-division, regarded locally as an independent townland. The "Old Court" in question was the mansion—only a solitary gable of it now stands—which replaced the ancient castle of the Barons of Dunhill and Kilmeadan. This ruin, on the river bank, is familiar to all travellers by rail from Waterford to Dungarvan.

KILMOYEMOGE, Cill mo Óiomóig—"St. Dimoc's Church." (g) The site of this early church is an untilled patch in a field by east side of the avenue between railway and public road. Some years since, when the church site was cut through to form the avenue alluded to, a bullán of sandstone, was unearthed. As the object has not been removed it may still be inspected on the spot. Area (in two divisions), 895 acres.

"Killmoyenoge" (Egmont MSS., Vol. I., p. 118).

S.DD. (a) Tobernanangle (O.M.), Tobair na nÁingeal—"The Angels' Well"; a holy well, still occasionally visited.

(b) "The Mote"; near site of the ancient church. This mound was twenty feet in height a few years since.

KNOCKANAGH, Cnocánae—"Place Abounding in Hillocks." Greater portion of the townland is in Lisnakill Par., and the whole is included in Mount Congreve demesne. Area, 57 acres.

MT. CONGREVE, Cnoc an Átha—"Hill of the (Good) Luck" (O'Donovan); the name is now however forgotten locally. The townland is partly in Lisnakill Par. Area, 118 acres.

NEWTOWN, Baile Nuá—"New Village." Area, 142 acres.

S.DD. (a) Dawn River (O.M.), An Tában (Ód Ábáinn)—"Two Rivers." The term "Átha" (river) is applied in Irish to any permanent stream.

(b) Glebe.

(g) "Modiomog Bishop and Confessor of Cluain-Cain-Aradh in Munster," Martyr. Donegal, at Dec. 10th. "My Dimoc, i.e. in Cluain Cain Arad in Munster, i.e. of Ross Conaill." Calendar of Aenghus.

POWERSKNOCK, Cnoc na bPdraonac—"Hill of the Powers"; some families of whom doubtless lived here. Area, 295 acres.

S.D. "The Sweep."

RAHEENS, na Raithinrde — "The Little Forts." Area, 569 acres.

"Rahines" (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Cárrais a Togta—"Rock of the Choice."

(b) Ífrionn—"Hell"; a patch of very bad land. Compare "Paradise," the name (ironical) of a similar piece in Kilclooney, Mothel Parish.

(c) Caol a Géirí—"Narrow Place (strip of land) of the Goose."

STONEHOUSE, Tig Cloiche—"House of Stone." Area, 453 acres.

"Stonehouse" (A.S.E.).

S.D. Cárrais a Órlaigin—"Rock of the Blackthorn"; a name applied to a sub-division of about 60 acres.

TIGROE, An Tig Rúab—"The Red House" Area, 291 acres.

S.D. Gleann Beag—"Little Glen."

Kilronan Parish.

LIKE Kilcop, Drumrusk and Monamintra, this parish contains only a single townland, from which it derives its name. See Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., pp. 166 &c. for some notice of the Church remains. There is a second parish of the name in Co. Waterford—but in Diocese of Lismore.

TOWNLAND.

KILRONAN, Cill Ronán—"Ronan's Church." There are several saints of the name, Ronan, in the Irish martyrologies, but, since the date of the patronal feast has been forgotten in the present instance, we cannot determine to which of them this foundation is due. Area, 546 acres.

S.DD. (a) "Glebe."

(b) Ráirc a Teampuill—“Church Field”; in which are some insignificant remains of the ancient church.

(c) An tSeana Sír—“The Old Village.”

(d) Tobair na Cille—“The Church Well.”

Lisnakill Parish.

A description of the church ruin &c. will be found in Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. I. pp. 167-8. For derivation of the name see below.

(b) Carrasig Óige—“Little Burned Rock”; a rocky eminence of conical shape.

(c) Carrasig a Stáca—“Stack-like Rock”; a feature of similar character to last.

(d) Óán a Chriún—“Field of the Crest (or Ridge).”

(e) Leaba an tSeagairt—“The Priest’s Bed”; a small natural cave in a rock cliff.

(f) Cnoc na Gábhraige—“Hill of the Stripper”; named perhaps from the Gábhra Gábhneac of many legends.

KNOCKANAGH. See under Kilmeaden Par. Area, 103 acres.

LISNAKILL, Lios na Cille—“Lios of the Church.” The lios in the present instance was probably the ancient circular church enclosure still partly traceable in the field on north side of the cemetery. Area, 200 acres.

“Lisnakelly,” “Lissnakill” and “Liskell” (A.S.E.).

LOUGHDCHEEN, Loch Dáibéin—“Pond of the Little Cauldron”;

a pool by the roadside—so called, probably, from its shape and depth. Area, 737 acres.

“Loughdehin” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Stéann a Gádair—“Glen of the Robber.”

(b) Céadraimha an Chaisleáin—“Castle Quarter (or Division).” The “Castle” here is really a strong 17th century dwellinghouse of stone, now roofless.

(c) Carrasg a Cáite—“Rock of the Winnowing.”

(d) Seana Cill—“Old Church Site”; this is still surrounded by a double earthen wall. The space enclosed is circular and comprises about two statute acres. Foundations of the primitive church (30' x 12') are clearly traceable. Lying among the ruins is an interesting bullán with circular basin, and 40 or 50 yards to south east of the enclosure is a holy well.

Mt. CONGREVE. See under Kilmeadan Parish. Area, 65 acres.

PEMBROKESTOWN, Baile na mBhróis; corruption of a literal translation (scil.:—B. na Riomhóróis) of the official name. On this townland, by north side of the main road, stands a very perfect mote, surrounded by its ditch and concentric rampart. Area, 191 acres.

“Pembrokestowne” (Inq. Eliz.).

SLEVEROE, An Sliab Ruad—“The Light-Red Mountain.”

Area, 239 acres.

Area, 155 acres.

“Singangh” (Inq. Jac. I.).

(b) Cloigráipe Head Off; this was the name of a cross-roads at which stood a public house.

Area (in two divisions), 448 acres.

“Whitfieldstowne” (A.S.E.).

Newcastle Parish.

THE ecclesiastical antiquities will be found briefly described by the present writer in Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. I. pp. 169-170. The parish derives its name from a castle which formerly stood on a rocky ledge close to and overlooking the ruined church. Of the castle now hardly a vestige remains.

TOWNLANDS.

ARDEENLOUN, Árdo Uí h-Annlúan—"O'Hanlon's Height." On this townland are the ancient ruined church of the parish and the site of the castle which gave church and parish its name. Close by the ruins are a couple of standing pillar stones, one of which probably once bore an ogham inscription. Area (in two divisions), 505 acres.

"Ardinlone" (A.S.E.).

BALLYGARRON, Baile an Gárráin—"Homestead of the Grove." On this townland the Ordnance Map shows two medium sized circular lioses; these are really cathairs or of a character intermediate between the cathair and lios, and the same may be said of a similar enclosure in a line with these two—on the adjoining townland of Lisahane. Area, 410 acres.

"Ballygarrenbeg" (A.S.E.).

CARRICKANURE, Carrraig an Iubhair—"Rock of the Yew Tree." Area, 631 acres.

KILDERMODY, Cill Diarmaid—“ Diarmaid’s Church.” The site of the cill is not marked on the Ordnance Maps; it will be found, surrounded by traces of its circular fence, close to northern boundary of the townland, on Whelan’s farm. Area, 227 acres.

Reiske Parish.

THE name of the townland on which the church stood gives its name to the parish. This latter, which is of considerable extent (fifteen townlands), contains much rocky and broken land, with fertile patches between the ridges. As may be expected therefore rock names abound. The church ruin and some interesting tombs in and around it, will be found described in Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. I., pp. 162-4.

BALLYMOTE, Baile Móta—“Homestead of (the) Mote”; so called from a circular mote close to which stands another prehistoric monument still more striking, though not recorded on the Ordnance Map, scil:—a slender and graceful pillar-stone of great height—perhaps fifteen feet. Area, 279 acres.

“Ballimoat” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) Carrickabansha (O.M.), Carras a Dáinris—“Rock of the Grass Land.”

“Ballyphillip” (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D. CILLIN—“Ancient Graveyard”; this is the field, on south side of road, opposite the present parochial house.

BALLYVELLON, Úaite Melan—“Melan’s (or Mellon’s) Homestead.” Compare Garranmillion, Kilrossanty Par., antea. Close together, on north side of townland, are three pillar-stones. That nearest the road is very remarkable—tall, flat-surfaced and wider at the top than below. Another, at distance of a couple of fields from the road, bears an inscription in ogham which reads: “Cumni maci macoi Fagufi” (h) Area, 130 acres.

“Ballinvillon” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Úan na Militia; because at one time used as a drill field.”

CLONFAD, Cluain Fada—"Long Meadow." Area, 176 acres.

"Clonfaddy" (D.S.M.).

(f) Seana Sráid—"Old Village," which grew up in after times on early church site.

MATTHEWSTOWN, Baile Matáin. Idem. Area, 178 acres.

"Mathewstowne" (A.S.E.).

S.D. Leaba Cormaic Mhic Cába—"Thomas McCabe's Bed"; also called Carrraig Mhic Cába; a well-known cromlech. The name suggests some widely distributed legend, for an oblong depression in a limestone rock at Ballintemple, Middle Island of Aran, bears, curiously enough, exactly the same name.

REISK, Riagh—"Morass." Area, 273 acres.

"Reisk" (D.S.).

S.DD. (a) Clashbeema (O.M.), Clair Bioma—“Trench of (the) Beam.”

(b) Carrickagunna (O.M.), Carras a Gunn—“Rock of the Gun.”

Parish of Trinity Without.

PURELY Irish names are comparatively few and sub-denominations are very rare. Owing to practically universal ignorance of Irish and consequent dearth of tradition investigation of its place names is attended with special difficulty in this parish.

TOWNLANDS.

BROWLEY, Braig Lae—“Lea’s Fairy Mansion (or palace).” Area (in two divisions), 87 acres.

“Browley” (D.S.R.).

S.D. “The Barley Fields”; now occupied by artisans’ dwellings.

CLASHRAE, Clair Riabac—“Grey Trench.” Area, 29 acres.

“Clashreagh” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Bóthar Úrde—“Yellow Road”; called from the blossoming gorse which once bordered it.

(b) Craon a Riocht—“Rockett’s Tree”; this is, or was, the upper (western) portion of the Yellow Road, so called from a famous old tree which grew there and was occasionally used as a gallows. An outlaw named Rockett paid the penalty of his crimes (or virtues) thereon.

CLEABOY, Clárde Úrde—“Yellow Fence.” Area, 60 acres.

“Cleabuy” (D.S.R.).

DOBBYN’S PARK. Area, 45 acres.

“James Dobbins 5 parkes” (D.S.R.)

GIBBET HILL, Árto na Cnoice—“High Place of the Gallows.”

Called also “Gallows Road,” “Crows’ Road,” and (now) “Morley Terrace.” As its old name indicates this was the common place of public execution. In the large ancient house at top of the road (on north side) lived the distinguished churchman, Dr. Hussey, Bishop of Waterford (1798—1803) and—after lapse of some years—another Bishop, Dr. Robert Walsh (1817—1821). Area, 197 acres.

“Gibbets Hill” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) “Dye House Lane” now “Summerhill Terrace.”

(b) “Strangman’s Lane,” now “Suir Street,” leading from Mary Street North to river.

LISDUGGAN, Lios Duggán—“Duggan’s Lios”; to be distinguished from place of same name in Kilburne Par. Area, 198 acres.

“Lisdowgan” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Roanmore (O.M.), Ruaðán Mór—“Great Wet (Spongy) Place.”

(b) Ná Ruadán; plural of Ruaðán—the name applied to a few fields.

(c) Tobair a Óic—“The Buck’s Well.” “Buck,” in this context, = a dandy.

LOGLOS, Lag Sláir—“Gray-Green Hollow.” Area, 27 acres.

LONGCOURSE. No Irish name. Area, 52 acres.

PASTIME KNOCK, Cnoc a tSuigheáid—“Hill of the Merry-Andrew.” Area, 49 acres.

RATHFADDEN, Ráth Óárdín—“Little Patrick’s Fort”; neither trace of fort nor memory of Little Patrick survives. Area, 53 acres.

“Rathfadden” (A.S.E.).

TICOR, Tig Cór. Meaning uncertain; probably “Core’s House.” O’Donovan renders it “odd” house, but the modifying term is cór or cóir, not córr. Area, 91 acres.

S.D. Slige Cáol—“Narrow Way”; a name more generally known now than the townland name proper. It was originally applied to a narrow lane which followed approximately course of the present road from Reservoir to the Cork Road.

WATERFORD; probably “Snug Haven”; the name is certainly Danish but authorities differ as to its meaning. The present division embraces that portion of the city beyond the ancient walls, on the west. Area (in two parts), 104 acres.

S.DD. (a) Ballybricken, Báile Óicín—“Brickin’s Home-stead.” This is a sub-division of somewhat indefinite extent. In its minimum extension it includes the whole Fair Green (no longer green, by the way). The Great Parchment Book makes mention of Bricken's Mill and Garden, while "Bricken's Town" is referred to in A.S.E. Ballybricken is the "Great Greene" of the Down Survey Map.

(b) Barker Street; named from the early 18th century Alderman Samuel Barker, site of whose garden it occupies.

(c) "The Citadel"; this was a square fort, mounted with great guns, which stood on site of the present gaol. It consisted of four bastions with curtains (i).

(d) "Barrack Street," An Fáirce—"The Fair (or Hurling) Green." Here stood, at present entrance to Christian Brothers' residence, the thatched chapel of Trinity Without. Barrack Street, with the present Mayor's Walk, constitutes the "Common Greene" of the original Down Survey Map.

(e) "Glass House Lane"; it perpetuates the memory of Gatchell's famous factory, which sent its inimitable products all over Western Europe.

(f) "Glen Road"; joining Bridge Street to the Glen.

(g) "Gow's Lane," Lána Gabá—"Blacksmith's Lane"; now Smith's Lane, which designation the Municipal Authority has sanctioned by erection of a new name-plate.

(h) "Mayor's Walk"; this was first laid out as a street in 1711, on the demolition of the earthwork without the walls which protected both wall and gates at this side. The earthwork here appears to have been about twelve feet in height; we find it occasionally referred to in municipal documents &c. as the "Butt-works."

(i) "Murphy's Lane." This thoroughfare exists no longer, and its disappearance is no loss if it deserved the character given it in a note (Dr. O'Donovan's) in the Ordnance Survey Field-Book—"Its occupants are of the lowest class of Tipplers, —, and pick-pockets of the lowest and most diabolical character: so at least they were in 1827, when I went to school to old Ned Hunt of Patrick Street." This classic lane ran parallel with Mayor's Walk from Bachelor's Walk to Patrick street—along the space now occupied by Widgers' stables.

(i) Smith, "History of Waterford," 2nd Ed., pp. 171 &c.

- (j) "Nunnery Lane," now Convent Hill.
- (k) "Pound Street"; it formerly occupied portion of the open space in centre of the Glen, and derived its name from the public pound situated there.
- (l) "Thomas' Hill"; mentioned in the Great Parchment Book, and so called from St. Thomas' Church, to which it leads or led. The chancel arch of the church still survives and, being pre-invasion in character, is of peculiar interest. It stands in a neglected cemetery, in which are a few tombstones.
- (m) "Vulcan Street"; the former name of the north end of Thomas' Street, between junction with O'Connell Street and Quay.
- (n) "King Street," also called O'Connell Street for the past fifteen years.

BARONY OF SLIEVEARDAGH.

WO Parishes only of this Barony lie, with portion of a third, within our territory, scil:—Grangemockler, Templemichael and part of Garrangibbon. The Barony was, according to O'Heerin (a), the ancient patrimony of O'Day. Both O'Heerin (b) and the Four Masters (c) write the name Sléibh Átha Cárth, that is—“Mountain of the High Plain.” The three parishes named form a kind of plateau differing in soil and general character from the adjoining parishes of Iffa and Offa. Less fertile than the adjoining Barony and isolated, on one side, by a range of high hills, Slieveardagh is more favourably circumstanced than its sister baronies for the preservation of its ancient nomenclature. Accordingly its sub-denominations were found more numerous, and were more easily collected than the corresponding land-names of the adjoining divisions. Lioses (entirely or partly destroyed) are plentiful, and it is remarkable that whereas elsewhere throughout the whole Decies, north and south, they are, with rare exceptions, circular in shape, in this particular corner of Tipperary they are mostly polygonal—pentagonal, hexagonal &c.

Garrangibbon Parish.

THE Parish name is of purely civil origin, derived from the townland on which the ancient church stood. Of the church

(a) “Topographical Poems,” Ed. O’Donovan, p. 100.

(b) Ibid.

(c) A.F.M., A.D. 1600.

hardly any remains exist. The little that does survive will be found within a small cemetery enclosed in the grounds of South Lodge and including neither inscription nor monument of age or general interest. The parish is portion of an elevated mountain plain, overlooking the very fertile south-east angle of the Golden Vale and the Valley of the Suir.

TOWNLANDS.

AHENNY LITTLE. See Ahenny, Newtown Lennon Par. Area, 84 acres.

ARDBANE, Árdo-Bán—"High Field." Area, 199 acres.

"Ardbane" (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.DD. (a) Án Tún—"The Fort"; a small natural mound by the roadside, crowned by vestiges of what appears to have been an earthwork of the Rath type.

(b) Glenbower (O.M.), Gleann Boðair—"Noisy Glen."

ATTYJAMES, Át Tighe Séamuir—"Ford of James' House." Area, 169 acres.

BALLYBRONOGE, Baile Úrionóig—"Brunnock's (Walsh's) Homestead." Area, 196 acres.

BLEENALEEN, Bléin a Lin—"The Flax-Producing Narrow Low Tongue of Land." Area (in two divisions), 326 acres.

"Blanelene" (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D. LAS A CÓDAÍCA—"Sleepy Hollow."

CHEESEOUNT, Gárrarðe Dub—"Black Garden." I got Cnocán na Cáipe as an alternative name, but the latter is probably merely a translation into Irish of the modern fancy name. The present division got its official name, perhaps, to distinguish it from the adjoining Garryduff, in the same parish, but in a different Barony. Area, 157 acres.

CLASHNASMUT, Cláir na Smot—"Trench of the Tree Stumps." Area, 437 acres.

CURRAHEEN, Cúrraícin—"Little Wet Place." Area, 576 acres.

GARRANBEG, Gárran Beag—"Little Groove." Area, 174 acres.

GARRANGIBBON, Garrahan Siobhán—“Gibbon’s Groove.” Area, 132 acres.

“Garrangibbane” (Inq. Jas. I.).

S.D. Tobar Phádraig—“Patrick’s Well”; at which “rounds” were formerly made.

GARRYMORRIS, Garraíde Muirírin—“Garden of Little Maurice.” Area, 210 acres.

GLENACUNNA, Gleann a Connairó—“Glen of the Firewood.” Area, 165 acres.

S.D. poll Mór—“Great Pit”; a pond.

HEATHVIEW, Cnoc Uisce—“Water (Wettish) Hill.” Area, 244 acres.

RAHEEN, Ráthín—“Little Rath.” Area, 94 acres.

Grangemockler Parish.

THE name is ecclesiastical and derived from the townland on which stand the ruins of the ancient parish church. These are in a tolerable state of preservation, and show the church to have been of comparatively ambitious proportions. The parish, of about average extent, contains, in all, six townlands, of which two are of great size. From our present point of view the region is disappointing; names are proportionately few and, by no means, the most interesting.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLAGHOGE, Bealaíc Ós—“Little Roadway.” O’Donovan, or whoever glossed the Ordnance Survey Field Books, renders it—“Road of the Young.” Area, 100 acres.

“Ballaghoge” (D.S.R.).

BALLINRUAN, Baile an Ruaínáin—“Homestead of the Moory Place.” Area, 293 acres.

S.D. Carrigmaclea (O.M.); a sub-division of this and neighbouring (Tinlough) townland.

BALLYTOHIL, Baile Uí Tuatail—“O’Toole’s Homestead.” Greater portion of this townland lies in the adjoining parish of Kilvemnon and Barony of Middlethird and therefore outside the Decies. Area (within our territory), 25 acres.

"Ballyhoghill" (D.S.R.).

GRANGEMOCKLER, Graimreach Moclair—"Mockler's Grange." A grange, as already explained, was the out farm of an abbey or religious house. Mockler (family name of English descent) probably farmed the grange previous to the dissolution, or received a grant of it on consummation of the latter event. Area, 899 acres.

"Mouler" (Tax. Pope Nich.). "Graungmocly" (Inq. Henry VIII.).

S.D.D. (a) Sean Láthair—"Old Place"; a small sub-division (about six acres).

(b) Mullenagloch (O.M.), Muileann na gCloc—"Mill of the Stones"; the village in which are the present church and graveyard.

(c) Cill—"Early Burial Ground"; two fields to west of main Carrick-Callan Road.

(d) Carrhaig Moclair—"Mockler's Rock"; a remarkable dome-shaped rocky mass which rises out of the plain.

(e) Fair Green (O.M.), Fáitce. Idem.

GLENNASKAGH, Gléann na Sceád—"Glen of the Whitethorn Bushes." A considerable proportion of this townland is mountain. Area, 1,218 acres.

"Glauneskeagh" (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D.D. (a) Knockahunna (O.M.), Cnoc a Connait—"Hill of the Firewood"; a sub-division which extends into the adjoining townland, parish and barony.

(b) Árthaoite—"Height of the Wind." The parish generally is elevated and wind-swept.

(c) Tobair Óurðe—"Yellow Well."

(d) Óstairín a Íotair—"Little Road of the Bending."

(e) Tobair Cneadáin—"Well of the Little Rock."

(f) Liaigán—"Pillar-Stone"; the name is applied to the field in which the pillar stands.

TINLOUGH, Tig an Lóca—"House of the Pond." Area, 265 acres.

Templemichael Parish.

THIS is the second parish of the name in Lismore Diocese (for the other see Barony of Coshmore and Coshbride). The scant remains of the ancient church with its cemetery are picturesquely situated on the east bank of the Lingaun stream at a place where an old road crosses the latter. I have little (if any) doubt that Templemichael is the Át na gCárba ("Ford of the Chariots") of the Four Masters and other ancient authorities. In the Visitations of Elizabeth (d) the church of Athnacarbad is twice placed between Grangemockler and Newtown Lennon and as these Visitations proceed in geographical order it seems plain that the present church—between Grangemockler and Newtown—is the place meant. Similarly in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas "Anegarbid" follows Kilmurry immediately and precedes Mouler (Grangemockler). That it was anciently a place of note is evident from the Four Masters' reference to the death of Lughaidh MacConn. Lughaidh, they say, was treacherously slain by the druid Ferchis, "to the west of Athnacarbad (e)."¹ The parish is of average extent, embracing twelve townlands. Through it ran the ancient highway, via the Rathclarish Gap, from Ossory to Magh Feimhin and Southern Decies (f).

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINVIR, Baile an Bhiorra—"Homestead of the (Standing) Water." There stands here, in a fence, a pillar stone of large size and remarkable appearance. Area, 369 acres.

S.D. Át a Macaire—"Ford of the Battle Field"; from a battle traditionally reported to have been fought here.

CAPPAGH, Ceapad—"Tillage Plot." Area, 54 acres.

CASTLEJOHN, Caisleán Seagáin. Idem. Some remains of an old building survive. This however, which was occupied by a family named Shepherd, appears to have been rather a mansion than a castle. Area, 364 acres.

" Ionaichcassel " (Pat. Roll, 17, John).

COOLARKIN, Cúil Uí 1apcaín—" O'Harkin's Corner." Area, 256 acres.

CROAN, Cruitán—" Hard Place "; in allusion to the nature of its soil. Area, 196 acres.

CURRASILLA, Cúrrac Saillige—" Marsh of the Sallow." Area, 630 acres.

" Cursileigh " (Inq. Chas. I.).

S.D. AUGHVANEEN (O.M.), Áct Mhainnín—" Manning's Ford "; a well-known sub-division.

GORTKNOCK, Gort a Choic—" Garden of the Hill." Area, 55 acres.

HARDBOG, Móin Cruitán. Idem. Area, 205 acres.

KILLINCH, Coill Inre—" Inch (River Holm) Wood." Area, 117 acres.

MANGAN, Mongán—" Place Overgrown with Coarse Grass." Area, 257 acres.

" Mongone " (Inq. Chas. I.).

NINE MILE HOUSE, Tíg na Naoi Mile. Idem; a stage on the old mail coach road from Clonmel to Dublin. The main road through the village is the western boundary of the townland. Area, 57 acres.

ROCKVIEW. No Irish form; a modern fancy name. Area, 131 acres.

TEMPLEMICHAEL, Teampull Mhícheil—" St. Michael's Church." Local seanachies say that the road leading north from the ancient graveyard is that by which St. Patrick travelled. I take this tradition to be a faint echo of the former importance of the ford hard by. Area, 183 acres.

BARONY OF UPPERTHIRD.

UPPERTHIRD, which contains seven parishes and portion of three others, extends along the south bank of the Suir from a mile or so to east of Portlaw as far west almost as the environs of Clonmel. It is not a region particularly rich in local nomenclature, though a few of its names are both philologically and historically important. Its own name, Uaictar Tír ("Upper Country"), the Barony owes both to its physical character (portion of it is a plateau) and to its geographical relation to its sister Barony of Middlethird. Upperthird was, in Celtic times, the tribal land of the O'Flanagans, and became, after the 12th century, part of Páoráca (Powers' Country).

Clonegam Parish.

THE Parish derives its name from the townland on which stood the ancient church. Most of the parish is now included within the demesne of Curraghmore. Hence sub-denominations are comparatively few. A description &c. of the ancient church will be found in Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., pp. 251 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

CLASHGANNY, Cláir Gáinimhe—"Trench (or Hollow) of the Sand Pit." Area, 140 acres.

CLASHROE, Cláir Ruad—"Red Trench." Area, 212 acres.

S.D. Tobberacarrick (O.M.), Tobair na Carrairc—"Well of the Rock."

CLONEGAM, Cluain na gCáin—“Meadow of the Windings (of Stream).” In a wood on the hill slope to the north of “Le Poer Tower” is a fine window (scil., the western—see Ware’s “Bishops”), of the old Cathedral of Waterford. The elaborate stonework, in no fewer than 146 pieces, forms a miniature cairn now overgrown with briars, furze and thick moss. On the demolition of the old Cathedral in 1770 the window was transported hither, and here on the hill side—abandoned and forgotten—it has remained ever since. (b) Area, 692 acres.

“Clongan” (Tax. Pope Nich.).

S.DD. (a) Le Poer Tower (O.M.); the most conspicuous artificial object in Co. Waterford; erected in 1785.

(b) Tappin’s Bush (O.M.).

COOLROE, Cúil Ruád—“Red Corner.” Area, 590 acres.

“Cooleroe als Cooleare or Coolera” (A.S.E.).

S.DD. (a) Portlaw (O.M.), pórtlach. Meaning of the second element, lád or clád, is uncertain. The root or term in question occurs also in Ballinlaw (Co. Kilkenny) and Clonderlaw (Co. Clare). O’Donovan equates it with the Saxon lagh, a hill.

(b) Clodagh River, Cloíroeád. Meaning uncertain. Most of our river names, as has been already more than once remarked, defy analysis; they are very archaic, but before long the progress of Irish scholarship may be relied on to unravel their mystery.

CURRAGHMORE, Cúrrach Mhór—“Great Marshy (Spewing) Place.” Area, 11,68 acres.

S.DD. (a) Le Poer Castle (O.M.); incorporated in the modern mansion.

(b) Deer Park and Clonegam Church (O.M.). The burial place attached to the last is practically a mausoleum of the Waterford family. The tomb which is of most interest historically is probably that of the last heir (heiress, rather) of the Powers, Earls of Tyrone, scil.:—Lady Kathleen Power, who married Sir Marcus Beresford, afterwards created 4th Earl of Tyrone. The Countess died in 1769, aged 68 years.

(b) See Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. I., p. 287.

KILLOWEN, Cill Eogain—"Owen's Church." The early church site is not recorded on the Ordnance Map; it will, however, be found close by the roadside (south), on Rockett's farm. Area, 245 acres.

S.D. Gort na Cille—"Garden of the Early Church"; name of the field in which the primitive church stood.

KNOCKANE, Cnocán—"Little Hill." Area, 342 acres.

LISSASMUTTANN, Lios a Smotáin—"Lios of the Stump." This place, now walled in and planted as part of Curraghmore demesne, was occupied by small farmers and cottiers within the memory of persons still living or but recently deceased. Area, 375 acres.

Mt. BOLTON, Dárr a Derte—"Birch Summit." Area, 654 acres.

S.DD. (a) An Spután Dub—"Black Streamlet"; forming western boundary. This is also called "Creamley," origin of which name is unknown.

(b) Cloc na nTrí nTríseadroma—"Boulder Stone of the Three Lords"; on south-west boundary.

(c) An Scraibte. Meaning uncertain; see under St. Mary's Par., antea, p. 257.

(d) Món na gCeap—"Bog of the Cultivated Plots."

MAYFIELD or ROCKETT'S CASTLE. This was originally a subdivision of Knockane. It was known (temp. Chas. I.) as Rockett's Castle, by which name it was conveyed to Sir Algernon May, from whom it is called Mayfield. Rockett was a "noted pirate"—the same individual perhaps whose tragic end gave its name to Rockett's Tree, near Waterford; see Par. Trinity Without. Area, 495 acres.

"Rockete's Castell" (Inq. Jas. I.). "Rocket's Castle, als Knockaine" (A.S.E.).

S.D. Dán fada—"Long Field"; a single field of great size—perhaps 50 acres.

Dysert Parish.

THE word Disert came to us in the first age of Latin loaning; it is of purely ecclesiastical origin and occurs twice in Co. Waterford to signify the "retreat," "hermitage" or "desert" to which an early recluse, who afterwards became a church founder, retired. From the anchorite's settlement sprang the later church and, perhaps, monastery. The anchorite in the present instance seems to have been St. Mogue—either the founder of the See of Ferns or his namesake of Clonmore. Dysert is not now retained as the name of any particular townland of the parish though one sub-denomination—Ballindysert—in corporates it. The "Disert" may have been either the original church at Churchtown or an early church, now represented by a cill on Ballindysert. For a description of the church ruin at the former place see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. II., pp. 6 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINDYSERT, Baile an Tíreann—"Cattle Shed of the Hermitage." There are on the townland two remarkable pillar stones which stand within a few yards of one another and, on its east side, the site of an early church. Area, 945 acres.

S.D. (a) Baile Uaistreach—"Upper Homestead."

(b) Loc na gCaorac—"Sheeps' Pond."

(c) Áit na Óiféin—"Ford of the Quern Stone."

BALLYCLOUGHY, Baile Cloiche—"Homestead of Stone." The word cloic is sometimes used to designate a stone building (c). Area, 456 acres.

S.D. Castle Quarter (O.M.), Ceathairna a Chaireann; this castle, which still stands, belonged to the Earls of Ormond.

CARROWCLOUGH, Ceathairna Clurhaic—"Mossy Quarter." Area, 93 acres.

"Carhuclough" (D.S.R.).

CHURCHTOWN, Baile an Teampaill—"Homestead (or Village) of the Church." Area (in two divisions), 670 acres.

S.D. (a) Raven's Hill (O.M.), Cnoc a Phréasán—"Rook's Hill."

(b) Two Glebes.

(c) Na Crlainn Aoibhe—"The Pleasant Trees."

(c) See Proceedings R.I.A. No. 10, January 1907, note to p. 239.

(d) "Mulcahy's Gap"; a ford in the Suir, opposite Churchtown house.

(e) Áit an Eroe—"Ford of the (Sacred) Vestments." The ford was on the old road, now disused, and the sheanacies of the locality say a set of priest's vestments was lost here during a flood.

COOLNAMUC, Cáil na Muice—"Corner of the Pig"; doubtless the allusion is to some legend, now lost. The castle was erected by a Catherine Comerford. Area (in three divisions), 898 acres.

S.DD. (a) Toberavalla (O.M.), Tobair a Úealaig—"Well of the Roadway." This well is commonly regarded as "holy," and—owing to ignorant rendering of the name—is now known to local speakers of English as—St. Vallery's Well!

(b) St. Antony's Well (O.M.). A pattern was held here formerly (O.D.). The well has now however lost not only its reputation for supernatural virtue but even its name.

(c) Tobberagathabrack (O.M.), Tobair a Ghéata Úreas—"Well of the Spotted Gate."

(d) "Ballinderry Ford"; an ancient crossing place of the Suir, now never attempted.

CORRAGINA, Carrraig Éireneac—"Ivy Covered Rock." Area, 56 acres.

"Carrraig Éireneac,
"Úi nAthairc air na bacais
"'S tig bacail ui Shiocharta,

(Old Rhyme).

GLEN, An Gleann. Idem. A famous fair, held here annually on the Feast of the Ascension, is commemorated in the name of a well known air "The Fair of Glen." A second air and song of reputed local origin is the popular "Seaghan O'Duibhir a Gleanna," commonly attributed to Pierce Power of Glen (1685); this air was annexed by Allan Ramsay in 1724 and Burns, who calls it "a favourite Irish air," wrote two songs to it. Dr. Flood, however, (d) thinks "Seaghan O'Duibhir" is not of Waterford origin. The fair of Glen was held on both sides of the river, hence the saying:—"A leat air taoibh mar aonac a Gleanna." The fair and ferry rights were of considerable moment; the latter were held—on the Waterford side—by the Hurleys of Glen and—on the north side—by Captain James Power. Colonel Roche received a grant of Glen for his services in swimming the Foyle at Derry, to communicate with the beleagured Williamite army. Roche was buried in Churchtown graveyard and at his funeral Seamur na Sron delivered so sarcastic a “eulogy” in Irish that it split the gravestone. Another quondam owner of Glen was Cullenan from whom the place was called Gleann Óile Uí Cullenáin. Burke (“Family Romance”) tells how Colonel James Roche swam up the river at Londonderry during its historic siege in order to tell the besieged of approaching relief, and that William III. gave him all the undisposed ferries of Ireland as a reward for his bravery. This grant embroiled him in many lawsuits, and Roche made fresh application to the Crown that upon surrendering his former patent he might have a grant of the forfeited estate of James Everard in the Co. Waterford, “with some ferries near his habitation” (c). Area (in two divisions), 1,425 acres.

S.DD. (a) Carrraigín Sionais—“Little Fox Rock.”

(b) Carrraig Uí Óictain—“O’Bohan’s Rock.”

(c) “The Decoy.” This word occurs occasionally in place name; it denotes a contrivance in a pond, lake or bog for entrapping game—chiefly wild duck.

(d) “The Hop Yard.”

(e) Blatas; this is the old name of the road now known as the “Jinny Hill”; it seems to signify—“The Little Smooth Surfaced (or ‘Flowery’) Place,” from blát, a flower.

(f) Carrraig a Chuaillte—“Rock of the Pole (or ‘Pile’).”

(g) Tobair a Marcair—“Well of the Marquis.”

(h) The Racecourse.

(i) Gláire—“Stream,” called also Gláire Phádraig—“Patrick’s Stream”; from root glár, airy blue or green—the colour of water; it separates the parishes of Dysert and Kilsheelan. The source of this stream is at an altitude of 1,400 feet.

(e) “Journal of Cork Historical and Archaeological Society,” Vol. XIII., No. 73, p. 19.

In the River occur the following :—

(j) Scairb na Móna—“Stony Ford (or Shallow) of the Bog”; this also appears to have been called “Ford Island,” from a small green island which has disappeared.

(k) Scairb a Gormóidig—“Gormog’s Stony Ford.” See under Tramore Burrow, Drumcannon Par.

(l) Poll a Chiarfaraidig—“The Kerryman’s Drowning Pool.”

(m) Poll na Treadra—“Hole of the Fray.”

(n) “Glen Weir.”

(o) Poll a Stámpa—“Hole of the Stump.”

(p) Poll a Túbáin—“Hole of the Little Tub”; named from its shape.

KILLDROUGHTAN, Cill Órmuctáin—“Droughtan’s Church.” Site of the early church was close to Thompson’s farmhouse (east side). Thence, the neighbours tell, the church was, supernaturally, transported in the night to the opposite side of the Suir, where its remains are pointed out close to the ruins of Dovehill Church.

S.DD. (all in River):—(a) Poll na gCaibíníde—“Pool of the Girls”; two girls were drowned in it once on a time.

(b) Poll a Giománaidig—“Pool of the Huntsman.”

(c) A Ford, with no special name.

SCARTLEA, Scairt Liat—“Grey Thicket.” Area, 214 acres.

S.D. Carras Cam—“Crooked Rock”; an isolated crag.

TOOR, Tuair—“Night Field for Cattle.” Area, 367 acres.

S.DD. (a) Poll na gCaorach—“Pool of the Sheep.”

(b) Poll na mBó—“Pool of the Cows.”

(c) Uchtsairín Óearg—“Little Red Road”; so named from the pronounced colour of its sandy banks.

(d) Faill na gCapall—“Cliff of the Horses.”

(e) Leaca an Tuair—“Glen Slope of Toor.”

WINDGAP or ARDMORE, Údarra na gAoite—“Gap of the Wind.” On the townland is a cillín, or early church site, bramble o'ergrown and surrounded by a circular fence. Within the enclosure—towards its centre—lies an ogham-inscribed pillar-stone. Mr. Macalister (f) reads the legend thus:—"Moddagni Maqi Gattagni Mucoi Luguni." Area, 76 acres.

Fenough Parish.

THE Parish and ancient church are called respectively in Irish Paróiste and Teampall Fionnúðaċċ. The qualifying term is archaic and its meaning obscure. It possibly incorporates the word fiord, a wood. We find the name written "Fenogh" in the Down Survey, "ffenogh" in the Visitation Books so often quoted (g), and "Fynvach" (which suggests the Irish form Fionn Mag) in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas. The ancient church, or rather its graveyard—for the church has disappeared—is on the townland of Curraghnagarraha. At the entrance there was, forty years ago, a small ogham stone, but it has been destroyed. For fuller information regarding church and parish, see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. I., pp. 252 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYQUIN, Baile Uí Čunn—“O’Quinn’s Homestead.” On this townland are, or were, two cromlechs and one remarkable pillar-stone, ogham-inscribed. The reading of the ogham here is certain though the characters are worn: it runs:—"Catabar Moco Virigorb." Virigorb = the old Irish personal name Fearcorb (h). One of the cromlechs has been recently destroyed; the other is of the earthfast, or primary, class. It is probable that this cromlech is, like perhaps most of those of primary character, artificial in only a minor degree. Area, 471 acres.

“Ballyquin, alias Ballykneene” (A.S. & E.).

S.D. Móin a Órlánnra—“Bog of the Cattle Pen.” The pen here is simply a circle of upright pillar-stones. Órlánnra signifies primarily a brand or frame to support a griddle in home-baking; in a secondary sense however it is, teste John Fleming, applied as above.

BROWNSWOOD, Coill a Órlánaig. Idem. Area, 218 acres.

(b) Cnoc an Iomairí. Meaning somewhat doubtful; the last word may be a derivative from iomair, a ridge or wrinkle.

CREHANAGH, Criosdánach—“Shaking (Bog).” On this town-land stands an ogham-inscribed pillar-stone; the reading is:—“Vimagni Maqi Cuna (i). James Butler of Creghannagh was fined £20 &c. for refusing to present accusers, 1616 (j). Area, 540 acres.

S.D. Carras Fionnúðac. See parish name above: this is a well-known dome-shaped rock which caps the ridge. On the hill is a massive rocking-stone.

CURRAGHBALLINTLEA, Cúrrac Baile an tSleibhe—“Swamp of the Mountain Homestead.” Area, 568 acres.

“Cúrrac Baile an tSleibhe, baile gan rppé

“Coill a Órlánaig, baile gan móna

“Cúrrac na nGárraite, baile beag mbaírraithe

“Baile Uí Cuinn, baile beag binn.”

(Local Rhyme).

S.D. Carras Uaimtin—“Rock of the Little Lambs (?)”

CURRAGHNAGARRAHA, Cúrrac na nGárraite—“Swampy Place of the Gardens.” Area, 223 acres.

“Curraghneg Araghey” (D.S.R.).

PORTNABOE, Poirtáin na Bó. Meaning doubtful. O'Donovan writes it Poirtac na Bó; assuming this to be correct the name presents no difficulty; it is—“Bog of the Cow.” Locally however I have heard the first, not the latter form, and I find it written phonetically, Purtoughnaboe, on an old tombstone in Carrickbeg graveyard. Area, 284 acres.

(i) Macalister, “Studies in Irish Epigraphy,” Pt. III., p. 223.

(j) Egmont MSS., Vol. I., p. 48.

RATH, RÁT—“Earthen Fort.” On this townland is a cromlech. Area, 393 acres.

RETAGH, ÁN RÉITHEAC—“The Cleared Land.” Area, 149 acres.

TINAHALLA, TÍG AN CALAIS—“House of the Riverside Meadow (or Ferry).” Compare Callaghane, Ballygunner Par. The name, Calais, is from the same root. A fair, afterwards transferred to Clonegam, was held here on May 28th. Area, 363 acres.

S.D.D. (a) ÞÁIRIC A TEAMPUIIL—“Field of the Church”; the field, on Hearne’s farm, is so called from an early church site thereon. Here was found a large circular basin of fine sandstone containing human bones and covered by a domed lid also of stone. The basin is 3’ 6” in diameter, by 15” high, and is carefully wrought and slightly ornamented.

(b) Dáile na hArdánaré. Meaning unknown. This is a well known sub-division.

(c) ÞÁIRIC NA BHRÉACÁN—“Field of the Cows.”

(d) ÞÁIRIC A TAIRB—“Field of the Bull”; so called from a man nicknamed “The Bull.”

(e) ÞÁIRIC A LEARNÁIN—“Field of the Elm.”

(f) ÞÁIRICIN A THAIGÍRTIR—“The Master’s Field.”

(g) Ballyhoora. Meaning uncertain; a considerable sub-division.

Guilcagh Parish.

THIS is a small parish (eight townlands) which seems to have possessed no church. The name is unecclesiastical, and will be looked for in vain in the Visitation lists, though it occurs under the form of Kilcath in the Taxations. There is, however, a Down Survey reference to “the Division of Coolefin and Gilcagh.” The name is pronounced GIOLCAIGH (dat.) — “Broom” (Spartium Scoparium).

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYCAHANE, Dáile UI CHATÁIN—“O’Cahane’s Homestead.” Area, 836 acres.

BALLYVALLICAN, Baile Úailicín — “Wilkins’ Homestead.”

Area, 530 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Þairc an Áiríann—“The Mass Field.”

(b) Gleann na gCruaċ—“Glen of the (Turf) Stacks.”

(c) Tomairfe Þádá—“Long Ridge.”

BEALLOUGH, Béal loča—“Mouth (Gap) of (by) the Lake.”

There is a pond or basin of water, nearly an acre in extent, on summit of the ridge and hence latter part of the name. Area, 447 acres.

“Baloghy” (D.S.R.).

(b) “The Pinnacle”; a rocky point on the ridge near the lake.

(c) Úan Árvo—“High Field”; a piece of arable land situated at a great elevation and visible for many miles.

(d) Carras Árvo—“High Rock”; a point similar to (b) above.

CURRAGHATAGGART, Cúrrac a tSagairt — “The Priest’s Swamp.” Area, 407 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Úan na gCúlraón—“Field of the Pignuts (Bunium Flexuosum)”; it is frequented by a ghost.

(b) Óróiseadh Áta na hEaglaise—“Bridge of the Church Ford”; on west boundary of the townland.

KILMOVEE, Cill Moibh—“Movee’s Church.” There is a parish of the same name in Co. Mayo, and near Lusk, Co. Dublin, is an ancient cemetery called St. Movee’s. The Irish martyrologies mention St. Mobhi of Glasnevin on Oct. 12th, St. Mobhi of Donnybrook (Domhnach Broc) on Sept. 30th, and St. Mobhi of Cluain Fannabhair on Dec. 13th. Site of the early church in the present instance has been identified close to Gough’s farmstead and on north side of road to Kilmacthomás. Area, 692 acres.

S.D. Tobair na Srian—“Well of the Bridles.”

KNOCKHOUSE, Tíg an Čnoic—“House of the Hill.” Area, 143 acres.

KNOCKNACROHY, Cnoc na Crúasáice—“Hill of the Pile (of Rock)”; so called from a high wooded point of the ridge on south side of the townland. Area, 254 acres.

S.D. An Saileán—“The Little Willow Place”; so named from a well, Tobair na Saileán—“Well of the Willows.” This is an instance of a sub-denomination better known than the townland name proper.

GUILCAGH, Giotcás—“Broom.” The townland is entirely included in Curraghmore demesne. Area, 780 acres.

S.D. Þairc a Giotcáise—“Field of the Broom”; a field from which the townland probably takes its name.

Killaloan Parish.

GREATER portion of this parish as well as its ancient church and graveyard lie within the Barony of Iffa and Offa and County of Tipperary. Further reference to it will therefore be found under the barony in question.

TOWNLANDS.

BARRAVAKEEN, Óárr a Óaicín—“Summit of the Little Arm (Winding Road).” Area, 534 acres.

BAWNARD, Óán Árdo. Area, 134 acres.

S.D. Caol—“Narrow (Place)”; a glen which runs through middle of the townland.

CARRICKNABRONE, Cárraig na Úrón—“Rock of the Hand-mill”; from a small rocky hill near the centre of the townland. Area, 123 acres.

S.D. Áit na Blátaíse—“Buttermilk Ford”; near by stood a farmhouse the milk vessels from which were rinsed in the ford, whence the stream got a milky colour.

GLENDAW, Gleann Óáibhró—“David’s Glen.” Area, 142 acres.

LISHEEN, Lírin—“Little Lios (or Earthen Fort).” Area, 54 acres.

DERRINLAUR, Doirne an Láir—“Middle Oakwood.” The old castle, now very ruinous, belonged to a branch of the Butlers. A stone with Butler arms was found in the ruins more than half a century since and was carried away by Lord Cahir, the proprietor.

The castle, which is referred to in "Pacata Hibernia," is commonly reputed to have been in later times the abode of a robber band. It was evidently a place of great strength for its walls are over eight feet in thickness—full eleven feet in the flanking towers. Under the year 1574 the Four Masters relate that—"The son of the Earl of Desmond (John, son of James,) took by surprise a good and strong castle called Doire-an-lair and placed in it trustworthy warders of his own people to guard it. When the Lord Justice of Ireland (Sir William Fitzwilliam) and the Earl of Ormond (Thomas, son of James, son of Pierce Roe,) had heard of this castle, it renewed their animosities against the sons of the Earl of Desmond and they summoned the men of Meath and Bregia, the Butlers and all the inhabitants of the English Pale to proceed to devastate Leath-Mhodha, and they marched without halting until they had pitched their tents around Doire-an-lair which they finally took; and the Lord Justice beheaded all the warders." Area, 658 acres.

S.D. Córa Uí Néill—"O'Neill's Weir"; in river.

TIKINCOR, TIG CÍNN CÓRAÍD—"House at Head of (the) Weir." The "House" in question was the 17th century mansion of the Osbornes, which stands now a roofless, many-chimneyed ruin close by the bridge. Sir Thomas Osborne lived here in 1690. Area, 379 acres.

"Cenn Cúrpais" (Wars of Gaedhil with Gaill).

S.DD. (a) "Sir Thomas' Bridge," called also "Two-mile Bridge." This was erected in 1690 by the Sir Thomas Osborne mentioned, and continued to be till about sixty years since a private bridge with a gate in its middle.

(b) Córa Meadhanach—"Middle Weir"; in the river.

Kilmeadan Parish.

SEE under Middlethird.

TOWNLANDS.

COOLFIN, CÚIL FÍNN—"Fionn's Corner." Greater portion of the townland is a flat or "calow" by the riverside. Area, 1,068 acres.

S.DD. (a) Kilbunny Church, Cill Óunna—“Bunna’s Church”; a very interesting ruin with an early 11th century door (Irish Romanesque) (k). Óunna is almost certainly a corruption of Munna. An inscribed slab, some centuries old, which lies within the ruin, bears an effigy of a Bishop, with the inscription “S. MONNIA EPS.” Munna, Bishop and Abbot, is commemorated under October 21st in all the Irish Martyrologies. “Fionntan was another name for Munna. Fulchan was the name of his father. Two hundred and thirty was the number of monks in his convent. And it was Mochua, son of Lonan, that cured him of the leprosy which he had from the beginning” (l).

(b) “The Lates”; wide, and often deep, ditches which drain the extensive marshes. It has been suggested that the song “The Lakes of Coolfin” has reference to this place, and that “Lakes” is a misreading of “Lates.”

(c) Clodagh River, on west boundary, An Cláir; interpretation difficult and doubtful. Dr. O’Donovan translates it “muddy” (m).

GLENHOUSE, Steann a Chabair—“Glen of the Causeway”; this is a curious instance of perverted Anglicisation. Area, 647 acres.

LAHARDAN, Leat-dhruan—“Half Little Eminence”; from the peculiar outline of an apparently cloven rock bluff which forms the summit of a ridge. Area, 593 acres.

“Laghardane” (D.S.R.).

Kilmoleran Parish.

FOR an account of the Church and Friary antiquities, see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. II., pp. 2-6. Kilmoleran (Cill Mo Aileरain) is the name of the parish only, and perhaps at no time did it designate a townland. It signifies—“Church of My Aileran” (otherwise Aireran). Aileran, called the Wise, is commemorated on December 29th. Site of the ancient parish church, as well as existing remains of the old Friary, are on Carrickbeg townland. The present parish church occupies the site of the Friary, while the neglected cemetery of Ruis na Muc indicates the position of Kilmoleran Church. Kilmoleran Parish contains, in all, only four townlands.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLYSLOUGH, Baile Saileach—“ Willow Homestead ”; sometimes now called B. Salac—“ Dirty Town.” The Down Survey Reference shows by its spelling that the adjective is not “ dirty ” but “ willowy.” Area, 164 acres.

“ Ballysellagh ” (D.S.R.).

CARRICKBEG, Carrraig Úrás—“ Little Rock,” or rather “ Little Carrick.” When Carrick-on-Suir, which got its name from a rock in the river, grew to be a place of some importance, its suburb at the opposite side of the river came to be called by contra-distinction “ Little Carrick.” Carrickbeg was anciently Carrick-mac-Griffin, from one Matthew FitzGriffin, to whom the place was granted early in the 13th century. Area, 800 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Tobair na gCraann—“ Well of the Trees ”; the place is now, however, treeless.

(b) Ruis na Muc—“ Cemetery of the Pigs ”; the interesting cemetery which once pertained to the parish church.

(c) Córa Thóir—“ Great Weir ”; a ford in the Suir from which the lane at west end of Clareen Factory formed the northern exit.

(d) Córa Catáin—“ Kane’s Weir.”

(e) Cnocán a Ráca—“ Little Hill of the (Flax ?) Rack.”

(f) Ústairín Mallock—“ Mallock’s Little Road.”

GARRAVONE, Gárra Thóin — “ Rough (Turf) Bog.” Area, 371 acres.

“ Garranowney ” (D.S.M.).

SHESKIN, Seircinn—“ Boggy Place.” Area, 600 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Tobair an Eic—“ The Horse’s Well ”; the water was esteemed specially beneficial to racehorses which were brought hither to drink.

- (b) Seaparthe na Pipe—“Garden of the Pease.”
- (c) Seaparthe na Scuc—“Field of the Cones (i.e., Rock or Earth Mounds).”
- (d) Tobair na Daraige—“Well of the Oak Tree.”
- (e) Dotairin na Scraobhann—“Little Road of the Branches.”
- (f) Dotairin a tSrua—“Little Road of the Stream”; a portion of last.

Kilsheelan Parish.

LIKE Killaloan, this Parish is chiefly in the Barony of Iffa and Offa East, Co. Tipperary, which see. Only five of its eighteen townlands lie in Co. Waterford, and of these five, one (Knocknaree) is within Glenaheiry barony.

TOWNLANDS.

BOOLA, Buale—“Milking Place.” The townland, nearly all mountain and bog, is of very peculiar shape—resembling a gigantic camán or “hurley,” some three miles in length by less (on an average) than one-third of a mile wide. Area, 642 acres.

COOLESHAL, Cúil Íreat—“Lower Corner.” Area, 646 acres.
“Cooleisheel” (Inq. Chas. I.).

GURTEEN, Guirtín—“Little Garden”; anciently Guirtín a tSonnaig (“Little Garden of the Stockade”). In 1838, a snake, $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet in length, was captured here. Area, 1,939 acres.

S.DD. (a) Carrigeenseebohilla (O.M.), Carrhaisín Surbh Únaíalla—“Little Rock of the Cowboy’s Seat”; now it is more generally known as Carrhais Úrígte—“Burned Rock.”

(b) Carrickatobber (O.M.), Carrhais a Tobair—“Rock of the Well.”

(c) Cloghadda (O.M.), Clóch Fada—“Long Rock”; a majestic dallán, 10 feet in height.

In River (E. to W.):—

(i) " Church Gap"; a ford, formerly well known, immediately to east of bridge, about midway between latter and the church ruin. There was a second ford, not so generally used, a few perches to west of bridge.

(j) Póil a Chápaill—" Horse's Pool."

(k) Póil Ólármusa—" Dermot's Pool."

(l) Áit Ódale a Úriomhaig—" Priorstown Ford."

(m) Córa Conchobair—" Connor's Weir."

(n) Linn a tSagairt—" Priest's Pool (or Broad)," in which a priest was drowned. Relative position of the Linn was not noted.

LANDSCAPE, Céarach—" Tillage Plot." Area, 140 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Cromlech (O.M.) ; this fine monument, having weathered the snows of three thousand winters, has been partly prostrated by a recent inundation of the river.

(b) Craann Giobalaí—" Untidy (or Ragged) Tree "; an aged tree by roadside, regarded with superstitious dread.

In the River:—

(c) Scáipb na Móna—" Stony Ford of the Bog."

(d) " Hogan's Hole."

(e) Cúl—" Corner "; an elbow in the river.

Mothel Parish.

MOTHEL, a parish of great extent, was formerly impropriate in the abbey (Canons Regular of St. Austin) of the same name. It is richer in place names than any other parish of the barony and furnishes a few mountain and ecclesiastical designations of more than ordinary interest. On the most difficult of these latter John Fleming, who was a native of the parish, has left us some useful notes (n). The parish gets its name from the townland on which stood the ancient church and abbey. Both church and abbey are supposed to have grown out of the early monastic foundation of SS. Cuan and Brogan. This latter however was not at Mothel but at Ballynevin a mile, or so, distant. The observant reader will notice the number of townland names implying ecclesiastical association and indicating dependency on an important religious house, e.g. Bishopstown, Ballynab, Cloc na Coimice, Old Grange &c. For a description of the church and abbey remains the reader is referred to Waterford Archaeological Journal, Vol. II., pp. 9 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

BALLINAB, Daile an Ab—“The Abbot's Town.” Area, 253 acres.

“Ballynapp” (A.S.E.).

BALLYDURN, Daile Uí Óíoráin—“O'Durran's Homestead.” Area, 1,149 acres.

S.D.D. (a) Croírathre na nDanes—“The Danes' Cross-Roads.” The “crossroads” owe their name to the more or less modern fashions of attributing all antiquarian remains to the Danes. The remains here attributed are confined to a basin-like, apparently artificial, depression of bullán type in a large, partly buried boulder by the roadside. The basin is some 20' in diameter by about 9' deep.

(b) Stéann Fáinne—“Ash Tree Glen”; on boundary with Glenaphuca.

BALLYGARRET, Daile Séaróid—“Garret's Homestead.” Area, 133 acres.

BALLYKNOCK, Daile an Čnuic.—“The Hill Homestead.” Teige O'Bryan of Ballyknocke was fined £20 and imprisoned for refusing to present recusants. With him suffered in the same cause a like penalty, his neighbours, Rowland Power of “Corduffe,” BALLYNEAL, Baile Néill—"Niall's Homestead." Area, 346 acres.

"Ballyneyle" (D.S.R.).

S.D. Áit an Cailín—"Ford of the Girl"; perhaps the maiden was drowned here.

BALLYNEVIN, Baile Uí Chnáinin—"O'Knavin's Homestead"; this is popularly believed to have been church land fraudulently alienated, hence a tradition prevalent half a century since that occupying farmers invariably got "broke." The present, as well as the adjoining townland, is remarkable for a number of artificial pits now filled with water and frequented by wild duck. A new generation has forgotten the object of the excavations, scil:—to extract marl for manure in the wheat-growing years of the early 19th century. Area, 697 acres.

S.DD. (a) Tobair Cuan—"St. Cuan's Well"; next to St. Declan's Well, at Ardmore, this is the most remarkable holy well in the Decies. The "patron" here on July 10th was attended by thousands.

(o) Egmont MSS., Vol. I. p. 53.

(b) "Site of St. Cuan's Church." The church, which belonged to the primitive and diminutive oratory class, disappeared within the past half century.

BALLYTHOMAS, Baile Tomáis — "Thomas' Homestead." Area, 602 acres.

S.D. Aughatanawillin (O.M.), Át a tSeana Muillinn—"Old Mill Ford."

(b) Aughnagan (O.M.), Át na gCeann—"Ford of the Heads"; some monks were beheaded here and the heads thrown into the stream. The most awesome and dreaded ghost in East Munster haunted this ford, and only the protection of SS. Cuan and Brogan rendered wayfarers secure against his molestations. On one occasion the ghost caught a Tartar:—

BRIDGETOWN, Baile an Óraicíó—“Homestead of the Bridge.”

The “Bridge” commemorated in the place-name is hardly the bridge of Clonea, which is not on Bridgetown, but connects Clonea with Ballyneil. Fleming, not aware of the antiquity of both names, suspected Ballyneil to be a later name for a sub-division of Bridgetown (q). Both names have, however, the respectable antiquity of nearly three hundred years behind them for they occur in their present form, in the Down Survey Maps &c. Area, 410 acres.

CLONEA, Cluan-Feadh — “Meadow of (the) Deer.” The sobriquet Paorac (“of Powers’ Country”) is generally added to distinguish this from a place of the same name in the adjoining Barony of Decies. On the townland are the ruins of a fine castle which was habitable till a half century, or so, since. Area, 225 acres.

“Clonee” (Inq. Eliz.).

S.D. Drehid Keal Bridge (O.M.), Óraicéadán Caol—“Narrow Bridge.”

CLONMOYLE, Cluan Maol—“Bare Meadow.” Area, 202 acres.

“Clonmele” (Inq. Chas. I.).

COMMONS. Modern name; no Irish form; entirely mountain. Area, 367 acres.

COOLNAHORNA, Cúl na hEorna—“Barley Ridge-Back.” Area, 724 acres.

“Coolnehorney,” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) Cnuac—“Stack”; a conical hill to south of Crotty’s Lake.

(b) Carran an Fiochain—“Eagle’s Rock.”

(c) Cill Baile Uí Óbraicáin—“Church of O’Bracken’s Homestead”; this is the site of an early church, on Mahony’s farm.

(d) An Uíðir; name of small river which later on joins the Clodagh. See Nire, Barony of Glenahiry.

COOLNALINGADY, Cúl na Loinnre—“Ridge-Back of the Churn-Dash”; in allusion to the butter-producing property of the place (r). An old native informed me the original name was Cúl na Lon—“Corner of the Blackbirds.” The townland is more commonly called Curraghlandy, perhaps from an old sub-denomination. Area, 367 acres.

S.DD. (a) Leaca Riabac—“Grey Glen-Slope.”

(b) Tobair na Dainriogna—“The Queen’s Well”; from some lady-proprietor who was noted for her “airs.”

(c) Carrasg Rámhar—“Thick, Stumpy Rock.”

(d) An Dealac—“The Roadway (or Pass)”; a “gap” leading to Commons.

(e) Clarðe na Ófíann and Soc γ a Coltaim—“Earthen-Fence of the Fianns” and “Sock and Its Colter” respectively; these are two remarkable and nearly parallel trenches which run up the steep mountain side and are visible for miles. At a distance the curious features look like boundary fences. The first is considerably longer than the other. It was Fionn MacCumbail who ploughed them: he had completed the first and had got more than half-way up the second furrow when the colter broke.

(f) An Láb—“The Hoop”; name of a field.

(g) Coinneac Árvo—“High Stubble-Field”; a patch of now wild mountain at a considerable elevation.

(i) Dán na Nóninirde—“Daisy Field.”

(j) Cúppac na Leatb—“Marsh of the Rags.”

(k) An Dubglar—“The Dark-Coloured Stream.” See under Woodstown, Killmacomb Par.; the present name is applied to a stream forming boundary with Ross.

(l) Tobair na Íaróile. Íaróile is “an adze.” The word occurs several times in Waterford place-names; its force I am unable to determine.

(m) Dealma an Ruabán—“Gap of the Moory Tract.”

(n) Dealac na nGéaraitirde—“Way of the Gates.”

(o) Dárr a Óealaig—“Top of the Highway.”

“Curraghphillifreen” (D.S.R.).

FALLAGH, An Fálá—“The Wall.” Area, 342 acres.

“Follo” (D.S.R.).

S.D. Át na fáláise—“Ford of Fallagh.”

FEDDANS, Feáodán—“Streams.” There is a small ruined castle on the townland, also a mote. From a Down Survey reference to “Fiddownes als Ballyhasteene” it would seem that Ballyhest is an ancient sub-division of Feddans, or vice versa. Area, 722 acres.

S.DD. (a) Át a tSeana muillinn—“Ford of the Old Mill.”

(b) An Leact—“The Monumental Cairn.”

GLENAPHUCA, Gleann a Phúca—“The Pooka’s Glen.” Area, 560 acres.

“Glenafoco” (D.S.R.).

S.D. Át na h-Eaglaire—“Ford of the Church”; this is close to the north east angle of the townland—on boundary of latter with Curraghataggart—and is so named from a Penal Days Chapel which stood in the neighbouring field (on Glenaphuca).

Area, 343 acres.

“Glanbegg” (D.S.R.).

S.DD. (a) Cláir a mhaora—“Trench of the Wolf”; regarded locally as an independent townland and now frequently Anglicised Glendog!

(b) Loc Durde—"Yellow Pond."

(c) Ráicínirde—"Little Forts."

KILCANAVEE, Cill Ceanaburde—"Cannaway's Church"; John Fleming gives somewhere another (somewhat far fetched) derivation, scil.:—Cill Činn na Maige. Site of the early church is on Keating's farm and the outlines of the circular rampart, enclosing two acres or thereabout, are distinctly traceable. Some interesting dressed stones from a primitive doorway are built into a fence by the roadside. Area, 825 acres.

S.DD. (a) Gleann Fáinne—"Ash-tree Glen."

(b) Cnuacán—"Little (Mountain) Pile"; little in comparison with the Comeragh heights behind it to the west but itself in reality a remarkable hill, 1,285 feet high.

(c) Carrraig Órlannra—"Rock of the Cattle Pen"; on the summit of the last. See under Ballyquin, Fenough Par., antea.

(d) Tobar Ualtéir—"Walter's Well."

KILCLOONEY, Cill Čluana—"Church of the Sequestered Place"; the largest townland in Co. Waterford. Site of the eponymous cill was recovered with difficulty. It is by side (east) of main road to Dungarvan. Included in the townland is a great extent of mountain; the highest point (directly above the lake) is 2,597 feet. Area, 3,218 acres.

- (cc) Tig na gCrainn—“ House of (in) the Trees.”

- (gg) An Fáil Óirpead—“ The Straight Cliff.”
- (hh) An Coircéim—“ The Step.”
- (ii) Óeinnre mhór—“ Great Bank.”

KILLERGUILÉ, Cill an gCoill—Apparently—“ Church on the Wood ” as O’Donovan explains it. I searched however in vain for trace or tradition of church site. On brow of a glen near east boundary of the townland I found, set in the ground, a basin-bearing boulder of bullán type. Area, 515 acres.

S.D. Sluit a Úrúacáin—“ Stream of the Green Bank.”

KNOCKATURNORY, Cnoc a Tuirnóra—“ The Turner’s Hill.” Area, 843 acres.

S.D. Úárra Mairín—“ Maidin’s Height”; an early church site, with circular fence &c. on Kirby’s farm. Maidin, probably = Mo-iœ-Án—“ My Little Ita’s.”

MONMINANE, Móin Mionáin—“ Bog of (the) Kid.” Rev. Matthias Casey, who was born here over a century ago, used call the place Cúlós Fínnín—(“ Fingin’s Little Corner ”).

“ Nomanane ” (D.S.R.).

MOTHEL, Maotail—“ Soft Spongy Land.” Area, 259 acres.

“ Methallia ” (Calendar of State Papers—1253). “ Mochel ” (Do.—1256).

S.DD. (a) Cloch na Comairge—“ Stone of Sanctuary ”; a termon-stone, in shape of a sandstone pillar four feet high, which stands by roadside and is inscribed on its face with an ornamental cross. In a fence close by the writer found a block of hard slate inscribed with cup and circle designs.

(b) Dannra—“ Manse ”; the Glebe House at Mothel, now residence of the parish priest.

MUNSBURROW, Muinnílánairge (Muin-na-Lairge). Meaning uncertain; O’Donovan translates it “ Hill of the Shins ” (s), while Fleming renders it “ Ridge of the River Forks ” (t), and states that, though pronounced as above, it is written Muin na Lairge. The origin of the Anglicised name I have failed to trace; probably affectation accounts entirely for it. A branch of the Power family was established here, and as late as seventy-five years ago there survived some twenty acres of orchard and shrubbery which had been attached to the “ great house.” Area, 870 acres.

(s) Ordnance Field Books—Waterford.

(t) “ Gaelic Journal,” Vol. II., p. 163.

"Monlarg" (Tax. Pope Nicholas).

“Ould Grange” (D.S.R.).

Ross, Ror—“Shrubbery.” Area, 1,024 acres.

“Rosse” (D.S.R.).

S.D.D. (a) Crotty's Lough (O.M.). This is a modern name derived from the well remembered outlaw, William Crotty, who had for his lair an almost inaccessible cave in the rcot or cliff, overlooking the lake. Crotty was hanged in Waterford in 1742, yet his memory is still a vivid thing to the peasant of Powers' Country. See under Coolnalingady supra. The Irish name of the lake is Com Sáine—“Laughing Hollow,” or Loch a Stólla—“Lake of the Cliff.” Stóll is not found in the dictionaries, and its exact meaning is not easy to fix. It seems to signify, primarily, a pillar or standing stone and, in a secondary sense, a cliff or mountain pinnacle as in the present instance.

(b) Douglas River (O.M.), Óub Sláire—“Black Stream”; a name scarcely known locally.

(c) Na Síáiníní—“The Little Villages”; now two or three small fields where stood the gráinín.

(d) Sáileacán—“Place of the Willows.”

(e) Þáirc na Sáthaitce—“Field of the Apparition (Ghost)” ; there is a lios in the field.

S.D.D. (a) Baile an Faoitig Beag—“Little Whitestown”; now Whitestown East.

(b) Fáidín na nÓirí gCominne—“Little Three-Cornered Hurling (or Dancing) Green”; at meeting place of three townlands.

Rathgormack Parish.

LIKE its sister Parish of Mothel this division, formerly a dependency of the Abbey of Mothel, is of great extent. Its name is non-ecclesiastical—derived from the townland on which are the ruined church and graveyard. Two of its townlands, scil:—Glenanore and Knockaunaffrin, are in another barony (Glenahiry) and two others, scil:—Carrigeen and Curraduff, are separated from body of parish by the Comeragh range. For fuller information on the ecclesiastical antiquities of the parish see Journal of Waterford and S.E. Ireland Archaeological Society, Vol. II., pp. 14 &c.

TOWNLANDS.

AUGHMORE, Áit Mór—“Great Ford.” Area, 200 acres.

BALLINGARRA, Baile an Séarraí—“Homestead (or Town) of the Cutting Off.” It was cut, about seventy years since, off the modern Catholic parish of Rathgormack. Searraí seems to be used locally in sense of “short-cut.” Area, 300 acres.

BALLYCULLANE, Baile Uí Coileáin—“O’Collins’ Homestead”; Area, 176 acres.

“Ballycolane” (Inq. Car. I.).

BALLYNAFINA, Baile na Foirgne. Meaning unknown; O’D. renders it—“Homestead of the Green Field.” This is another of the places visited by the legendary Stílir Gabhnae; she pastured here on her way Suirwards from Coolnalingady. (u) Area, 257 acres.

S.D. Áit na mBárraile—“ Ford of the Barrels.”

BOOLABEG, Úaile Óeas—“ Little Milking Place,” i.e., Little in comparison with Boolacloghach, which was the Booley-more of which the present townland originally formed part. Area, 325 acres.

BOOLACLOGHACH, Úaile Clocáe—“ Stony Milking Place.” Highest point of this townland, 2,504 feet. Area, 917 acres.

S.DD. (a) Coumgarra Lough (O.M.). The Ordnance name here is incorrect. The place so marked is really Com lárcha—“ Western Basin,” containing three small lakes without special names.

(b) Carrraig na Sean Éan—“ Old Birds’ Rock.”

CARRIGEEN, Carrraigín—“ Little Rock”; the townland is practically uninhabited. Area, 840 acres.

S.D. Úearna Óeil a Úearlaig—“ Gap of the Pass Mouth”; the best known of the passes over the Comeragh Mountains: it connects Rathgormack with the Nire.

“ Clonedonill ” (Inq. Jac. I.).

S.DD. (a) Aughanirvor (O.M.), Áit an Fír Mór—“ Ford of the Big Man.”

(b) Páirc a Tighe Mór—“ Field of the Great House ”; from former mansion of a branch of the Power family.

(u) “ Gaelic Journal,” Vol. II., p. 163.

(c) Cnoc a Chroinín—Anglicised “Croney Hill”; a well-known sub-denomination—“Hill of the Humming.” A few families who inhabited this place were noted for poetic and musical tastes—hence the name.

(d) An Croír—“The Cross”; a rock on the mountain summit, bearing a fancied resemblance to the symbol of Redemption.

(e) Na Trí Cárraigíníodh—“The Three Little Rocks”; on the mountain summit.

CURRAGHKIELY, Cúrraigh a Chaoilis—“Morass of the Fairy Flax (Linum Silvestre).” A Catholic Diocesan Synod—the first since the Reformation—was held here in 1677, under the presidency of John Brenan, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore. Owing to operation of the Penal Laws such a meeting would have been attended with much danger if held in a more public place. The exact site of the Synod house is not now on this townland, but on Poulavone, a former sub-division of Curraghkiely. To left of the main Clonmel road—fifty perches or so to west of latter—stood the residence of a Catholic middleman named Power in which the clergy assembled. “Seamus Cúrpseac (v), Cúrraigh an Chaoilis,” one of the Powers of that ilk, is still traditionally remembered. Area, 848 acres.

(b) Ráirc na Hraíneánighe—“Field of the Hedgehog.”

CURRAHEEN, Cúrraighín—“Little Morass.” Area, 1,766 acres.

“Cuirraheene” (D.S.R.).

S.D.D. (a) Céartarán (loc. case)—“Quarter”; a sub-division.

(b) Lough More (O.M.), Loc Mór—“Big Lake”; at height of 1,518 feet.

(c) Comduala, Com Duala. Meaning undetermined; called also Quinlan’s Lake. This mountain tarn is five acres in extent, and is situated at height of 1,533 feet. From it the Clodiagh River rises.

(v) “James the Top-Knotted.”

(d) Cáraṇ þóil—“Paul’s Path”; running by side of last. The Paul commemorated gave his name likewise to a semi-savage faction, “The Pooleens,” who with their barbarous rivals, “The Gows,” long disturbed the peace not only of this region but of all mid-Waterford.

(e) CairLeán na Saigteasaír—“The Soldiers’ Castle”; a rock pinnacle at junction of three townlands and at height of 2,476 feet. The “soldiers” I take to be Royal Engineers engaged in Survey work, and the “castle,” probably a trigonometrical Survey mark.

CURRAGHUFF, Cúrrac Dubh—“Black Morass.” On this townland, which is practically uninhabited, are four small lakes the names of which the 12 in. Ordnance Map has done yeoman service in confounding and confusing. The two basins forming the north group are known as the “Stilloges” (see under Ross, above), while the other two are called the “Comalachs” (probably compounded of com, a hollow, and lach, a lake). Highest point, 2,465 feet. Area, 1,706 acres.

GLENPATRICK, Gleann Phádraig—“Patrick’s Glen.” Area, 1,905 acres.

“Glanpatrick” (D.S.).

(b) Síd Ghávnáighe—“Gowna’s (or the ‘Calf’s’) Fairy Mound.”

(c) Aughnacilla (O.M.), Át na Cille—“Ford of the Church.”

The cill referred to is the site of an early church by north side of old Clonmel road at the junction of this townland with Poulavone.

Along Mountain Summit (south to north):—

(d) Cárraig Síde Ghávnáighe. See (b) above.

(e) Cárraig a Coirgeant. Signification of qualifying word is undetermined: Coirgeant may possibly be a corruption of some derivative from coirgeann, I consecrate.

(f) Seagáinín na Óireáighe—“Lying Little John”; a jutting rock point which in the distance looks like a man.

(g) Caillairt Óub—“Black Rock.”

“Killballikilty” (Inq. Jac. I.).

S.D. páirc na Cille—“Site of the Early Church”; on west boundary of the townland.

“Knocknafally” (D.S.R.).

KNOCKNACREHA, Cnoc na Cróise—“Gallows’ Hill.” The Gallows in question was set up on a hillock (Cruaċ na Cróise)
